'VARSITY THEATRE NIGHT!

AT THE AVENUE, MARCH 13

On Tuesday, at noon, the men of the College met in a general meeting to discuss one of the big events of the year—the University theatre night. J. L. MacDonald, who is in charge of the arrangements, informed the meeting that the Avenue offered the best advantages, so it was decided that this theatre should be our choice. On Thursday, 13th inst., it is planned to have a monster parade of all the College men before entering the theatre. Pandemonium will probably be released inside, but it is understood that no objectionable "rough-house" will be tolerated. Bright ideas are asked for, but all "stunts" must be distinctly college-like. Everyone is asked to array himself in gold and blue that evening. After the affair the parade will come up to the Auditorium, where "eats" will be served out.

Everybody boost! "Come on, Red!"

HELP!

The other day one of our regular advertisers told us to discontinue his advertisement. "We offered a 10 per cent. discount to University students for two weeks and not a single one demanded it." From this he inferred that he was getting no value from our columns.

Advertising is a straight business proposition, and a person who advertises in the "Ubysssey" does it in order to get results. The students must make a point not only of buying from our advertisers, as many of them have learned to do, but to tell them that they are from the University. Soliciting advertisements is a difficult part of the work of the Publication Board, and we have to have the co-operation of everyone.

"HIGH JINKS"

Everybody knows that the women of the 'Varsity were having "High Jinks" on Saturday night. Still we must tax our energies to find words fitting to describe the scene, so that the men may know what they missed by being mere men.

Consternation was indeed created by the appearance of one foolhardy male, who, however, made good his retreat before the threats of gypsies, soldiers, and, of course, Charlie Chaplin's cute little cane. Many of the costumes were marvels of ingenuity. People of all times, and all countries, danced light-heartedly together; Greek goddesses smiled at Highlanders, while Prinette pirouetted with a gallant cavalier regardless of the frowns of Pieoro. "Dear Mabel" was there, with her Bill, and Algernon escorted with due gallantry a maiden of France. The Grand March was so attractive that it was encored, and the long stream of courtiers and dames, orderlies and "flu" nurses, gay youths of the 20th Century and gypsies, passed a second time round the hall. The ubiquitous red tie was visible, of course, and red skirts and cockades were taken as representing principles of Liberte, Egalite, Fraternite.

The call for waiters was nobly answered by the "gentlemen," who served the refreshments with skill and despatch. After this Miss McInnes complimented the undergrad. on the entire success of the evening, and presented the prizes for the best costumes. Everyone was unanimous in declaring that Miss Brenchley and Miss Coates, as Buster Brown and Mary Jane, deserved their prize, while Miss Damer's costume was the sensation of the evening. Enquiries are still being received as to whether that hat came from Paris. Miss Rena Grant, as Charlie Chaplin, was also successful in carrying off a prize.

Musical Society Annual Concert

CHORUSES AND COLLEGE GLEES
TO BE RENDERED IN HOTEL
VANCOUVER, MARCH 28th

Final arrangements are being made for the Musical Society concert which is to be held in the ballroom of the Hotel Vancouver, on Friday, March 28th. This momentous step in the career of the Glee Club has been taken on account of the increased number of students taking part in the choruses over that of former years. This year's programme will excel all former concerts, and in order to accommodate all who are desirous of hearing the performance, a larger hall than the University Auditorium has been considered necessary.

It has not yet been announced who will take the solo parts, but the best possible talent will be procured. The Glee Club itself is especially meritorious of praise and one decidedly new and vigorous feature will be the College Glee. The other choruses have been chosen from popular and well-known operas, which would delight the most critical of audiences. Altogether the programme is of the highest order. Our own twelve-piece orchestra will render several instrumental selections, besides accompanying some of the vocal numbers.

Committees have been arranged to carry on the work, and tickets will be on sale next week. They will be limited in number, so be on hand early to procure them from your class appointees, as follows: Miss Wallace, 4th year; Miss Fournier, 3rd year; Miss L. Coates and Mr. Mitchell, 2nd year; Miss K. Grant and Mr. Coope, 1st year. Further announcements will be made in next week's issue.

WESTERN UNIVERSITIES SERVICE CLUB

The club will hold a luncheon in the dining hall of the Hudson's Bay stores on the afternoon of Saturday, March 8th, at 12:30 o'clock. All undergraduates who are returned soldiers are invited to attend; a good time is anticipated. The charge will be one dollar a plate. All who expect to be present should give their names to either Mr. Traves or Mr. Kingham.

EXCHANGES

A rowing club in connection with the University of British Columbia is contemplated by the Men's Athletic Association, reports the Ubysey.

This is a commendable project and should be encouraged. But why stop there? Why not a Canadian Intercollegiate Rowing Association, comprising crews from the University of British Columbia, the University of Toronto, Queen's, McGill, Ottawa, Dalhousie, Acadia, New Brunswick and King's College? Here are all these 'Varsities situated, some of them at any rate, on water courses not to be excelled anywhere on the continent, and yet not one has a rowing crew. Certainly, it seems as if we had much to learn in aquatic sports from our sister universities across the line as well as from those in the Old Land. Now that the war is over, why should not the Athletic Directorate turn its attention to the proposition of forming a racing crew? A country that could raise such eminent scullers as Hanlon, Gaudaur and Scholes and Wright should not lack for plenty of good material. Let us hope that we may profit by the timely example of U.B.C.—"Varsity."

MEN'S LIT.

On Friday evening, February 29th, a novel entertainment was provided the students of the University by the Men's Literary Society. Each person, on reaching the door, was duly labelled with a red, green, blue, orange or some other colored ribbon, and then sent in. The ice was broken by a selection of college songs, followed by a solo from Mr. Coates. Mr. Adams, Mr. Rive and Mr. Smelton, properly balanced on a soap box, then vied with each other in impromptu speech-making for the coveted prize. In friendly informality, Mr. Adams gave a talk on "Mr. Denham, Bolshevik," and "Mr. Smeeton and his Foreign Policy." Mr. Rive discussed that elusive topic, "Student Thought," and Mr. Smeeton told how a university should be managed. Everyone agreed that the speeches were not only humorous but clever. One bold member of the Bolsheviks was found missing when the time came for him to discuss that subject, but Mr. Denham ably stepped into the breach. From an eminent position on the soap box, Mr. Wood presented the prize, a tie, magnificently striped with red, yellow and green, to Mr. Adams.

Mr. Mahrer played a collection of modern piano selections, well known to the audience, who spontaneously joined in singing them. After this the floor was cleared and dancing started. Cards were also provided and other entertainments, capably directed by the master of ceremonies, Mr. Rive.

After the second dance it was discovered why everyone had received a tag. All were grouped according to the colors of their ribbons and told to give a short play on a given subject. The greens came first, and, under the leadership of Dr. Sedgwick, gave a representation of an Irish Parliament, superior to the performance of the wildest rah-rah club. A pretty little patriotic drill was next arranged, followed by a heated Bolshevik meeting. The audience was also given a glimpse of the inner workings of the Student Council, as well as examples of a properly conducted 'varsity lecture and a prohibition meeting. The prize was given to the group receiving the most applause. The Irishmen fought hard for the honors, but were beaten by the patriotic division, led by Mr. Wood and the dish pan.

Another feature of the evening was the better baby contest. Each group selected its two better babies, who were carefully judged by Dr. Sedgwick. Miss McCabe and Mr. D. A. Wallace, the noted scientist, succeeded in capturing the yellow and blue ribbons.

THE C. O. T. C. DRILL

Mr. Sutcliffe stated on Monday evening that the Faculty had recommended the students' petition for the abolition of the O. T. C. Senate will likely discuss the matter on Wednesday, but it will be impossible for any definite action to be taken before this week's drill. It might be well that all drills be attended pending the final disposition of this problem.

THE STUDENTS' COURT

On Monday evening, for the first time in the history of the University, the Students' Council sat as a court for the trial of an alleged student misdemeanor. Some criticism was raised by counsel in the trial as to the validity of the Court. Let us see how discipline in the College was maintained in the past and how it is to be maintained now and in the future.

In the days of McGill University College, the Faculty were solely responsible for discipline, investigated alleged misdemeanors, determined whether or not they were misdemeanors, and, if necessary, inflicted such punishment and issued such warning as might be deemed necessary. There was not, at that time, any definite fixed code of laws covering all forms of "crime," and there is no such code to-day.

With the coming of the University and the principle of student self-government, the responsibility for discipline and punishment was put in the hands of the student executive, with the Faculty as a Court of Appeal. The constitution states that the Students' Council may act as a court, but the form of procedure in that court is not stated. Therefore, had it been desired, the Council had the right to hold a private enquiry, in which no counsels would have appeared, and the defendant, plaintiff and witnesses would have been directly examined by the Council. It was thought to be fairer, however, to hold the trial in open court and follow in general the conventional court procedure. It was considered impossible to introduce the technicalities of civil or criminal law, as no student could be conversant with all the phases of a complicated mass of statutes, rulings and precedents. General court procedure was adopted merely as a convenient form, but there was no intention of trying a student for breaking University statutes by common law.

If the students object to this form of trial, the Council has and will use the power of holding private investigations as mentioned above. As regards punishment for offences, the Council may recommend the form which this shall take to the Faculty, who have the final decision, as in all other phases of self-government.

Behind a white syringa tree
 I kissed my pretty Mabel.
 We sat together, I and she,
 Behind a white syringa tree,
 And there was no one near to see.
 (What harm, if I was able?)—
 Behind a white syringa tree,
 I kissed my pretty Mabel.

II.

Among these wood anemones
 My Mabel lies a-sleeping.
 O will you, busy little bees
 Among these wood anemones
 Tell my dead, darling Mabel—please,
 That I stand here a-weeping.
 Among these wood anemones
 My Mabel lies a-sleeping.

III.

As snowy flakes that melt in rain
 So joy may turn to sorrow.
 My Mabel's dead, and feels no pain
 As snowy flakes that melt in rain,
 I stand alone, bound by Life's chain,
 And so must stand, to-morrow.
 As snowy flakes that melt in rain,
 So joy may turn to sorrow.

"JARRING REPETITION"

Any day in the halls, you may hear College Spirit being defined as an "animal that ain't," as far as U. B. C. is concerned. We beg to differ.

The very fact that we are alive to its absence, in whatever degree, indicates that we possess it. Think that over!

Would it not be a wild conjecture to say that, on the night of many a College function, several (if not twice that number) of our agitators could be found down town, and in their pockets very likely would be reposing slips of cardboard labelled, "C4, C5, Friday evening only."

"To be good is noble, but to teach others how to be good is nobler—and less trouble."
Some of us think that Mark Twain said a mouthful.

Just let's pretend that we have a College Spirit (what a worn out phrase) and act the part accordingly. It isn't what you do, it is how you do it. You are going to look back on these days: why not make them all that you could wish to recall.

JOSEPH CONRAD

A deeply attentive audience at Dr.
Sedgwick's lecture on "Joseph Conrad," before the Vancouver Institute, testified to the interest aroused by the writings of this talented writer, whose work is such a tribute to the English language.

A Pole by birth, Joseph Conrad stands forth unique in the history of our modern literature.

"Look out there!"—not very attractive words, perhaps, to our ears, but to Joseph Conrad they opened up new vistas, for with them he heard for the first time that English tongue which was to be the medium for the exposition of his philosophy.

Dr. Sedgwick told how the future author, influenced by his father's admiration for the English, grew up with the ambition to be a sailor on a British ship.

At the age of 35 he turned to literature.

Inspired by his life on ships, he preaches the doctrine of a world community and fidelity to one's comrades.
His books tell of the lonely soul, divorced from its fellows, striving to get into touch with them again. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded Dr. Sedgwick at the close of the lecture.

FACULTY COLUMN

The Forestry Course

The short course in Forestry, instituted by the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, which has been in session in the Commercial Building of the University since November 21st, is among the most numerous attended, popular and interesting of the courses offered to returned men.

The course is of five months' duration. It includes Forest Botany, Mensuration, Utilization, Protection and Improvement, Administration and Silviculture. In addition, lectures are given in business English and Correspondence, in Mathematics and Forest Surveying and Mapping. A special effort is made throughout to achieve a thoroughly practical course, and approximate the actual conditions encountered in the routine of the forest ranger's work. To this end field practice in log scaling has been taking place at mills located convenient to the University, the mills of the B. C. Fir and Cedar Lumber Company, Hanbury Lumber Company, and the Cotton Shingle Mill being available to the scaler students, enabling them to get practical knowledge of the processes of the manufacture of logs and bolts into lumber and shingles. Before the completion of the course it is planned to accompany the students to representative logging camps near Vancouver, and in these to spend a certain amount of time in the cruising, mapping and surveying of timber lands.

The course is in general charge of Mr. E. J. Hanzlik, a graduate of the University of Washington Forestry School. The services of Mr. Hanzlik have kindly been loaned for this work through courtesy of the United States Forest Service. Up to the time of his coming to Vancouver he was engaged in preparing scientific forest working plans for the continuous production of timber upon the Snoqualmie National Forest. The Forest Products Laboratory, maintained by the Dominion Government in the Commercial Building, under the direction of Mr. L. Brown, is also available for the students in this course, and the apparatus already installed for testing the bending and breaking strains of timber is of great value to the students.

In addition to the regular course of study prescribed, special lectures by experts and authorities are given. Mr. T. P. Mackenzie, Grazing Commissioner for B. C., has discussed grazing problems and plans in their relation to Forestry, and shown the importance of lands lightly timbered with yellow or lodgepole pine in the development of the cattle and sheep industries of the Province. Mr. Roland Craig, of the Conservation Commission staff, and a recognized forest authority, is among others who have given these special addresses.

Twenty-two students are engaged in the Course—17 being from B. C. and five from Alberta. Upon its completion these men will be qualified for minor positions in the Dominion and Provincial Forest Branches of the Permanent Forest Rangers' Force.

All the students are keenly interested in their work, and the prospect of steady growth and development of the course seems assured. Indeed, with the vital importance of forestry as a basic B. C. industry, it may well be that in a comparatively short time the instruction at present given will expand into the long contemplated University School of Forestry.

STUDENTS' COURT

The first session of the Students' Court was held Monday night. The judges announced that they would be governed by no precedents, as there were none affecting such a court. "The law of common sense" was to govern the actions of the Court.

There were four charges brought forward by Lieut. Letsch, as adjutant of the C. O. T. C. The three cases first tried were dismissed on the grounds of insufficient evidence. The fourth case was more complex, and at 12 o'clock the Court adjourned until Wednesday.

MUSICAL NOTES

French Band to Play at Orpheum

Some time in the distant future Vancouver may possibly have a Massey Hall of its own, but, until that Utopian era arrives, we must be content to have "unique" concerts, which begin at 11 P. M. The concert which is to be given at this hour by the French Army Band of Veterans at the Orpheum on Monday, March 10, is unique in more ways than one. Every one of these veterans is a medalist of the Paris Conservatory for proficiency in his particular instrument, and this is a sure indication that this band is one of the best that has ever come to America.

In these days, when we hear so much about Bolshevism, it is interesting to recall that the Paris Conservatory was founded in 1794 by the National Assembly; the very best men of the time were chosen as members of the Faculty, and the text books were printed at the expense of the government. To-day, the Paris Conservatory is the greatest institution of its kind in the world. Entrance is gained by competitive examination, and tuition is given free of charge. The result is that this conservatory is a national institution in the truest sense of the word; the standards are extremely high, and, therefore, the fact that all the members of this French Army Band are medalists of this institution speaks for itself.

Pablo Cassals

Since the day when, as a boy of 16, Pablo Cassals, while still a pupil of the Barcelona Conservatory of Music, received a decoration from the hands of the Queen of Spain, his name has been synonymous with the greatest attainments in the field of violoncello music.

Cassals came first to America in 1914. His playing created a veritable sensation, and his name rapidly became a household word in this country. His return this year is being hailed as one of the greatest musical events of the coming season, for, while the violin, the piano, and other instruments, can each claim several great interpreters, when one speaks of the violoncello, one knows but one great name—Pablo Cassals.

A Sad Case

The patient was sick, and swallowed a spoon. Now she can't even stir.

Dr. Ashton (after commenting on the quantity of "padding" in the third-year French exam. papers): "You people ought to be upholsterers!"

CHEMISTRY SOCIETY

The regular meeting of the Chemistry Society was held on Wednesday, February 26th, when two interesting addresses on the history of Chemistry were given by Mr. Pound and Mr. Wrinch, members of the freshmen class. The society feels justly proud of its members in Arts '22, as this is the first year in the history of the society in which freshmen have taken an active part at the meetings.

Mr. Pound dealt with the Phlogiston period, when Chemistry first assumed its proper place as a science.

Mr. Wrinch followed, dealing especially with the work of Lavostier and Dalton, whose famous atomic theory has proved the solution of many problems of chemistry.

The next meeting of the Chemistry Society will be held Wednesday, March 12, at 8 p. m. Dr. E. H. Archibald will speak on "The Rusting of Iron."

SCIENCE

Once again, two unhappy delinquents were hailed before the Science Court last Friday. J. W. Rebbeck was charged with a crime so frightful and degrading that we would not dare to mention it here. Suffice it to say that he was charged with disgracefully misconducting himself with a young lady and that the jury, being generous, acquitted him.

L. S. McLennan was charged with extortion. His case gave full scope to the lawyers who delved deep into legal interpretations and brought up precedents and authorities by the carload. He was found guilty and, to the great joy of the rest of Science, enriched the coffers by a fine of fifty cents.

IN FLANDERS' FIELDS

Struggling to stem the rush of barb'rous hordes

Who wrought in Flanders untold misery,
A fallen soldier slowly breathed these words:
"Take up our quarrel with the foe. If ye Break faith with us who die, we shall not sleep,

Though poppies grow in Flanders' Fields."
He died.

Beyond his poppy-laden grave the deep Hun ranks pressed on. Long years his message cried—

In vain? Nay, to this grave came answer low:

"We have kept faith, O valiant dead; sleep on

Where Flanders' poppies grow. Your hated foe—"

The speaker paused; his eyes triumphant shone.

Far off a broken throng, with grovelling whine, crawled, whipt and sullen, toward the gloomy Rhine.
