The year 1939-40 saw the appearance on the campus of a rather unusual freshman. His title at first was "Sho-You-Hwa," but as he got into the swing of things at Varsity he acquired the name of Totie, and the name stuck.

His fellow students first made Totie's acquaintance in the 1940 Totem. They soon learned that he was more than an ordinary undergraduate. Totie, in his true character, was, and is, the personification of UBC's mascot, the thunderbird.

More than that, he is the symbol of all that the University does, and of all that it stands for.

Totie never finished his course at UBC. Like so many students of his year he heard the call to fight for his country, and in the spring of forty-two, at the end of his junior year, he left University for what was originally intended to be the duration.

True, his memory was not gone, the friends he had made still remained, and even the freshmen learned something about him from those who had been his companions, but the real Totie, the undergraduate par excellence, was gone.

This year Totie returns again, back from the wars, along with many more ex-servicemen. This is Totie's senior year, the first of a long line of senior years, for Totie, being the perfect undergrad, can never graduate.

In the pages of this book we will follow Totie as he renews old acquaintances, and meets the many newcomers, both among students and among organizations, who have arrived in his absence.

We join him in paying tribute to the men and women who have given up their studies, and their play, so that others could continue to enjoy these things.

We follow him as he visits the buildings, and watches the students in their classrooms and labs, studying the library, or relaxing in the Brock.

We see him as he visits the heads of University Administration, as he joins in campus activities, athletics, and war effort.

He is here also in the class sections, and with the clubs and the Greeks.

Totie has returned to a campus still at war, and it is a campus at war that he presents to you in this book.

His hope for next year, and for every year is that he will not have to do so again.

Since no complete list of this sort is in existence we have been obliged to compile one of our own from the various sources available.*

We would appreciate any information as to names which we have omitted that you may be able to submit, in order that next year's list may be a more complete one.

AUDITORIUM

Two alternatives offered . . .

Maestro Micelli makes music.

The Auditorium is the scene of two very different aspects of campus life. Here the student goes for his entertainment at the many pep meets, plays, and other past features, and here it is that he passes his noon hours relaxing from his studies in the crowded atmosphere of the cafeteria. Here he also finds himself at that period of crisis that comes in every college student's life, that time of his deepest trouble and greatest despair, examination time.

Upstairs above the main auditorium, three of the largest and most important clubs on the campus have their headquarters. The Players Club, the Musical Society, and the Student Christian Movement all have rooms on the second floor.

Also in this grey, semi-permanent building are the University Health Service office and the Book Store.

The main part of the building, however, is the hall itself which seats about 600 people in comfortable theatre style seats, and boasts a well lighted stage with all the backgrounds and lighting equipment needed for the most difficult stage effects.

LIBRARY

. . . for seekers of culture

Surrounded by the most beautiful landscaping on the campus, the Library stands, serene and dignified, the best known and most occupied of the buildings at UBC.

In spite of the continual warnings of the Librarians to the students to stay away from the Library unless they intend to study, this building somehow seems to be more of a social centre than the Brock, perhaps because a student feels more nonconscientious surrounded by books than he does lounging in the Brock chesterfields.

A permanent structure of grey granite, the Library is a building second to none in beauty and dignity of appearance. It contains more than 140,000 books on all subjects, as well as many interesting exhibits.

The Library will also be one of the first buildings to be enlarged when future plans for university expansion come into effect.

Closely associated with the Library is the famous lily pond, the first important step in a freshman's university career.

Some of us are studious, sometimes.

AGGIE BUILDING

Scientific Aggies are . . .

Situated conveniently close to the bus stop, so that students and profs can slip over for a quick cup of coffee between lectures, the building looks backward at the low, sprawling Arts Building, and squints upward and across the mall towards the imposing home of pure science.

Within its walls are found the numerous lecture rooms where students learn the royal road to a happy life "back on the farm". Offices, too, are located in this building, where tired profs receive their last briefing before taking off to the lecture room.

The common rooms cannot be disregarded, for they are the true home of the Aggie, where he eats, meets his friends, and even sleeps. They are also the scene of many a battle between the Aggies and their old enemies, Arts.

The building would not be complete without its labs. These are stuffy little rooms where students callously record the pulse beats of dying chickens, or analyze the bacterial content of milk.

. . . These hard-working Aggies.

. . . not necessarily farmers

These are not Aggies.

Isolated by their position in the extreme southern fields of the University, the Aggie barns are a constant source of interest and mystification to Engineers and Artsmen alike.

However, to the students of animal and poultry husbandry, they represent a working field as important and instructive as any lab or lecture room.

In these buildings budding farmers learn such subjects as the fundamental and advanced techniques of feeding, care, and scientific breeding of animals. The animals studied include chickens, sheep, pigs, horses, and cows.

The cows, as well as being the main producers on the Aggie farm, seem to hold the greatest fascination for Artsmen and Engineers.

The other animals are provided for in four additional barns, of a slightly less modern design, while a sizable array of smaller establishments are used for the poultry. Several buildings are also set aside for testing labs, cheese making, bottling milk, and the like.

APPLIED SCIENCE BUILDING

Engineers learn techniques . . .

Future Geologists at work.

On the West Mall, overlooking the forest belt, stands the Applied Science Building, occupied mainly by laboratories. The north end of the building contains biology and zoology laboratories and the south contains the drafting rooms and geology laboratories. In between are the forestry laboratories.

Although the name seems to signify that the building is the exclusive possession of the engineers and it bears scars of several heated disputes as to their right of occupation, all faculties make use of its facilities. The most prominent occupants are the second and third year engineers, who haunt the second floor drafting rooms. The drafting rooms are home to the engineer, and they are usually tastefully decorated with the works of Varga and Hurrell.

The geology laboratories, situated on the ground floor, are well known to the mine operators of British Columbia. Innumerable times research carried out in these rooms has given a new lease on life to some mine faced with seemingly insurmountable obstacles.

ENGINEERING BUILDING

. . . to aid Canada's War Effort

In the south-west corner of the campus stand the Engineering buildings, centre of the activities of the mechanical, electrical, metallurgical, and mining engineers. Largest of the three is the Mechanical Engineering Building which houses the thermodynamics laboratory with its formidable array of heat engines which has somehow survived years of punishment at the hands of enthusiastic engineers-to-be. The engineers machine shops are also in this building.

Next door stands the Electrical Engineering Laboratory with its maze of motors, generators, wiring, switchboards and meters. Here embryo electricians struggle through endless encounters with volts and ohms.

The Mining Building stands down in the corner of the block. In addition to the spectacular fire assaying laboratory and the mineral dressing equipment the building also contains the hydraulics laboratory. Here the engineers assemble and make computations about the flow of—believe it or not—water.

At least the Professor knows.

ARTS BUILDING

A diversity of Creatures . . .

The Arts building, centre of the block of semi-permanent buildings, houses the largest faculty on the campus. It is bordered on the north by the quad, the crossroads of University life.

Erected in 1925, the Arts building has served the scholastic needs of thousands of "men of culture", of both sexes. It is here that students become versed in languages, argue over abstract problems of philosophy, and imbibe large quantities of English literature.

Unfortunately the semi-permanent nature of the building has been somewhat overlooked. The two-storey building with only one lecture hall and twelve class rooms has long been too small for the number of students in the faculty, making it necessary for students to overflow to almost all the other buildings on the campus.

Artsmen through the years have become somewhat attached to their present home, but few of them would be sorry to see it replaced by a more adequate structure.

The Arts Building could be overcrowded.

SCIENCE BUILDING

... but all of them Artsmen

There's a man in there somewhere.

The centre of the university, both physically, and from the point of view of importance is the Science Building. Here, in the first of the permanent buildings to be constructed on the campus, undergrads and graduates from all three faculties work together to assist Canada's war effort.

In this building are housed many of the labs where students working on wartime theses have contributed much towards the shortening of the war against the Axis powers.

Despite shortage of laboratory equipment, and vacancies in the instructional staff, there has been no relaxation of the high standards of scholarship demanded of UBC's scientists.

For the benefit of those Arts students who have never made the acquaintance of the Science Building, it contains class labs for Chemistry, Physics, and Bacteriology, as well as private laboratories where students and professors labour over original, and often secret experiments.

BROCK HALL

Relaxing easy in the Brock . . .

Their first view of the Brock.

Brock Hall was erected in 1938 in memory of the late Dean Reginald W. Brock and his wife Mildred Brock. It was planned for the purpose of centering in it the extra curricular life in which Dean Brock had taken such an active part during his lifetime.

In the main social lounge those students who wish relaxation from the grind of studying can find magazines to read, records to play and friends with whom to play bridge. This same lounge is also the focal point for dances and events sponsored by such groups as Phrateres and W.S., etc.

The Alma Mater Society, the organ of student government, conducts its business in the offices on the main floor in the south end of the building.

In the Red Cross rooms and the Phrateres room the co-eds of UBC help out with the war effort, doing their share of knitting and sewing.

Organizations such as the Publications Board, the Radio Society, the Mamooks and the Camera Club occupy their own offices in the basement of the Brock.

ARMOURY

... if the Army will let you

In the Armoury, another student building, approximately 1400 members of the Canadian Officers Training Corps and the University Naval Training Division learn the rudiments of modern warfare.

Until the middle of January this year the Armoury was also the headquarters of the UBC University Air Squadron, but with the strength decrease carried out by the air force, the UAS was disbanded.

Since it was built in the fall of 1941 the Armoury has been the centre of all military activity on the campus. In 1943 it was enlarged to include, in addition to the drill hall, orderly rooms for the navy and the army, locker rooms, lecture rooms, and officers mess.

This building was paid for mainly by the students in the COTC, who have voluntarily waived their pay each year since 1928, to contribute toward such a building. This money was put into a fund which rapidly accumulated until 1941, when with the aid of a grant from the provincial government the building was finally constructed.

We do sell for less . . .

GYMNASIUM

Some Campus Athletics . . .

The Gymnasium is the home of the Thunderbirds, UBC's perennial contenders for the Canadian Basketball Championship. It is also the scene of their many epic battles with the Pat Bay Gremlins, and with visiting American colleges.

This year it also houses another Senior A team, the Chiefs, along with the Thunderbees, and the Intermediate B team.

Cadets of the Canadian Officers Training Corps make use of the gym also, although somewhat reluctantly, for their weekly physical education periods.

Coeds have playground games and keep fit classes there, as part of their war-work schedule.

The Gymnasium is a product of student endeavour. It was built with funds raised by the students themselves, and was turned over to the University by the Alma Mater Society on its completion in 1929.

It contains a fully equipped first-aid room, as well as a kitchen, and equipment, locker, shower, and dressing rooms.

STADIUM

. . . survive rigours of war

For the honour of the Blue and Gold.

Because of the curtailment of most of the major sports at the university for the duration, the Stadium, once the centre of campus athletic activity, now stands empty and deserted, visited only by the few remaining rugby and track enthusiasts in their regular practices.

This white concrete building, now divested of its gay banners, remains a reminder to a University at war of the days when noisy, gaily-clad crowds of students thronged the grandstand and overflowed the bleachers to cheer their Alma Mater on to victory.

It carries the memory of thrilling Victoria Invasions, and of hard fought football battles with colleges from across the border and beyond the Rockies. It has seen also the excitement of intercollegiate track meets.

Now, however, the jumping pits lie unused, and the cinder track seldom feels the thrusts of running spikes, its only brief return to glory coming with the intramural cross-country race each fall.

The first formal installation of a President of UBC

The average student on the UBC campus manages to get through his four or five years at Varsity without coming into unduly close contact with the university administration.

In former years he met the President on his first and last days at Varsity, and perhaps saw the Chancellor from a distance at the annual Homecoming Game, but that was almost the full extent of his dealings with the leaders of his university.

"The old order changeth yielding place to new," and this year the retirement of President L. S. Klinck, after 25 years at the University, and the appointment of the new President, Dr. Norman A. M. MacKenzie, have brought this office well into the limelight from the student's point of view.

The few months that Dr. MacKenzie has been with us have been enough to show that he is going to remain in the limelight. Not only has he established a presidential precedent by finding time to give lectures in his own field, government, but also he has demonstrated the depth of his interest in student affairs by his willingness to address campus clubs and to take part in their discussions.

President MacKenzie likes to refer to himself as a freshman. If such is the case then he is easily the most distinguished and accomplished freshman on the campus today.

He was born in Cumberland County, Nova Scotia. He was educated first at Pictou Academy and later at the Universities of Dalhousie, Harvard, and Cambridge. He forsook his studies to serve in World War I. His achievements on the battlefield were as brilliant as his career following the armistice.

In 1921, after studying law both here and abroad, he received his degree of LL.D. at Dalhousie and was called to the bar at Gray's Inn, London.

President MacKenzie has always been greatly interested in public affairs, particularly in the international sense. Besides being connected with the League of Nations Society, and with the Canadian Institute of International Affairs he held the post of legal adviser to the International Labour Office at Geneva. He has attended many conferences concerning international law both on the continent, and in the Orient.

The four years preceding his presidency at the University of New Brunswick Dr. MacKenzie spent as professor of international law at the University of Toronto.

Last year he succeeded Charles Vining as chairman of Canada's Wartime Information Board. Even with his numerous presidential duties he wrote articles for legal journals in Canada, in Britain and in the United States.

President MacKenzie made history again at his installation this fall when he was the first president to be formally installed in his office at a full Congregation.

Delegates from 45 universities in Canada and the United States attended the ceremony.

He was officially welcomed by Chancellor E. W. Hamber, himself a newcomer, and by Dr. Isabel MacInnes, for the faculty, Brigadier Sherwood Lett, D.S.O., M.C., E.D., for the alumni, and Dick Bibbs, for the Alma Mater Society.

in Calgary, and afterwards in Vancouver. He later became European representative with headquarters in London.

Mr. Hamber has acted on many boards . . . he is the governor of the Vancouver General Hospital, president of the Vancouver Branch of the Canadian Red Cross, honorary life member of the Canadian Legion, a fellow of the Royal Colonial Institute, president of the Boy Scout Association, honorary Colonel of the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada, and of the Fifth B.C. Coast Brigade.

In 1937, Mr. Hamber was made a Knight of the Order of St. John, the investiture taking place in Buckingham Palace.

In his youth, the new Chancellor was an outstanding athlete. He twice competed in the Diamond Sculls at Henley, captained the Argonauts of Toronto and played on Stanley Cup teams in ice hockey, when they won several Canadian and American championships.

As Chancellor he is the chairman of the Board of Governors, a body which, with the Senate, supervises the administration of the University's affairs.

This group meets once every month in the Administration building. Their function is chiefly financial, and includes the establishment of bursaries, and the acceptance of scholarships and gifts.

UBC's new chancellor installs . . .

Of the many changes which have taken place at the University during the past year one of the most important was the appointment of the new Chancellor.

With the passing of our beloved Dr. R. E. McKechnie, the students and faculty of UBC welcomed the former Lieutenant-Governor of the province, the Hon. Eric W. Hamber, as the new Chancellor.

Mr. Hamber, who is one of the outstanding public men in Canada today, has always shown a great interest in the affairs of the University. During his terms as Lieutenant-Governor he held the position of visitor to the University.

His first official act as Chancellor was to install the new President, Dr. Norman A. M. MacKenzie, at the Congregation ceremony, in October.

E. W. Hamber was born in Winnipeg, Manitoba, attended St. John's College and the University of Manitoba. After working in the Dominion Bank in Winnipeg he was appointed manager of the bank

They maintain the campus buildings and grounds, sanctioning the construction of new buildings, and have charge of the appointment of new members of the staff of the University.

The board contains a varied personnel, including graduates, lawyers, and business men. Two of the members, the Chancellor and the President of the University, are ex-officio, three are chosen from the University Senate, and the remaining six are appointed for a six-year term by the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council.

These citizens guide the University through the tangles of the business and financial world. Theirs is the great task of assuring that the University will carry out its function as the only source of higher learning in the province. It is a great responsibility . . . in capable hands.

The fall Congregation last October, held in place of the usual convocation for the granting of degrees to the graduating students, comprised three ceremonies, the installation of the new president, Dr. N. A. M. MacKenzie, the conferring of honorary degrees to four internationally known guests of the University, and also the annual granting of degrees to the students who have taken their courses in the summer session.

This congregation made history in that it is the first congregation to be held at this University in which a president has been installed into office. Dr. MacKenzie is, in fact, the first of UBC's three presidents to be formally installed.

President MacKenzie was officially welcomed into his office by the Honourable Eric W. Hamber, and after several other speeches by delegates, he gave the congregation address.

The arrangements for the congregation have been in the hands of the committee under Dr. Todd of the classics department for the past eight years.

In his address, the president made reference to those grads and undergrads who have given their lives in the present conflict. He mentioned the opportunities for development at this University, his chief reason for coming here, and followed with the welcome to the new chancellor. He gave his views on education, its place in the University, and society, and finally a few words about the president and his place in the University.

In the course of the ceremony, Dr. Isabel MacInnes spoke for the faculty. Brig. Sherwood Lett, D.S.O., M.C., E.D., represented the alumni, and R. M. Bibbs, president of the Alma Mater Society, said a few words for the student body.

The following men received the honorary Degree of Doctor of Laws: The Hon. Ray Atherton, American Ambassador to Canada; Hon. Liu Shih Shun, Ambassador of the Republic of China to Canada; Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald, British High Commissioner to Canada; and Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, Commanding Officer, Pacific Command.

The degree for the Rt. Hon. Mr. MacDonald was conferred in absentia; he was represented by Mr. Gerald Selous, British Trade Commissioner, who received the degree for the Hon. Mr. MacDonald.

Immediately after the presentation of the honorary degrees, the graduating students of the University received their degrees from the hands of the new Chancellor, E. W. Hamber.

Attending the congregation, besides the majority of the members of the University, were delegates from almost fifty universities and colleges in Canada and the United States.

The inauguration committee, an entirely new organization on this campus, was under the chairmanship of Dean D. Buchanan.

Dean Buchanan, popular head of Arts and Science, has led his ever-growing faculty to the end of another successful year. Completing his twenty-fourth year at UBC, the Dean has behind him many years of experience in handling problems peculiar to this university. Graduates and students alike realize that his foresight and energy have played a large part in its growth and development.

In his capacity as Dean, Dr. Buchanan co-ordinates and integrates the work of the various department heads. All problems relative to the faculty go through his office. Any changes in regulations are brought to him for consideration. He acts as an intermediary, not only between students and staff, but also between the heads of the departments and the President.

... carry on with duties in wartime

Perhaps the biggest problem facing him this year has been the arranging of courses for returned men. UBC welcomed many veterans at various times throughout the year. A special course was arranged for those arriving at the beginning of the second term. Conferring with their department heads, the deans of the different faculties devised a plan by which returned men would be enabled to complete one year's work by the end of the summer school term. A special winter session was inaugurated and a new course planned for the months of May and June. By taking these and attending summer school, veterans will begin next year's fall term with one year's work to their credit.

Dean Buchanan explained these courses to the men and offered to assist them in adjusting their curricula. He told them of the various courses open to the students wishing to attain degrees in Arts and Science. This faculty offers a wider range of subjects than any other on the campus.

Designed to give the students a well-rounded education, the Arts Faculty offers everything from mathematics and economics to history and the study of the classics. Abstract thought and the study of humanity and social problems, the study of the earth, its composition and makeup, the history of its peoples and their languages, are only a few of the fields open for study. Under the faculty of Arts and Science, the Education department offers a Teacher Training Course for all those interested in this profession. The University Extension Department gives various courses to off-campus students.

Thus the returned men will have a wide choice of subjects. Their study will be of use whether they desire a general education, or wish to follow a specific course of study leading to a profession. In wartime the demand for trained men and women has become urgent. Students trained in government, finance and statistics will find positions waiting for them. The city is particularly short of teachers for its elementary and high schools. For those conversant in modern languages, diplomatic and government posts are available.

An Arts course, then, is not composed of a mere conglomeration of useless knowledge. It not only gives students a valuable background for future work, but it also trains them to step immediately into a profession.

the faculty of applied science has worked overtime to aid the war effort. Almost every department is doing some government assigned problem in essential research. The chemical engineering department is working on several secret projects. The department of mining and metallurgy is working in close co-operation with the B.C. War Metals Research Board.

Affable Dean John N. Finlayson is proud of the work his faculty is doing. In addition to the concrete contributions of the various departments, the entire staff is working tirelessly to turn out engineers particularly adapted to cope with the problems of a world at war.

This year most of the graduating class in applied science will go into the armed forces as technical officers. The mechanical and electrical engineers will go into the RCEME and the RCCS, and the mining and civil engineers will join the RCE. Members of the UNTD can join the RCNVR as special branch officers. Other graduates may find openings in the technical branches of the armed forces or take employment in essential industry.

Fourth year students may apply to take summer training with technical branches of the Army and Navy. Those accepted will spend the summer in the service of their choice on active service and return to complete their final year in the fall.

In any case the faculty and students endeavour to serve their country to the best of their ability, realizing that they are placed in the position where their talents can be used to greatest advantage, be it industry or the armed forces.

In spite of all the work done to aid the war the faculty does not lose sight of the fact that the greatest job of the trained engineer and scientist will come with the cessation of hostilities, when the gigantic task of post-war re-construction will have to be faced. The need for skilled technicians is apparent, and it is towards the end of producing these men that the faculty is working.

Much of the success of the faculty of applied science is due in no small part to the feeling of camaraderie that exists between the staff and students. At the meetings of the various technical societies the professors meet the undergraduates and discuss the problems facing the engineer when he graduates.

As a result of these informal meetings the students and faculty develop a spirit of co-operation which is much more conducive to learning than the old master and pupil attitude prevalent in some places.

The faculty of applied science continues its tradition of service and co-operation with an eye to the future and an ear to the ground.

During the past three years, the faculty of Agriculture, in co-operation with the Federal and Provincial departments, has striven to solve agricultural problems arising through wartime conditions. In the last year, moreover, plans have been devised to assist the expansion of agricultural facilities in the post-war period.

Head of this up and coming faculty is the brilliant Dean F. Clement. Besides his various duties as Dean, Dr. Clement heads the department of Agricultural economics.

The faculty of Agriculture includes the departments of Agronomy, Horticulture, Animal Husbandry, Poultry and Dairying.

Research work of the Agronomy department is concerned chiefly with problems of soil and plant improvement. Under Dr. Laird, the physical, chemical and biological properties of soils are being studied with regard to variations from the normal and means of correcting such variations. Research on the fertility and fertilizer requirements of Fraser Valley soils is being carried out under Dr. Brink. In co-operation with the Federal Department of Agriculture and private growers, the department of Agronomy is conducting research on potato quality series in an attempt to maintain virus free potatoes. Dr. Moe has been concerned chiefly with the testing and propagation of an alfalfa hybrid which has proven most useful for pasture purposes in the province. During the past three years, the department has produced over four tons of seed of the principal field crops annually which have been made available to the farmers of British Columbia.

The work of the department of Horticulture has included investigations of problems of production of coast orchards. Research has also been done concerning vitamin assays on canned and dehydrated products and growth stimulation by various growth promoting substances. Investigations into the decline of the Cuthbert Raspberry have been successfully carried out and means to combat this have been recommended. Possible future problems, concerned with post-war development in British Columbia include the location of new areas and the production of new strains and varieties and the intensifying and maintaining production in old established areas.

The Animal Husbandry Department have begun a group of long-term projects. Information is being accumulated on the relative merits of different food-stuffs and rations in relation to the economic aspects of finishing farm animals for markets.

Suggested animal industrial problems include artificial insemination, mating systems and feed quality studies. Laboratory devices of the department are available to veterinarians and the general public in the diagnosis of disease, post-mortem examinations and disease investigations.

teria were the principal problems studied by the Poultry Department during the last few years. Poultry ration studies have proved of practical importance in Canada as regards the poultry industry.

The Dairy Department, headed by Dr. Eagles, has aided considerably in solving wartime demands for increased production of high quality dairy products. During the past few years, the surface taint defect in butter has been investigated and successful preventions have been suggested. In co-operation with the Provincial Department of Agriculture, research regarding the cheese making industry in North Okanagan has been carried out. A solution to the problems of control of mastitis in dairy cattle is being sought in this year's research work.

Hampered by both the lack of laboratory facilities and trained technical workers, the Faculty of Agriculture is nevertheless making great strides in research and in solving the specific problems of our own province.

Smiling and generous, Dorothy Mawdsley, Dean of Women, is always willing to give aid and advice to a troubled or bewildered co-ed.

Succeeding Dean Mary L. Bollert as Dean of Women in 1941, she has been the friend and counselor of every woman student that has attended the University for the last four years.

No problem is too small or trouble too trivial to receive her considerate attention. In the vocational guidance and the social and intellectual life of the co-eds she has been of inestimable aid.

To out-of-town students she has been an indispensable helper. She has drawn up a list of approved boarding houses and has personally inspected all living quarters offered to University students.

In the many fields of endeavour that the women students have partaken of throughout the year, she has always been a source of enthusiasm and assistance.

As honorary president of Phrateres, she has taken a keen interest in the activities of this club, and has often aided in its many and varied functions and drives.

Another of Dean Mawdsley's interests this year is Buttercupping Incorporated. This organization, founded several years ago, is an employment bureau for girls who wish to mind children in the evenings. Dean Mawdsley has carefully supervised the hours, wages and transportation of all girls who wished to partake of the opportunity.

Registration, distribution, advice, information — these and many other subjects come under the jurisdiction of Charles B. Wood, Registrar.

Information concerning every student in the University may be found in the registrar's office. These facts are collected and tabulated by Mr. Wood and his assistants.

Tabulation and distribution of examination results is another of his duties.

To every student desiring information regarding his course at Varsity, Mr. Wood can give the necessary facts. Knowledge of every subject offered by the University is part of his duty as registrar.

Students desiring the entrance requirements of other universities can also get this information from Mr. Wood.

Thus, Mr. Wood has his place in almost every field of university life.

As custodian of the University's 130,000 books and over 100,000 pamphlets, William K. Lambe is perhaps one of the University's busiest men.

As Librarian, he must have a vast fund of information to answer each student with his or her varied quests for knowledge.

With his diligence and care, Mr. Lambe keeps the library a well functioning source of knowledge and an excellent place of study.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

The Students' Council of the Alma Mater Society of the University of British Columbia.

Council struggles through storm . . .

The student government of UBC has long been a tribute to the forward-looking administration of the University and the free, progressive spirit of the student body. There are few, if any, universities in Canada or the United States where the students have as much freedom in the control of their own affairs. This year's council has been particularly aware of this great privilege and have done everything in their power to maintain and increase the scope of student services.

The student council is the controlling executive of all student activity conducted in the name of the Alma Mater Society. Through them all funds are dispursed to the various clubs and undergraduate faculties for the promotion of their activities. The nine student officers composing Students' Council are elected in the spring of the year and they have the benefit of the student council's experience by sitting with them in session for several meetings before they actually take office.

During the year, the alert student council, aware of the expanding needs of the University, aroused interest in plans to revise the membership of council so as to secure more adequate representation and more assurance of continuity. This demonstrates the general tone of council which has always been progressive and eager to receive new ideas.

Of great importance this year was the Mutual Insurance plan which was the work of students' council. Under this scheme of mutual insurance students have protection for small damages and the hope is that in future years, with the accumulation of was Dick Bibbs. His activities as president are certainly worthy of praise for the cool-headed manner in which he controlled the relations between students and administration, student organizations and students and their student governments. The public relations of the student body fall upon him as an important duty and his handling of it was faultless. It was Bibbs, who through his work on last year's council, as junior member, preserved the necessary link between new and old council and enabled this year's council to step into its official duties with a minimum of difficulty and an assurance that the machinery of student government would become operative even before the fall term officially started. The success of this year's council must be attributed to Bibb's hard work and ability as a student leader and organizer.

The other top executive position, that of treasurer, was handled this year by Ken Creighton. This position requires great steadiness and is the most responsible of student positions. All the budgets for the organizations under the AMS which operate over the whole field of student activity were cleared through him and were fairly allotted. His competence and level-headedness are a model for future student executives.

The president and treasurer were honoured this year by being chosen president and secretary respectively, of the National Federation of Canadian University Students at a conference of student officers from all Canadian universities. UBC may be justly proud of this honor.

Barbara Greene

Gordon Bertram

Helen Morgan, secretary of the AMS this year, served as an invaluable aid to the president, and especially the treasurer, in the compilation of minutes and by serving on numerous committees throughout the year. Her winning personality and social prowess served as a constant boost to tired council members.

The LSE executive, which is the controlling organization of all the clubs on the campus, was headed this year by Gordon Bertram who did a fine job of co-ordinating the activities of the many clubs, numbering more than fifty. He promoted new clubs and it was his policy to encourage the old ones in their functions. His excellent work as the chairman of the Special Events Committee deserves a great deal of praise.

Alan Ainsworth

The position of MUS president was this year filled by Les Raphael who was in charge of the discipline on the campus. As this year was well-behaved, the functions of the discipline committee were seldom called into play. The co-ordination of the social activities on the campus was another of his jobs and there were no clashes of events due to this function.

The WUS was handled this year by Barbara Green, one of the most dynamic members of council. Her activities, which were mostly concerned with promoting the war work of the women's groups on the campus, were handled with great efficiency and the results were evident in the increased strength of the women's undergraduate society as a functional group. Their war work was aided by a reorganization of the executive to include fourteen faculty representatives.

Present set-up survives thus far . . .

Dirty nine mugs.

Women's athletic activities were again controlled by Lois Reid who maintained the inter-mural sports among the women at a very high level. Her work was very important in its co-operation with WUS activities which were greatly enhanced by her capable support.

George Rush was in control of the men's athletic directorate and he did an excellent job of the administration of sports in wartime. The difficulties under which he had to labor did not prevent him from organizing two championship teams this year, one in English rugby and the other in track. His inter-mural program continued to encourage activity in sports among the students.

The junior member, Alan Ainsworth, that jack-of-all-trades and odd-job man of council, performed his activities with skill and showed a desire to co-operate and help all student organizations. His clean-up campaign served to disembellish the campus of much waste material. He handled Homecoming this year with great success.

Although the Men's Undergraduate Society's president, Les Raphael, tried to argue before council that the MUS be abolished because he had nothing to do, the MUS did accomplish something this year.

The Fall Ball was the result of the faculty executives under the supervision of the MUS working in conjunction with WUS.

The Men's Undergraduate Society is responsible for the Freshman orientation program held at the beginning of the year. This year after a lapse of two years there was a formal Freshman initiation as far as the boys were concerned. They had to roll up one of their pant legs.

This year saw the award for the first year of the Honorary Activities Award. This award is given to those students who have served with distinction in any offices under the jurisdiction of any department of Students' Council.

The committee which makes this award is made up of the heads of the various undergraduate societies, the president of WUS and the president of MUS who acts as chairman.

The MUS president is also responsible for the discipline on the campus. This year has been a good one for discipline. Only outbreak was the incident when one faculty turned the fire hose upon another faculty in an inter-faculty fracas. The culprits were dealt with quickly and effectively.

The energetic W.U.S. executive, under the able leadership of Barbara Greene, has put forth a program this year which has been both varied and interesting.

W.U.S. has conducted a well-balanced activities program. The annual Hi-Jinx with its theme "And so to bed" proved to be an hilarious hen party. The Splash party, a W.U.S., W.A.A. production, was held at the Y.M.C.A. pool. Here the various faculties had plenty of opportunity to fight to the bitter end for the highest number of points.

The social program included the Frosh Tea Dance, Fashion show, the annual Co-ed, and luncheon. The Tea Dance held in the fall to increase Red Cross funds was a two fold success, financially and socially. The W.U.S. Fashion show gave the co-eds on the campus a chance to see and plan their future wardrobes.

The WUS Co-ed, held March 1, climaxed a successful year.

WUS not only carried through its functions with great success, but also aided many other organizations and drives on the campus. Its part in the success of War Aid Council, ISS Week and the Nurses' Old Clothes Drive shows how this year's executive have really got down to work in putting over its program.

Barbara Greene's assistants have been Audrey Buchanan as vice-president; Mary Chapman as secretary, and Thelma Behnsen as treasurer. For the purposes of representation and organization, the

The past year has been a memorable one in the annals of the Arts Undergraduate Society. With energetic Gordy Campbell as president, the Artsmen staged their first All-Arts pep meet in years. Held in Arts 100, it was an outstanding event in the revitalization of the Arts faculty.

A week of Arts activities was planned for the second week in January, but unfortunately the BCER strike curtailed many of the features. However, under difficulties, an Arts Ubyyssey was published, under the editorship of Vice-President Sidney Flavelle. Paul Robeson, who was appearing at that time in "Othello" downtown, very kindly consented to visit the campus, and gave an inspiring speech on the equality of various races. An added highlight was his rendition of several Negro spirituals.

The Arts Undergrad executive co-operated with the Sciencemen in sponsoring a debate between the Redshirts and "the men of culture." Topic for the debate was "resolved that an Arts education better prepares the student for a useful life than a Science education."

President Gordy Campbell left at Christmas time to give his services to the Navy, and Vice-President Sidney Flavelle carried on his job with equal capability. Other positions on the executive were filled by: Anne Brown, secretary, and Doug Clark, marshal.

Living up to their reputation of being the most spirited group at the University, the Engineers' Undergraduate Society spent another busy year keeping alive the traditions of the Faculty of Applied Science. Claiming to co-ordinate the extra-curricular activities of the engineers the society exerts a profound influence on the campus. The men in red sweaters are conspicuous everywhere.

Early in the fall more than 400 enthusiastic engineers crowded the Commodore for the annual Science Banquet.

In order to get her degree a student must spend two years at Varsity followed by three years of training at the hospital and one additional year at Varsity to complete her course.

The course is a long one. The final year in Public Health consists of lectures, labs, and field work at the many Public Health centres all over the province. The girls in Teaching and Supervision must take classes at both the Vancouver General and St. Paul's hospitals.

an informal dance in the Brock where the sons of the slide rule cavorted to the strains of Don Williamson's orchestra.

It was February, however, that saw the EUS go all out to stage the annual Science Ball. The event was heralded by a special Ubysey printed in red ink and an all-red pep meet where something new was added in the form of a skit presented by members of the Nurses Undergraduate Society. The only thing that was not in red was the balance sheet.

Proving that social activities were not their main interest, EUS sponsored a series of vocational talks in the spring.

The Nurses Undergraduate Society was headed by Kristine Adams. The executive is a large one but it is necessary to bring the girls in the hospital and on the campus together. Vice-president was Anne B. Baker; secretary, Vivian Golos; treasurer, Lynn Torrance. On the executive are representatives from each year, a social convener, an athletic and a publicity representative.

the Aggie Undergraduate Society has successfully handled the social and business activities of the Aggie faculty.

The main event of the fall term was the Field Day, an afternoon of judging and other competition, on the University farm.

Last term's annual fall banquet that will go down in Aggie history as the first Aggie function that President MacKenzie attended.

The last Aggie function of the year was the Agasiz field trip at which Aggie students saw how the man behind the plow lives and works on a modern farm.

After many years as the Commerce Club, the Commerce students formed a Commerce Undergraduate Society. This transformation was due to the hard work of its president this year, Stuart Porteus.

This transformation into an undergraduate society was necessitated by the increasing enrolment in the Commerce Faculty. Included with the ordinary Commerce students are those students who are taking the double degree in Commerce and Forestry.

Early in the fall the Commerce students held a dance for all Commerce students at the Stanley Park Pavilion with the Air Force band playing. The decorations for the dance were strictly in line with all accounting students' nightmares.

In the spring the Commerce Faculty hold a banquet which is their most important event of the year.

What's the good of being a record class if you can't overcrowd the Brock?

Record Frosh class welcomed to . . .

As one freshman to another.

Last September nearly 800 lowly, uneducated freshmen, straight from the farewell embraces of high schools all over the province, and appearing even more inhuman, in their ghoulish green goggles, than freshmen usually do, invaded the broad campus of UBC.

They swamped the overloaded busses, packed the lecture rooms, filled the Brock lounge at all times of the day, and generally crowded themselves into an already overcrowded campus. The newcomers strolled about the walks and gardens, and down the Malls, always accompanied by the derisive catcalls of the sophomores.

The grim prospect of the war, however, was too close and menacing for either the freshmen or the sophomores to take much time off for the traditional rivalry. There were one or two skirmishes, accompanied by a few duckings in the pond, and a snake parade in town, but compared to pre-war years, the class of '48 was received into the university fold with little fuss, and few bruises.

They seem to want that regalia.

Look out, boys, they're out to get you.

This largest Frosh class on record, however, entered into their freshmen week, arranged for their entertainment by upperclassmen, with a great deal of enthusiasm and vigor. They were welcomed by the president, the military commanders, and the heads of the student organizations. They attended tea dances and pep meets, were introduced to the caf, and won the Frosh-Soph basketball game.

Finally they wound up the initiation period with the Frosh Reception in the Brock Hall, where they were introduced to the new president, himself in his freshman year at UBC, and to the Deans. Then they were divested of their initiation regalia and were received as full-fledged undergraduates of The University of British Columbia.

The traditional Homecoming ceremonies were cut down from the usual week to one day this year, and all the efforts of the Homecoming Committee were exerted to make that day the best remembered of all the Homecomings.

The banners were unfurled and the blue and gold welcome mats were laid down for all graduates who could attend on Saturday, October 28th.

The busy day began with an English rugger game between a Vancouver All-Star team and the University Thunderbirds, in the Varsity stadium, Chancellor Hamber making the kick-off.

Next on the program was a mass Alumnae meeting in the Brock, just after the game, when all the grads reminisced over their memories of their years at UBC.

Later the alums were the guests of the University at a banquet in Brock Hall and were officially welcomed back to the University by President N. A. M. MacKenzie. The highlight of the program came after the banquet when the committee presented a real old-time "Music Hall" Potlatch in which eleven gorgeous co-eds performed a can-can chorus which was enthusiastically approved by the audience. A vocalist trilled some old-time songs along with the chorus, such as "Daddy Wouldn't Buy Me a Bow-Wow" and "The Band Played On." Then a barber-shop quartet took the spotlight with several well rendered songs suitable for the occasion, with the audience joining in on the choruses. The Players Club wound up the program with a presentation of a stirring mellerdramer entitled "He Ain't Done Right by Our Nell."

A big dance in the Brock Hall immediately after this put a grand climax to the evening. Rhys Williams orchestra was in attendance.

The potlatch was an innovation this year, and the committee in charge expressed the hope that it would be supported in a similar manner every year, so that it might grow into a real old UBC tradition.

Beauty and the Beast.

Back in the good old days, before there were any military parades, or compulsory war work, a varsity student's life was just one long round of social functions, most of them formal, with perhaps just a little bit of studying thrown in for variety.

Many and varied were the parties and entertainments which a student might attend, or so we are told, but Queen of them all was that grand old lady of all festivities, the Junior Prom.

In 1942 a war baby, the Red Cross Ball, sprouted suddenly into a full fledged beauty to rival the old queen, and so completely did she win the patriotic hearts of students that by the next year the Junior Prom was no more, a wartime casualty.

This year another of the reigning beauties of the pre-war days disappeared from Varsity life. The Arts-Aggie, old-time contender for top honours in UBC society, found itself replaced by a non-faculty function, the Undergrad Formal.

This affair, more popularly known as the Fall Ball, had its origin in the lack of Arts spirit which was evident at the beginning of the term. When the Artsmen failed in two tries to elect an executive the students' council ruled that the faculty should henceforward be politically defunct, and as a result of this decision the Arts-Aggie had to be cancelled, and a non-faculty dance substituted for it.

The Artsmen finally did manage to flaunt the council ruling and elect an executive, but the idea of the open formal had caught on, and it was decided to go through with it.

To promote interest in the Ball the committee decided on a competition between faculty representatives for the title of Miss UBC. The eight candidates paraded before students at a pep meet, which included a skit topping anything the sciencemen have produced this year, and music by Rhys Thomas' orchestra.

Highlight of the ball was the election of Peggy Holt, representing Commerce, as Miss UBC. Her prize at the moment of victory was a dance with Dean Buchanon.

Other candidates were: Dale Coughlin, second years Arts; Phyllis Ney, fourth year Arts; Joan Clarke, third year Arts; Jackie Robinson, first year Arts; Joan Stevens, Agriculture; Sylvia Dyson, Home Economics, and Dolores Traer, Nursing.

Caricatures of each candidate decorated the ball-room. Master of ceremonies after a fashion was Les Raphael, while music was provided by Barney Olson and his orchestra.

In charge of the arrangements were: Ted Chambers, Harry Pitts, Bill Clark, Les Wong, Stu Porteus, Herb Capozzi, Norah Baldwin, Lorna Shields, John Farrow, Sally Panton, George Hamilton, Maxine Johnson, Roy Morton, Barbara Greene, Les Raphael, and Ruth Parnum.

All proceeds from the ball were donated to the War Aid Council.

Thursday, February 8, was the big day for the engineers. Scienemen dusted off their wagons, hitched up their horses, called their taxicabs, and started off on their Great Trek to the Commodore.

Once there they set up their famous table decorations, which each year become more like exhibition exhibits, and settled down to have a good time.

Winners of the coveted prize (especially so in these days of rationing) were the fifth-year civil engineers, with their scale model of the Quebec bridge, but easily the most popular with the dancers were the kissometer and the strength testing machine devised by the electricals.

To help provide atmosphere a large mural, depicting an industrial scene, and traditional cartoons of scienemen were posted around the dance floor.

Arrangements for the ball were capably handled by the Engineers Undergraduate Society, under the leadership of Doc Morton. The art work was done by Doug Shadbolt.

The highlight of the evening, of course, was the selection of the Ball Queen from the candidates nominated by each of the various sororities. After being brought onto the dance floor in a huge snowball, the candidates paraded in front of the assembled students. After a vote by secret ballot, Sally Panton, of Kappa Kappa Gamma, was chosen as Queen of the Red Cross Ball of 1945.

The proceeds for the Red Cross Ball amounted to $4400, almost $1500 more than the previous year.

The pass features this year, planned by the Special Events Committee, under the chairmanship of Gordon Bertram, were received very enthusiastically by the students.

The committee planned and carried out an interesting and varied series of musical concerts at noon hours under this pass system. Among the guest artists who appeared on the campus sponsored by the committee were: Frances James, internationally-known soprano; John Haddad, tenor; Adolph Koldofsky, violinist, and Gertrude Huntley Green, pianist, as well as many other well-known performers.

One very well received feature was the Homecoming Potlatch, an innovation this year, which included a real old-time "Can-Can" chorus with eleven beautiful co-eds and a silver throated soloist singing a number of old-time tunes, also a barbershop quartette, a very special song team, and a stirring melodrama presented by the Players Club, all accompanied by the Air Force band under W/O Micelli.

The basketball games also formed a part of the pass feature program, and although the gymnasium was not always very full, those who did attend the thrilling games this season saw some of the best basketball that has been played at this university in the last few years.

The student night at the fall plays was another very well-attended pass feature. The plays were received enthusiastically, if somewhat noisily, by the students who packed the auditorium to its capacity to see them. The plays were: In the Zone, Waltz Time, and Johnny Dunne.

Society production, "The Gondoliers," was also procured by presentation of student passes, and as many students as the auditorium could hold availed themselves of this opportunity to see the famous Gilbert and Sullivan operetta.

Other events of the year that students could gain admission to by presentation of their passes were the Brock Hall mixers, held at the beginning of every month, whenever the social calendar allowed, and the famous, or infamous, noon hour pep meets.

Student thespians take time . . .

This year's edition of the UBC Players' Club proved to be in an experimental mood.

True, the Green Roomers have never allowed themselves to sink too deeply into any form of rut, but still their actions in the past year have been somewhat radical.

Their first departure from conventional form came with the fall plays in November. Along with two fairly normal productions they presented to the critical gaze of the theatre-going public an unusual play by the name of "Johnny Dunne".

This play, written by a student of the Banff school of drama, employs a speech choir, which not only sing background music, and take occasional spoken parts in the play, but also provide the sound effects.

The second departure was a step in what might be called the opposite direction. In recent years the spring production has usually been the work of some modern playwright, such as Shaw, or O'Neil, but this year the club went Shakespearian, with "The Taming of the Shrew".

For this comedy the Players' Club constructed a traverse curtain, similar to that used in "Othello", during Paul Robeson's appearance here. A new cyclorama, procured despite wartime difficulties, was also used.

So successful was the production of Johnny Dunne that the club was asked to play it on the CBC.

Players' Club fools around with English.

A scene from "In the Zone."

The other two plays produced at Christmas were "In the Zone", a drama of the submarine zone, by Eugene O'Neil, and "Waltz Time", by Philip Johnson, a story of the introduction of the waltz into England.

"In the Zone" was one of the most difficult plays ever attempted by the club at a fall performance. The all male cast did an excellent job of portraying the intense feeling of suspense which the merchant sailors feel in the submarine zone.

It was the good work done in this play and the other two fall productions which convinced the executive that the club had sufficient talent to attempt the Shakespearian play.

Making up for "Johnny Dunne."

The cast of "The Shrew", as the club refers to it, consisted of Jim Argue as Petruchio; Beverly Wilson, as Katherin; Jerry Williamson, as Hortensio; Gerald Newman, as Baptista; Derek Ralston, as Lucentio; Dorothy Lowther, as Bianca; Greg Miller, as Tranio; George Baldwin as Grumio, and John Niewdorp, as Gremio.

Heading the Green Room executive this year was Ted English, who was largely responsible for the successful season. Other members were Mary Fagan, vice-president; Caroline Johnson, secretary; Peter McGregor-Eadie, business manager; and Jack Duffus, treasurer.

Mussoc goes Italian to warble . . .

The usual overwhelming success attended the Musical Society's production this year. Staged before an enthusiastic audience, Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Gondoliers" brought down the house. Soloists and chorus, with the assistance of the orchestra, gave a performance of the highest order. Music, costumes and comedy combined to make the presentation one of the outstanding events of the year.

Much credit must be given to Mr. C. Haydn Williams who has completed his twentieth year as director. It was he who presided over disheartening practices, the hectic final rehearsal, gave last-minute instructions and soothed jittery soloists.

Quite apart from the yearly production, the Musical Society, in conjunction with the Radio Society, has supplied the talent for a fifteen-minute programme put over the air each week. It has also been responsible for the noon hour concert recordings held in the Brock Hall.

The Social Calendar of the Musical Society was a particularly full one. During the first term the Opening Banquet and the Fall Formal were held.

Little brother of the Musical Society, with no pretensions of high musical ability, is the Glee Club.

The members, people who "just like to sing," meet regularly to try their voices at everything from college songs to three-part harmonies.

The prime achievement of the Glee Club this year was the chorus and the barbershop quartet which sang with great gusto at the Homecoming Potlatch. Their enthusiastic reception has led them to hope for greater expansion next year.

This year's executive of the Glee Club consisted of: Manager, Norma Stowe; assistant manager, Colleen Brandon; publicity manager, Mary Clark; secretary-treasurer, Helen Liehman.

This year saw the formation of UBC's first string orchestra. The result of many months of weary planning on the part of its conductor, Gregory Miller, the orchestra was hailed with great enthusiasm by the students. Never before at UBC had classical music been played by an all-student orchestra.

For the past few years tentative plans had been made but never before had enough talent and initiative been found to ensure the success of such a venture. Shortage of funds, lack of a place to practise, and the difficulty of procuring instruments were all obstacles to be overcome.

The two concerts held during the course of the year were huge successes. The thundering applause which followed was a clear indication of student appreciation of fine music.

It is hoped that this year's string orchestra will form the nucleus of the full symphony orchestra planned for next year. Organization and rehearsals will continue during the summer so that a concert may be held early in the first term of next year.

Many thanks are due to Dr. G. G. Sedgewick whose keen interest and encouragement have greatly facilitated the formation of the orchestra.

. . . Big Time Campus Organizers

The Mamook Club is the service organization on the campus. Every day members paint signs and posters relating to all activities on the campus from a meeting of the Swimming Club to the Red Cross Ball. To date about 700 posters have been made and delivered. Besides this occupation, Mamooks are employed as announcers over the Brock P.A. system, ticket sellers, ushers and cheer leaders at pep meets.

Membership on a competitive basis is no longer restricted to men only. In the past few years women have proved that they are equal to the men in any activity, especially cheer leading.

Mamooks sponsored one of the big events of the 1944-45 year, the Hospital Carnival. This huge affair lasted three days and contained among other things, a pep meet, a tea dance and a big dance to wind up the events. All proceeds went for hospital aid funds. Those on the committee were Bob Armstrong, Vivian Golos, Frances Hillier, Catherine Anderson, Geoff Fawcus, Arra Aho, Ernie Hall and Ron Grantham.

The executive consisted of: President, Ron Grantham, and secretary, Frances Hillier.

Those doing poster work were Bob Nickells, Malchia Sanford, Bob Armstrong, Grace MacIndoe, Mary Lou Jefferies and Geoff Fawcus—a returned R.C.A.F. man who contributed some of the best work of the year.

Mock Parliament leaders talk . . .

Members of the Parliamentary Forum experienced an energetic year under the dynamic leadership of Jim Wilson as president. Fall and Spring Mock Parliaments, Frosh Debates and McGoun Cup Debates went on as usual while weekly debates on Thursday noons replaced the former bi-weekly schedule.

The annual Western Universities' debating feature, the McGoun Cup Debates, resulted in a victory for Alberta University with UBC running a close second. Stuart Porteus and Morris Berson travelled to Manitoba University at Winnipeg and won on the negative of the resolution, "Resolved that a tolerant attitude should be adopted towards post-war Germany." On the affirmative side, Don Holmes and Jim Clement lost in Vancouver against the excellent Alberta team of J. H. Shoctor and H. W. Harries.

In Vancouver, Prof. F. G. C. Wood acted as chairman while the judges were the Chief Justice Wendell B. Farris, Leon J. Ladner and Kenneth Drury.

Frosh Debates against Victoria College with Harriet Hochman and Bob Harwood on the negative over in Victoria and Rosemary Hodgins and Alan Roehrer at UBC on the affirmative against Victoria College's visiting team resulted in a victory for UBC in both cities. The topic, "Resolved that university education is inadequate and fails to meet the needs of present-day students," was finally publicly discussed after two postponements because of the street car strike and the unsatisfactory dates. Ron Shepherd and Peter Castran of Vic College put up a very good case in Vancouver against UBC's home team.

In accordance with the usual enthusiastic reception, the Fall and Spring Mock Parliaments were "howling" successes. Last November found Jim Wilson from Baffin Land as Prime Minister and leader of the Independents with Hal Daykin as Leader of the Opposition of three parties and C.C.F. Leader. The government was finally ousted.

In March, the government of the Mock Parliament, Progressive Conservatives under Doug Belyea as Prime Minister, lost out at the close of the session by one contested vote to the Opposition under Les Raphael, C.C.F. party leader.

A new feature, very favorably received, was the round-table discussion of Capitalism vs. Socialism with Jim Wilson as chairman. Les Raphael and Marjorie Smith upheld Capitalism against Socialism as forwarded by Hal Daykin and Bob Harwood.

With Prof. Wood as their ever-helpful honorary president, the executive of the Parliamentary Forum under Jim Wilson ably carried out their duties.

Jim Clement was first vice-president; Hal Daykin was second vice-president; Brian Burke was third vice-president; secretary was Hugh MacLeod; treasurer was Bob Harwood, and Rosemary Hodgins handled the publicity.

U.B.C.'s Canadian Legion Branch . . .

In the fall of 1943 the first group of ex-servicemen started to return to the University. Some of the men had previously been attending, others had not. These men felt the need of something to act as a liaison between them and the University. There is a vast difference between the intense activity on the battle-front and easy going, plodding life of the university.

Spring of '44 saw the formation under Bernie Weston of an organization of ex-servicemen on the campus. The Canadian University Returned Men's Association was the first organization of its type at any university in the country. At its inception the club was a minor club of the L.S.E.

The aim of the club was to promote the general welfare of the ex-servicemen on the campus. For example, the club tried to help the men with their social problems. It was to orient the men into the University.

The club has grown from a small group numbering just fourteen to seventy-two in the fall of '44, till now with the addition of the air force men, the organization numbers two hundred and twelve.

During the year there have been two smokers and a dance. Regular meetings have been held at which have been speakers such as Ft. Lt. Sinclair, M.P., Mr. MacNicol, Col. Shrum, President MacKenzie and representatives from the Junior Board of Trade who are interested in the veterans' welfare. Presidents of the various major clubs on the campus addressed the men at the beginning of the term to acquaint them with the activities on the campus.

The executive of the Canadian University Returned Men's Association for the past year has been: President, George Peirson; first vice-president, Gordon Kersey; second vice-president, Walter Ferguson; secretary-treasurer, Sid Poulton. The chairmen of the various committees were: Fred Tessman, chairman of rehabilitation; chairman of education, Denis Smith; social chairman, Harold Lindsay.

At the conclusion of the year the organization had expanded to such an extent that it was accepted as the UBC branch of the Canadian Legion, declaring itself completely independent of the Alma Mater Society.

. . . Finding work for one and all

The Employment Bureau, under the able directorship of Brian Burke, has this year found employment, both part time and regular work, for more students than it has ever done in previous years.

Beginning in the fall, the bureau has found work for the students during the session, the Christmas holidays, and at the end of the year, it has found work for graduates or helped to give the students an idea of the work that they could enter with training.

Helping in the bureau this year were Helen Duncan, Naomi Grigg, Tony Orton and Harold Sigalet.

URS beats up the air waves . . .

With the end of the term of 1944, the Radio Society saw the graduation of its zany part-character Norm Campbell. The reins of the Radio Society fell to Eric Ajello, the writer of the scripts of 1944 season.

An unfortunate series of coincidences prevented the Radio Society from entering the entertainment world in 1945. The main reason was the lack of definite word from CKWX, the mainstay of the weekly programs, about the time that would be available after that station had joined the Mutual Network. The only program that carried on from the year before was the Mussoc's weekly show from CJOR.

Early in the fall term, it was decided that the conditions of operation in Room G in the agriculture building were unsatisfactory, so the search for room began. The book-exchange office was taken over as the production office, and the Photography Room was made available by the AMS to convert to a studio for local programs. When the promise of the studio became a reality, the technical staff went to work on the construction of a five-channel amplifier and mixer board for use in the studio. Investigation was made into the best type of studio to build, and finally plans were drawn up by the end of the year, and presented to the council for action.

The production department under Keith Cutler went ahead on the writing of numerous scripts for radio shows, one of these series went on the air over CBR before the Xmas holidays.

At the end of the year, the radio society finds itself with many of its members working at the local stations:

Eric Ajello and Loyd Brydon are at CKMO.

Keith Cutler and Tommy Tomlinson are working at CJOR.

Executive this year was: President, E. A. Ajello; business manager and acting president, W. B. Watts; production manager, Keith Cutler; technical manager, Gordon Carter; chief announcer, Don McDougall.

PUBLICATIONS

John Tom Scott

Scott leads junior journalists . . .

Progress was the keynote in the Publications Board this year.

After fourteen years of semi-weekly publication, The Ubyyssey finally decided that it might as well act up to its position as official organ of the third largest student body in Canada, and burst out in three issues a week.

In addition, The Ubyyssey joined the British United Press service, thus providing the students with last-minute news of both world events and sports, and giving the BUP its only morning outlet in Vancouver.

Speeded up to publish 60 issues instead of the usual 40 the Publications Board lost much of its informality and general rowdiness, as members found that the new schedule called for hard work, and lots of it.

The man behind these world-shaking changes was dynamic John Tom Scott, editor-in-chief of the Publications Board.

Dark, fiery, JT started things up immediately after his appointment last spring, when he announced that the next year would see the return of the Totem.

Over the holidays he really got going in earnest, arranging for the three issues a week, which makes The Ubyyssey third among Canadian campus news-

Denis Blunden

Mardee Dundas

Cal Whitehead

papers, only two others of which, the McGill Daily, and Varsity, also a daily, are published more than twice a week.

Besides the BUP affiliation, other innovations were the system of dummied page make-up, and a new stream-lined make-up on the editorial page.

One of the oldest ambitions of the Publications Board was realized with the acquisition of a king-size, custom-built U desk, now the pride of the Ubyssy staff.

Editorials for three papers a week, plus keeping an unusually boisterous staff under control, was a stiff assignment for any man, but JT managed to keep the campus thinking, with caustic and constructive comment, and escaped with only a minimum of damage to his beloved pub.

Presiding over the majestic new city desk were three very different types of journalists. Senior Editors Marion Dundas, Denis Blunden and Cal Whitehead laboured, each in his or her own way, to produce consistently high grade issues of UBC's favorite campus newspaper. Mardee used her experience as news manager to good effect to get her share of stories for the Thursday paper, was the only woman columnist on the paper, with her "last word."

Blunden, known to reporters and editors alike as

. . . through three issues a week

Ron Haggert, CUP Editor.

Luke Moyle

"db", scorned to give more than the occasional assignment, taking what came his way each Monday morning and writing the rest himself. Students never knew what to expect from his "in all seriousness", which might be just that, but usually wasn't.

Third man on the desk was Cal Whitehead, a mere sophomore. Despite his lack of experience Cal managed to hold his end up with papers which improved steadily as the year progressed. Although not primarily a columnist he occasionally got something off his chest with "people and things".

The Ubysey survived for part of the year without the services of a News Editor, but shortly after Christmas, when senior editors were finding increasing difficulty in keeping campus coverage co-ordinated, Marian Ball was promoted from CUP to take over the post. Succeeding her on the Canadian University beat was freshman Ron Haggart, who also produced the occasional column.

The sports department was the home of Luke Moyls, the busiest man on the campus. Besides editing three sport pages a week and writing most of his own stories, he produced thrice weekly his "The Gospel, according to Luke Moyls", was senior basketball manager, wrote sports for the News Herald, and tried to hold on to a first class average in Maths and Physics. As a sideline he also produced the Totem sports section.

Assisting him with the sports were Associate Editor Laurie Dyer and sport reporters Shelagh Wheeler, Fred Crombie, Cy Appleby and Fred Morrow.

Working in conjunction with the senior editors were associates Bruce Bewell, Nancy Macdonald, Bill Stewart, Ron Haggart, Don Stainsby and Helen Worth, and assistants Tom Preston, Edith Angove, Rosemary Hodgins, Jean MacFarlane, Harry Castiloux, Mac Brockman, John MacBride and Harry Allen.

Occasional columns came from Don Stainsby,

Greg Miller, Bruce Bewell, and, at the beginning of the year, John Green.

Staff cartoonist was Buzz Walker, and Pub Secretary, Bette Anderson.

In the Totem Office, reduced in size to make room for the new city desk, confusion reigned from the beginning of the year until the end. Sophomore editor John Green, who tackled the job with no yearbook experience whatever, spent the entire year trying to find out what the score was, and trying to get some work out of his photographers.

The Totem returned to campus, bigger than ever, after an absence due to war shortages of three years, and found no one on the staff who had ever seen a Totem put out, let alone worked on one. Bugbears known to yearbook editors since time immemorial were all new to the Totem staff, but despite this handicap they managed to squeeze under the wire with the biggest and the most widely circulated Totem in the history of the University.

Green, blessed with an extremely light course, spent most of his waking hours pounding a typewriter in the pub, or dashing madly around between the print shop and the engravers, trying to eliminate bugs which were continually cropping up. Slightly mad to start with, only a perverted sense of humour kept him from becoming a raving lunatic before the term was over.

First lieutenant on the Totem staff was associate editor Bill Stewart. Another sophomore, he rose with Green from the lowly depths of an assistant editorship on The Ubysey. Together they arranged for photographs, wrote and edited copy, persecuted laggard reporters, and made life miserable for the engraving company staff. Despite a heavy pre-med course, Stewart managed to spend most of his afternoons sorting pictures and checking page proofs.

As is usual with a college yearbook it was the pictures which really told the story. Number one man behind the lens this year was Art Jones, who took most of the pictures for the book, and in addition had the unpleasant task of juggling film quotas and all too scarce flash bulbs.

Art and his Speed Graphic were easily two of the best-known personalities on the campus as they attended all dances, games and pep-meets and managed to be on hand whenever anything was happening. Art also did the photographic tasks for The Ubysey.

A godsend to the overworked photography staff was Cecil Yip, who wandered into the pub one day to buy a Totem and ended up by becoming the Totem's number two photographer. With his $300 Lieca he shot more than 500 pictures in three weeks of February to clear away most of the sports and war effort sections.

Other photographers who worked throughout the year were scienceman Stewe Bowell, returned man

Bob Steiner, sport photographers Brian Jackson and Fred Grover, and Fred Maurer, who was responsible for most of the class scrap.

So hot did the pace become in the early spring that the photographers were unable to develop and print their pictures as fast as they were taking them and this work had to be done commercially.

Most of the work of making arrangements for photographs fell to photography secretary Pat Worthington, who also handled the taking of individual photos in the fall. Pat spent so much time on the phone that his left ear almost disappeared into his head.

This year saw the introduction in the Totem of a new section, attempting to trace the activities of UBC boys, both grads and undergrads overseas. Compiling this information was the job of Nancy MacDonald, the pub's only triple threat editor, who edited the directory, was an associate on The Ubysey, and did a large part of the work on the Totem. She also handled, without assistance, the job of distributing Ubyseys around the campus.

Assisting her in obtaining pictures for the Honour Roll section, and covering work on sections dealing with the nurses in the Totem, was Frances Turnbull.

Sports was technically under the supervision of Luke Moyls, but as he had so little time to devote to it most of the work was delegated to Pat Worthington. Luke did come through, however, after The Ubysey cut down to one issue a week in March, and did most of the layouts for the section.

Other members of the staff were Jean MacFarlane, who handled the grad write-ups and the name index; Jane Seymour, who shattered tradition, precedent, and established practice by always turning her assignments in on time; Bruce Bewell, who handled Engineering write-ups; Eleanor Bryant, who looked after the Aggies; Helen Worth, Don Stainsby and Harry Allen.

This year the Totem did without a business manager, as ads were sold by a commercial concern. The sales campaign was capably handled by Deane Sherman, who did his difficult job with extreme ease.

Owing to an increased enrolment, and an apparent surplus of money on the campus, no extensive drive was necessary to sell the book although the pub did put on a hilarious pep meet early in the term.

Besides the Totem and The Ubyyssey the Publications Board is the home of two little publications, both regarded as rather a nuisance by pubsters—the Student Directory and the Tillicum.

The Tillicum is a concise little booklet issued to all freshmen at the beginning of the initiation week, at the same time as they buy their regalias. It contains all the information necessary for the frosh to really get acquainted with their campus, information which no amount of orientation programs could give them.

Within its covers are included outlines of the organization of all campus clubs, and explanation of the machinery of student government, a copy of the code of the Alma Mater Society, and the words to UBC's songs and yells.

This year the Tillicum had a scientific flavour, as Bruce Bewell, who was also responsible for the Science issue of The Ubyyssey, and who holds the title of Pub Engineer, took over from Grahame Thompson who joined the army.

Under the guiding hand of "bb" the Tillicum came out bigger than in previous years, with a little more of everything, especially pictures, songs, and Totie cuts.

Bruce's one assistant was Anna White, who also left the Pub for the army at Christmas, after serving as associate editor on the Tuesday paper.

The Student Directory, which solves the problem of phoning Varsity friends who are boarding, or whose phones are in their parents' names, was this year mainly the work of Nancy Macdonald.

Easily the most uninteresting job on the Pub, the directory is just one mass of routine typing, checking, rechecking, and complaints. The book was late this year, mainly because of the greatly increased number of students and the delay in receiving registration cards, hitting the campus about the middle of November. Contrary to the procedure last year, a nominal fee was charged.

Associate editor was Janet Kerr, with assistants Betty Brooks, Tom Preston, Jean MacFarlane and Ross Henderson.

Lt.-Col. G. M. Shrum

Military instructors and officers . . .

Students in the three services at UBC this year got a taste of what the peace will mean for them. Although the end of the war in Europe is only just in sight, and the end of that in Japan seems still years away, the machinery to reconvert the University services to a peacetime basis is already in motion.

The first step was the passing by the Joint Services Board, which decides policy in connection with all university services, of a ruling which allowed all cadets with two years' training in the service concerned, and two camps, to take training on a reduced basis, with only 60 hours' work a year instead of the previously required 110 hours.

This ruling affected, at first, only the COTC, since neither the UNTD nor the UAS had been in existence for two years.

After Christmas, however, the commanders of Varsity units were advised that the phrase "in the unit concerned" had been removed from the ruling. This meant that many of the Navy boys who had had previous service in the COTC were now eligible for reduced training, and since they had already done more than 60 hours during the fall they were given the opportunity to discontinue training altogether during the rest of the year.

During the Christmas holidays, word was received from air force headquarters in Ottawa that the University Air Squadrons were to be disbanded, and shortly after returning to Varsity the air force boys turned in their uniforms, received half a year's pay, and reported to the COTC.

Keeping the training functioning smoothly despite the many changes was Lt.-Col. Gordon M. Shrum, commanding officer of the COTC and director of military training on the campus. It was his job to keep the activities of the campus services co-ordinated, and to assume responsibility for all the activities of the students soldiers and sailors.

Under the leadership of Lt. Comm. (S.B.) H. M. MacIlroy, RCNVR, the University Naval Training Division on the campus worked hard to complete the extensive training syllabus laid down for it by naval headquarters, despite loss of time owing to the street car strike.

The year was highlighted by two big events, the uniform Navy Dance in the Brock March 17, and the inspection of the unit by Commodore Brock, Commanding Officer Naval Divisions, on March 21.

The dance was a great success, with over one hundred couples, including several of the instructors from HMCS Discovery, and music by the Discovery dance band.

The unit performed creditably at the inspection also, and received the sincere commendation of the commodore for their excellent work. The guard of honor, resplendent in belts and gaiters, was especially praised.

The UNTD this year was made up of some 70 old hands from last year, and a slightly greater number of new arrivals. They were divided into two companies, with the men of the Monday night division all parading together as part of A company.

A company men continued training where they left off last year with a more advanced course, while B company started at the bottom. Most of the students were enrolled as ordinary seamen, but the mechanical and electrical engineers enlisted as stokers.

The training was under the direction of Lieut. Nash, from HMCS Discovery, a veteran of last year's training staff. Assisting him were WO Bennet, CPO Ross, and several petty officers, leading hands, and able seamen, all from Discovery.

Doing the routine work in the UNTD office at the beginning of the year was Stoker F. Rustad, who was later replaced by O/S Simpson.

Work covered by the student sailors during the year included semaphore, flashing, bends and hitches, boatwork, types of ships, naval law, navigation, naval strategy and tactics, compass and helm, naval traditions and history, and a great variety of other nautical subjects, along with the routine marching and rifle drill.

Training was taken both on the campus and at Discovery. A much appreciated improvement over last year was the use of Navy trucks to take the students down to the ship on Saturday afternoons.

A considerable number of UNTD ratings went active shortly after Christmas, for various reasons, and many more signed up to leave at the completion of the term if the Navy would take them.

This year's training in the UBC Contingent of the COTC took on new interest with the addition of courses in motor transport and advanced weapon training.

Three new organizations were set up in the form of Pioneer, Signals and Carrier Platoons.

Under the able guidance of the battle-tried and experienced hand of Chief Training Officer Major Bob Bonner, a graduate of only four years ago, and Captain Osborne, the training covered most branches of small arms training as well as the regular smartening-up routine of parade ground drill.

The Freshman class was outfitted and in uniform in record time this year after drawing their equipment from the newly renovated "Q.M. Stores," systematically run by Capt. Currie and RQMS McChord, and later by RQMS Glenn.

The training staff of "Ack-I's" under Sgt.-Major Jack Coles included such notables as CSM "Goody" Goodland, CSM C. P. Armour, and the newest addition, Sgt. "Junior" Morrison, recently of the Sicilian Campaign.

Head man in the Corps, RSM Jim Phelps continually pleaded with his CSM's for faster roll calls, cleaner web belts, smarter sergeants, fall-ins, and dismissals.

Several changes in the uniform worn by the unit were put into effect, generally adding to the "Esprit de Corps." These included discontinuing the wearing of the conspicuous white cap and shoulder flashes by all ranks, trading the former khaki COTC badges for the smart new blue and gold models worn above the Canada badges, and lastly, the wearing by instructors of "Those Things of Beauty," the polished and blankoed web belts.

Basic training was started anew in January with the formation of "H" company composed entirely of lecture-hardened men of the disbanded UAS.

Led by Sqdn.-Ldr. J. A. Harris, the University Air Squadron on the campus started out in the fall where it left off last year with courses in navigation, meteorology, signals, airmanship, aircraft recogni-

The unit lost many of its boys to the active air force over the holidays, but was joined by an approximately equal number of new arrivals, and plans for training until the end of the year were already formulated.

After Christmas, however, word was received that the unit was to disband, and, after a farewell banquet attended by officers from all services, the boys were turned over to the tender mercies of the COTC. There they got new khaki uniforms to replace their snappy air force blue ones, and with their own non-coms, translated to army ranks, soon became full-fledged men of the COTC.

Under the capable leadership of Commandant J. Hallamore and Adjutant Nora Neilson, the Red Cross Corps finished another successful year.

First year girls in the Corps did their war work here on the campus, First Aid being one of the most popular courses with knitting and sewing coming next.

Second year girls were delegated to far more interesting and varied work. Many went down each week to the Blood Donors Clinic. Others visited the convalescents at Union College and other hospitals or did social service work at the Alexandra Neighborhood House.

Besides their various war work duties, the girls in the Red Cross Corps did a certain number of hours drill each week and as a result have turned out one of the smartest looking military groups on the campus.

At the end of this year the War Aid Council, under chairman Ted Chambers, was able to send to the Red Cross some $7500 as the result of student effort at UBC. The bulk of the sum was made up of the profits of the Red Cross Ball and the Fall Ball, together with money raised by the Women's Undergraduate Society and the voluntary waiving of caution money receipts.

The successful management of International Student Service Week funds was another responsibility of the Council.

by the student body serves as one more illustration of the excellence of the University's war effort.

UBC co-eds still have their sleeves rolled up as the third year of self-imposed, compulsory war program is completed. Realizing that a healthy body is of primary importance for efficiency, war work A, compulsory for everyone, consisted in one hour a week of physical education. Archery, volleyball, grass hockey, badminton and tennis were sports chosen by co-eds. A "Keep Fit" program provided more specialized gym work. Students taking the teachers training course found folk dancing especially helpful. The basic folk dances of every country were taught, as well as ballroom dancing.

More serious war work came under the heading of war work B. One hour a week was spent in Red Cross knitting and sewing. Many preferred as an alternative to take specialized courses. War Time Foods, War Time Clothing, Typing, Community Service, Home Nursing, and First Aid, were the courses offered.

The C.R.C.C. was formed to provide a group of uniformed and disciplined women to assist in the war effort and to be prepared for war emergencies. UBC with many other universities across the Dominion has a university detachment. Dr. Sylvia Thrupp and Dr. Joyce Hallamore played a large part in organizing the detachment.

As a result of basic training the fifty co-ed corps members have acquired a military swing. Thirty members who completed their basic training last year have been assisting at Gordon House, the Blood Donors Clinic and the Annex of the Point Grey Military Hospital. The new members took courses in Home Nursing and First Aid to complete their basic training, as well as their three hours weekly of service.

Under their enthusiastic leader, Barbara Greene, the extra compulsory activities of WUS have provided fun as well as funds for the Red Cross. These included a WUS fashion show, and three tea dances. An Old Clothes Drive for V Bomb Victims wound up with a tea dance. Admission was one article of clothing or ten cents.

and Miss Moore has been Women's Physical Education Director since 1936.

Although Maury is a football coach at heart since he majored in this sport in his college days, he concentrated his coaching abilities on basketball and track this year and produced champions in both fields. The Thunderbird basketball team took both the City and Provincial Championships while the cross-country team again captured the Pacific Coast Cross-Country Championship.

However, Mr. Van Vliet's ambitions really lie with his physical education and intramural programs. He again took charge of the COTC physical education program which kept the gym filled most of the time.

As a result, there was little time for indoor intramurals and girls' sports. But the men's intramurals were again successful with keen competition throughout the year. The girls' athletic program also thrived under the direction of Miss Moore.

With four instructresses, Mrs. Roper, Helen Matheson, Lois Reid and Ada McLaren, the girls' program

Athletics at UBC enjoyed one of the most successful wartime seasons this year, with basketball and English rugby leading in university sport circles. Great credit for this year's success is due to UBC's leaders in athletics.

Maury Van Vliet and Miss Moore have done much for sports on this campus, and the 1944-45 session was no exception for them. Mr. Van Vliet is in his tenth year as Director of Physical Education at UBC included classes in archery, badminton, folk dancing, nursing, recreation leadership, keep fit, playground games and basketball.

Besides directing this program and a full-scale intramural schedule, Miss Moore also supervised the girls' extra-mural sports, of which grass hockey rose to considerable prominence this year. Basketball and archery also enjoyed successful seasons.

letic Directorate. All teams are under its direct supervision, and the Directorate is in turn responsible to the Students' Council.

Chairman of the M.A.D. this year was George Rush, president of the Men's Athletic Association. Two faculty members, Dr. Dickson and Dr. Gunning, were on the board, as well as Maury Van Vliet, Director of Physical Education. Jack McKercher, who acted as secretary, and Bud McLeod were the two student representatives.

Dissatisfied with the present athletic setup at UBC, the M.A.D. set up a special committee to investigate conditions both on this campus and on others of comparable size. The committee also looked into the treasurer's files to investigate the financial situation with regard to sports.

The committee began work early in January and published their findings in a 12-page report in March. Briefly, their recommendations included a reconstitution of the M.A.D. for improved representation, and a separate fund for athletics which would be administered by the M.A.D.

The special committee included George Rush, M.A.D. chairman; Maury Van Vliet, Dr. Dickson, Jack McKercher, Bruce Yorke and Luke Moyls, sports editor of the Ubyesey.

Another important group in UBC's athletics is the Awards Committee. This body has the difficult task of deciding which athletes have been most outstanding and have contributed most to any one team during the year.

The committee was composed of Dr. Dickson, Dr. Gunning, Maury Van Vliet, Herb Smith and Ole Bakken.

The Men's Big Block Club was of great service to campus sports this year. The main function of the club is to provide willing helpers for organizing and promoting athletic activities at UBC. Big Block sweaters also indicate the ushers at most sports

The club held its seventh annual Homecoming Luncheon in the Brock Hall to welcome graduate Big Block members to Homecoming. The club is composed of all students who have received the major athletic award, the block letters "BC", in any sport either as a player or as a senior manager.

This year's executive consisted of Maury Van Vliet, honorary president; Herb Smith, president; and Ole Bakken, vice-president.

In girls' sports, the Women's Athletic Association is very fortunate in having Miss Moore as director of the women's athletic activities. Introducing classes which are both useful and enjoyable to university coeds, Miss Moore has become a popular leader of girls' athletics.

The old sport of archery is more than a pastime with Miss Moore. She has shown such enthusiasm and has proven such a capable coach that interest in this sport reached a new high this year.

The Women's Athletic Directorate has direct control and administration of all women's athletics on the campus. It acts in an advisory capacity and is in turn responsible to the Students' Council.

This year's Directorate was composed of Dean Mawdsley, Dr. Hallamore, Miss Moore, and student members Lois Reid, president of the Women's Athletic Association; Kay Deas, Ada McLarin and Mary Ann Norton.

On a parallel with the men's setup, the women also have an Awards Committee. The group included Dean Mawdsley, Miss Moore, Lois Reid, Irene Pierce, Ada McLarin and Mary Ann Norton.

Varsity Thunderbirds roll on . . .

Managers Gardy Gardom and Luke Moyls

Battling for the sports spotlight on the UBC campus this year were a pair of championship Thunderbird squads, one on the basketball courts and the other on the rugby field.

The Thunderbird basketballers enjoyed their most successful season since the 1941 "Wonder Team" went through to the Canadian Championship. Because of studies, this year's squad stopped after taking the Vancouver and the Provincial Titles.

Highlight of the year was the Oregon series on December 18 and 19 when the mighty 'Birds entertained the powerful University of Oregon Webfoots in a two-game exhibition in the UBC Gym.

Although they lost both games, 55-51 and 63-59, the Blue and Gold firmly established themselves as Pacific Coast Conference material as they were barely nosed out by the Oregon Ducks who went on to win the Coast Conference title this spring.

Another highlight was their New Year's tour into Washington. Travelling to Seattle, Bremerton and Spokane, the students came out with an even split in four games.

In their first game, at Seattle, Alpine Dairy, Northwest A.A.U. champions for the past three years, handed them a 46-23 trouncing in the Civic Auditorium, but the 'Birds made up for that loss by defeating the Bremerton Navy Yard Rockets, 45-35, the following night.

The Blue and Gold quintet suffered its worst defeat of the season at the hands of the National Service Champions, Fort Lewis, in the opening game, 90-43. Gail Bishop, All-American star, tallied 46 points in that tilt.

But the Spokane fans took to the Thunderbirds in the New Year's Day finale as the Canadian team displayed championship form in trouncing Fort George Wright, 67-35.

The team opened up their season in great form as they travelled to Victoria to eke out a 36-35 victory over Pat Bay's former Dominion Champions, the Gremlins.

Although the Flyers won the return game at Varsity by a 67-65 score on December 4th, the Thunderbirds established their superiority over Pat Bay when they notched a 29-17 count in their half of the Prisoners-of-War All-Star contest on March 7.

In the Vancouver and District League, the 'Birds walked away with the title, losing only two games in their schedule of 16, one to Lauries Pie-Rates immediately after the Oregon series, and another to Higbies in the spring.

They scared Higbies out of the playoffs with a 58-18 win in the first semi-final game, then went on to win three straight games from Lauries in the Vancouver and B.C. finals, finishing off with one of their most decisive triumphs, 65-41.

Star of the Thunderbird lineup was Sandy Robertson, who again led the league scoring with 194 points in 15 games. During the Varsity season he piled up a total of 455 points in 31 games.

Art Stilwell and Ron Weber were the dependable guards, Ole Bakken, Ed Ryan and Robertson took turns at the pivot spot, while Pat McGeer and Reg Clarkson filled the forward spots. Bud McLeod and Ken Thomas substituted as guards.

Bruce Yorke and Art Johnson also started with the Thunderbirds, but declined the spot of glory to coach the younger Freshmen on the UBC Chiefs. Gordy Sykes, another Thunderbird, retired from basketball early in November due to pressure of work.

Maury Van Vliet looked after the Senior A coaching duties and was assisted by Senior Manager Luke Moyls and Thunderbird manager Gardy Gardom.

UBC's Inter A Chiefs go big time . . .

Varsity's entry into the Intermediate A Basketball League had to work overtime this year, and if fate had not been so cruel, the UBC Chiefs might have come up with the Inter A crown.

At the beginning of the year, a group of boys with basketball on the brain banded together and formed the most spirited team in hoopla circles, the UBC Chiefs.

Bruce Yorke was the leader who first took the boys in hand, and the Chiefs were in fine shape by the time the season opened on the night of Homecoming.

The squad was an Intermediate A team, but they ran into their first problem when it was discovered that there were only two teams in this division, themselves and Highbies, a commercial team coached by Ted Milton.

However, Maury Van Vliet saw the Chiefs in action at one of their practices, and later he voiced his hopes that the Freshman squad might see action in Senior A company. Since there were only two senior quintets, the Chiefs did just that when they and Highbies entered the higher bracket.

The Frosh outfit had plenty of good material including two of last year's Inter A championship Arrow team. Gerry Stevenson and Fred Bossons proved their worth to the Tribe as outstanding players during the season.

Bruce Yorke

Filling the centre spot was big Herb Capozzi, former pivotman with the Vancouver College crew which was runner-up to Arrows in the previous year. Herb won the highest honor of the league when he was presented with the Most Valuable Player trophy. In UBC's final tilt, he tied the Varsity scoring record of 26 points.

First string forwards were Bob Haas, who started off the season as though he was going to break all scoring records, and Gerry Stevenson, the former Arrow star.

Fred Bossons played guard along with Bruce Yorke, the man who virtually moulded the team together. Bruce did an admirable job as playing coach throughout the first half of the season before he asked Art Johnson to take over the coaching duties in January.

Besides these stalwarts, the team also boasted a pair of valuable substitutes, Lorne Swanson and Bill Fenn.

After Christmas, the Blue and Gold team was strengthened by the addition of three returned Air Force boys. They were Bill McDowell, Ian Blake and Jack Cowan, all of whom saw action in the Minor Leagues last year. Manager Laurie Dyer finishes off the roster of 12 men.

In the Christmas holidays the Chiefs travelled into the Interior and won all three of their games. Then the team returned and settled down to a stiff season under their new coach, Art Johnson. Art worked untiringly for the squad and almost succeeded in finishing the year with a championship club.

The Spring schedule found them falling into third spot behind a rising Laurie outfit which finished three wins ahead of them in final standings.

All in all, it was a great season for the Chiefs in spite of their heart-breaking playoffs.

UBC's English rugby teams astounded local rugger enthusiasts as they went through their most outstanding season and captured all four of the major championships of the Province.

For the first time in UBC's history, the rugger squads took all the silverware, including the Miller Cup, the Tisdall Trophy, the Rounsefel Cup and the prized McKechnie Cup.

In the pre-Christmas season, the University entered two teams in the Vancouver Rugby Football League to make up a four-team roster composed of Varsity, UBC, Ex-Britannia and Vancouver Rowing Club.

The Varsity fifteen went through the schedule without suffering a single defeat, although they played to a draw on two occasions, to walk off with the Miller Cup, first of their long string of prizes. The other squad, UBC, did not fare as well as the first team, mainly because of injuries to their lineup.

When the players resumed their rugby activities after the Christmas holidays, they entered the same league again to compete for the Tisdall Trophy. Besides the previously mentioned four squads, Ex-Byng also entered a crew which was made up mostly of Lord Byng high school players.

Again the Varsity squad remained unbeaten as they went on to add the Tisdall Trophy to their collection. The UBC squad fared much better in this loop as they ended in a second-place tie with Ex-Britannia.

The impregnable Varsity lineup included Bob Lawson, Scott Kerr, Al Jones, Joe Pegues, Earl Butterworth, Cam Coady, Johnny Hicks and Bill Wallace as forwards; and Johnny Wheeler, Ted Taylor, Jack McKercher, Bob Croll, Tom McCusker, Jack Armour and Jim Hughes formed the backfield.

The individual scoring leaders in the Miller and Tisdall Cup races were fullback Jim Hughes, with 16 points to his credit; wing three-quarter Tom McCusker with five tries for a total of 15, and UBC's kicking expert, Harry Kabush, with 14 big counters.

The crowning achievement of the season came in Victoria when the Varsity Thunderbirds stopped the Victoria Crimson Tide, 9 to 6, to win the famed McKechnie Cup, symbol of rugby supremacy in the Province, for the first time since 1937.

Freshman star, Bob Croll, was the hero of the battle as he ran 50 yards to score the winning points with only two minutes left in the game. Tom McCusker and Keith MacDonald scored Varsity's two other tries.

The Thunderbirds won all four of their games in the McKechnie Cup competition, and except for the close tilt on the Island, they weren't seriously threatened throughout the season.

In the first game of the series, Dan Doswell's "wonder team" trampled the Crimson Tide with a 14-0 shutout at Varsity Stadium. Croll scored twice and Maury Moyls and Tom McCusker chalked up the other points. Jim Hughes completed the scoring with a convert.

The followed the decisive victory over the Vancouver Reps, who had a powerful lineup this year. Coming from behind, the Students pounded out a 16-9 triumphs as they went wild in the second half. Croll led the scoring with a try and a convert.

The Thunderbirds were slow in getting started when they met the Reps again in the final game of the season, but again they came from behind and romped to a 17-6 victory over the Vancouver fifteen.

Jack Armour, a Canadian football player at heart, displayed tremendous drive in this battle as he went over the line twice. Keith MacDonald, Tom McCusker and Johnny Hicks also tallied while Harry Kabush converted one.

While the mighty 'Birds were running away with the McKechnie Cup, the UBC Intermediates split a two-game series with two Victoria College teams. The Blue and Gold dropped the first one, 7 to 3, in the Capital City, but came back with a 4-3 triumph in the final tilt.

To top off the season, the Varsity squad swamped the Victoria Naval College outfit, 24 to 11, to complete their collection of silverware with the addition of the Rounsefel Cup. Croll again starred for Varsity as he scored three tries and a convert.

Although the Thunderbirds' lineup changed many times during the season, their regular starting lineup included forwards Bob Lawson, Dave Morgan, Al Jones, Harry Kabush, Keith MacDonald, Joe Pegues, Gerry Lockhart and Bill Wallace. The star backfield had Gerry Jenvey, Maury Moyls, Jack McKercher, Bob Croll, Len Mitten, Tom McCusker, and Jim Hughes. Substitutes were Cam Coady and Don Ralston.

Captains of the teams were Jack McKercher for both Varsity and the Thunderbirds, and Harry Kabush for UBC. Much praise is due to this year's coach, Dan Doswell, former mentor of the Victoria Reps. He was capably assisted by Senior Manager Geoff Hill and the veteran McKercher. Geoff's brother, Ernie, looked after the managerial duties for UBC.

. . . UBC soccer squads thrive again

The University of British Columbia entered two teams in the Vancouver and District Soccer League: the Senior team, known as the Varsity Eleven, with Don Petrie as captain; and the second club known as UBC consisting of freshmen and a few stand-bys, with Bob Robinson as captain.

Varsity's line-up included Emil Tautorus and "Buck Benny", who began as Varsity's full-backs, but after two months of fine play, left the University.

Don Petrie, captain of the Varsity Club, held the position as a brilliant centre-half, coming to Varsity from St. Saviours of the Coast League. Don is considered the best centre-half in the Vancouver V & D League.

Herb Smith ably tended goal for Varsity, this marking his fifth year with the team. Herbie is ranked as one of the foremost goalies in the V & D League.

Fred Hole started out the season at centre-forward, but after Emil Tautorus left, Fred returned to his old position as full-back. While at centre-forward, Fred was Varsity's chief goal-getter.

Pat Campbell is playing his third season with the Varsity team at inside right.

As managers of the soccer club Bill King was senior manager, and Dave Comparelli as associate, deserve much praise in their notable success with the teams. The faculty of the University was represented by Dr. Todd.

Thunderbees lose out in finals . . .

Somewhat overshadowed this year by the Intermediate A Frosh squad going over their heads into Senior A company, the Varsity Senior B hoopers, the "Thunderbees," still managed to play some excellent basketball, and completed a fairly successful season.

Coach Vic Pinchin did an excellent job of moulding the few players available into a smooth working team, capable of upholding the high standards set by other varsity Senior B teams in former years.

The team got off to a good start by whipping North Shore and Stacys in their first two games, but their win streak was snapped when Higbies gave them a taste of what was to come when they handed the UBC boys a close defeat in their third game.

Although the students were in fine form throughout the finals they were definitely outclassed by the rival outfit.

In the first game the Higbie quintet completely stopped Varsity's McGeer, who was held to a single point, while McDonough proved his worth by garnering a total of 10 points. Final score of the game was 34-28.

McGeer came back with seven points in the second game to lead the students in a determined comeback. They started off well with a six-point lead at the quarter time mark, and a two-point lead at the half, but in the last half of the game the Higbie zone defence started to click and the students' long shots became decidedly inaccurate, with the result that Higbies won, 37-32.

After Christmas the team received a much needed boost in the manpower brackets with the addition of six-foot Ches Pederson as an extra pivot man.

The play throughout the season continued in much the same way, with the Varsity team demonstrating a definite superiority over North Shore and Stacys, but losing consistently to the Higbie squad. This did not spoil the sport, however, as some extremely close games were played.

Fred Bossons

In the playoffs the Thunderbees romped through the North Shore squad in two straight games, and went on to cop the semi-final from Stacys by lopsided scores.

The Varsity team now met the Higbie squad, who were considerably improved by the addition of ex-senior league player, Earl McDonaugh.

The Thunderbees started like champions in the third tilt, piling up an eight-point lead in the first quarter. As usual they faded as the going got tougher, however, and by three-quarter time their lead was down to one slim point.

In the last quarter the teams traded basket for basket in some of the best Senior B play of the season, but Earl McDonaugh again proved his value to the Higbie crew by sinking a free shot with seconds to go to give them the game and championship with a one-point edge in a 39-38 score.

Hero of the game for Varsity was "Wild Bill" Hooson, with a 12-point total.

Worthy of special note was Bill Hooson, who not only contributed more than his share of points, but kept the games lively with his consistent clowning.

Other members of the team were: Vic Vaughan, Dave King, Ches Pederson, Ted Huyck, Ingy Edwards, Bill Nelson, Reg Racine, Jim Bryant and Jack Climie.

'Bugs cop Memorial Cup

One of this year's basketball cups came to UBC from the Inter B division of the league. The Thunderbugs finished off a very successful season in second place and although they could not win the Inter B cup, they did the next best thing by bringing home the Memorial Cup offered in an after-season schedule amongst the teams not involved in the finals.

The squad started off the season in great style taking two games from Highbies, who later ended the season in first place.

Their good luck did not hold throughout the season, however, as the Varsity boys dropped several encounters during the league play to end up behind Highbies in the second spot.

The students received a rude shock in the semi-finals, when the lowly Stacy quintet unleashed a surprising stretch drive, to swamp the Thunderbugs in two straight encounters. Fortunately for the UBC squad the season did not end with the series playoff, and they were given a chance to redeem themselves.

The Memorial Cup was a different story, however, with the Blue and Gold quintet walking all over the fighting Irish from Vancouver College in two straight games in the final round.

Pete McGeer was the coach of the team in the first year of Inter B ball for a Varsity squad. The boys played great ball under his care throughout the year and Varsity fans were justly proud of the squad.

The team was made up of Dave Rea, Gordie Lade, Dave Griffiths, Chuck Wright, Cliff Henderson, Bill McLeod, Daynard Welsh, Doug Davidson. Jack Hough was the playing manager and although every one filled his position well, Cliff Henderson and Doug Davidson played great ball every game.

Caging co-eds color maple courts . . .

UBC entered two girls' teams in the cagette league this year a Senior B team, and an Intermediate A team.

The Seniors, coached by John Pryor, were fairly successful in their league games and showed much improved form at the end of the season. Captain and manager Audrey McKim, playmaker Marge Watt, veteran guard Helen Matheson, and freshette Marg McGillivray were the outstanding players of the team. The quintet finished off their season by a trip to Victoria where they went down 39-26 under a beating from Victoria Uniteds.

The Intermediate team, which was coached by senior Marge Watt and captained by Mary Ann Norton, was composed mostly of inexperienced freshettes and did not have a very successful season as far as games went, but were known throughout the city for enthusiasm and good sportsmanship. Taddy Knapp and Marie Summers formed the backbone of this team. Marie substituted in the Seniors' Victoria game as centre and came out high scorer.

As all the players except Helen Matheson will be back on the courts next year, Varsity should field more successful teams profiting by the experience gained this year and led on by their undying enthusiasm.

The archery on the campus this year, although no inter-university tournaments were held, suffered no loss in enthusiasm shown by the coeds taking part.

These female counterparts of Robin Hood took their archery once a week, instead of the "keep fit" classes required of all physically fit coeds. They could be seen almost any fine afternoon practising their shots on the lawn just west of the Gym.

There were two tournaments held during the term, one in the fall, and one in the spring, in which all the women taking archery took part. There were handicaps allowed in order to equalize the competitors' chances of making a high score.

Highlight of the year in the minor sports circles was the rewinning of the Pacific Northwest Cross-Country Championship by UBC's cross-country team. Earning a total of 27 points, the seven-man crew easily defeated the Washington State College and University of Washington stalwarts who gained second and third places respectively.

It was the third annual cross-country meet for Spokane, the contest being sponsored by the Spokane Athletic Round Table.

Ken McPherson, top-notch long distance runner at UBC, repeated his performance of the previous year by pulling down second spot again. The race was won by Bob Lynn of Eastern Washington State Teachers' College.

Running in a solid block until the final stretch, UBC's seven-man team placed in the sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, tenth and twelfth spots. Cam Coady led this group, followed by Bud McLeod, Bill Wood, Harry Thompson, Don McKenzie and Gil Blair.

Much credit for the victory is due to Coach Maury Van Vliet who trained the team and coached them on to win their second straight victory for UBC. The record shows well for the Blue and Gold, placing its runners among the best on the continent.

Among the other minor sports were ice hockey and badminton. Ice hockey made an attempt to regain popularity at UBC this year as Ted Taylor, son of the well-known Fred "Cyclone" Taylor, re-formed the Ice Hockey Club and took over the Exhibition Forum every Sunday night for practices and exhibition games.

The Badminton Club boasted a good-sized membership this year, the shuttlecock enthusiasts spending many enjoyable nights in the UBC Gym during the winter season.

Again this year, the University produced a well-organized intramural program which included all the minor sports of volleyball, badminton, table tennis, basketball, touch football, softball and track.

Besides this, the Intramural League took over the Y.M.C.A. swimming pool for one night in January to stage their annual aquatic tournament. The Kappa Sigma team took top honors this year.

All sports considered, it was a great year all-round for both the major and minor sports and their respective participants.

. . . Golfers plan big future

The Golf Club of the University of B.C., the only Canadian College golf club which is able to continue their matches all the year around, flourished this term, with the largest membership for several years.

The number of active members rose to over thirty this year and there was a greater competitive spirit than has been shown for a long time, according to the president of the club, Bill Watts.

There were other tournaments, such as the one with the girls' club in the late fall, and then the climax of the golfing year at U.B.C., which is the big tournament in the Spring.

All the matches held under the auspices of the club are handicap matches because of the very unequal abilities of the players, and in this way they are made much more interesting and fairer for all.

The faculty have a separate club under the presidency of Dr. Jennings, and they hold competitive tournaments with the students at various times through the year.

In pre-war years the team always looked forward to a trip down to the States, sometimes as far as Los Angeles. The club this year has similar ideas for the next year's team, and hopes that some of the old matches with the members of city clubs will be revived.

The president of the club this year was Bill Watts, the secretary-manager, Pete Pudney.

Stick wielders have successful season

"Action shots" of grass hockey squad.

This past season has been one of the most successful in its history for the U.B.C. women's grass hockey team.

The finals of the Lower Mainland Women's Grass Hockey League have not yet been played at press time, but the Varsity Seniors and the powerful Ex-Kits team will battle it out for the cup within a couple of weeks. Varsity's chances are not considered to be very good, but the girls may surprise yet.

The Junior team, composed mainly of Freshettes, who are playing in the same league as the Seniors, have made an exceptionally fine showing and are holding down fourth place. Marie Somers is the captain of this energetic junior bunch.

Both teams have been coached by former hockey player, Helen Matheson, who has done an excellent job with the good material available.

From a very fine collection of individual players, Doreen Parks, right wing, stands out as one of the stars of the year. It is due to Doreen that the U.B.C. team have come out where they have in the league. Other outstanding players on the team include: Marge Watt, Freshette Award winner, and center-forward of last year's team; Barbara Greene, right inner; Jennie Rodenchuck, left halfback; and Margaret Hodgson, manager of the team.

This is the first year during the war that the girls have had many of their first team return.

. . . Rowers splash to hollow victories

Rowing, considered to be one of the most exacting sports in the world, had a good following at U.B.C. this year with over twenty scullers turning out for training.

The regular schedule includes a two-hour workout every Tuesday and Sunday. Accelerated training for the Junior Varsity crew resulted in a four-day-a-week bout with the "muddy Fraser".

All repair and maintenance work is done by members of the club. This season a new stove was installed and one of the two nine-man shells has been scraped

Club Executive are: Norm Denkman, president and coach; John Frazee, vice-president; Dave Morgan, secretary-treasurer; Harry Castillou, manager and Tuesday crew captain; Al Freeze, Sunday crew captain, and Edo Morozzoco, house manager.

The Junior Varsity Crew include: Norm Denkman, Chuck Wright, Earl Butterworth, Dave Morgan, Chris Tripp, Bill Ross, John Frazee, Harry Castillou, Al Freeze and Ross Kerr.

Bigger and Better Ski Club . . .

Varsity Ski Club went in for a gala year during the 1944-45 season and with a total membership of 105 members, they followed the Outdoor Club's lead to expand. The Varsity skiers went the Outdoor Clubbers one better as they obtained a new cabin on Hollyburn Ridge.

The Club held its own ski tournament on February 18 on Dam Mountain, and a freshman, Bill Howard, copped top honors. Arnie Teasdale placed second, and Walt Roots and Jerry Lockhart followed in the third and fourth positions.

Varsity skiers also did well in many of the Viskie and other local tournaments which were held on the North Shore Slopes during the season.

Outdoor Club climbs mountains . . .

Varsity's Outdoor Club enjoyed one of its most active seasons in U.B.C. history during 1944 and 1945. With an over-capacity membership of 70, the Club has maintained a year-round program.

A great number of new members were welcomed into V.O.C. ranks in the fall, and the Club added a room to its cabin on Grouse. Seventy-four climbers made the fall trip to the Lions. With favorable weather, 23 persons successfully scaled the west head. Other hikes included Crown, Camel and Goat Mountains.

The Outdoor Club instituted a climbing school during the season, and under the capable coaching of Fred Roots, members learned the thrill of rock-work on the cliffs of Flint and Feather Mountains.

A ski-mountaineering trip during the Christmas holidays has become an annual event for the V.O.C., and this year the scene was shifted from Garibaldi Park to farther fields.

In spite of a light year for snow, the cabin bulged with V.O.C. members every week-end.

The executive of the Outdoor Club includes: Harvey Parliament, president; Lulla Ireland, vice-president; Fred Roots, secretary-treasurer; Bill Nicolson, marshal; and Joan Stevens, archivist.

Combined Executive does big job . . .

Arts Juniors and Seniors combined this year to elect to their executive: Prof. A. Maslow as honorary president; Gordy Campbell as president; Terry Julian as treasurer; Anne Brown as secretary; Sidney Flavelle as vice-president, and Doug Clarke as marshal.

Setting the standard for the whole university, these two classes helped to make such events as Homecoming, Fall Ball, ISS Week, and the Red Cross Ball all successes.

On the Students' Council, third and fourth year were represented by Junior Member Allan Ainsworth, LSE President Gordy Bertram, WUS President Barbara Greene, and WAA President Lois Reid. Editor-in-Chief of the Ubyssy J. T. Scott acted as ex-officio member on the Council, and kept it and the campus in touch with each other through the varsity paper.

Mussoc President Elinor Haggart was the moving spirit behind the successful presentation of the "Gondoliers," which included in the cast Alice Stonhouse and Irene Kennedy. Ted English filled the leading executive position in the Players' Club.

Inter-Fraternity Council President Don Newson and Pan-Hellenic President Mary Francis Trumbull co-ordinated fraternity and sorority efforts together and produced the most successful Red Cross Ball to date.

Campus strangers one year and superior sophomores the next year . . . that is the class of Arts '47. Proud of their new found maturity, Arts '47 has moved into the hallowed ranks of UBC undergrads, and have done their share in all fields, scholastic, athletic, cultural and executive.

On the sports front the sophomores outdid themselves with Ken McPherson leading the UBC cross-country team on to its second straight victory in Spokane. Ed Ryan, Ron Weber and Reg Clarkson all hit the high spots with the Thunderbirds, while Keith MacDonald and Gerry Jenvy showed up well with the rugby team. Co-eds also held up their end on the athletic field.

Our own Totem claimed the services of three sophomores, chief of whom was John Green, who edited the year book, with the addition of only a few grey hairs. Bill Stewart, associate editor, gave Green capable assistance with his strong right arm, while Nancy Macdonald simply assisted.

For the executive of WUS, second-year women chose Mary Dolmage to represent them, while Audrey Jutte acted as their vice-president.

Ray Perrault managed to fill the position of publicity agent and versatile character actor with the University Radio Society.

On the Ubysey staff, Cal Whitehead capably moulded reporters of the Saturday edition into shape, while aforementioned Totem editors gave assistance on their respective issues. Staff cartoonist Buzz Walker added not a little to the humor of the campus paper.

Lovely Dale Coughlin ably represented second year at the Fall Ball, in November . . . and spring saw second year walk off with the honors when Sally Pantan was chosen Queen of the Red Cross Ball.

Arts '47 class executive consisted of: Honorary president, Prof. G. G. Sedgewick; president, Keith MacDonald; vice-president, George Hamilton; treasurer, Sylvia Dyson; and secretary, Nancy Macdonald.

Three Little Girls From School Are We

After The Ball

Herb Capozzi, Dave Rea, John Ellis

Freshman Class breaks all records . . .

The largest class of Freshmen ever to enter the University invaded our peaceful campus this past September with their placards, green goggles and rolled-up pants . . . battled with their traditional rivals, the Sophs . . . and quickly and completely took their place among the undergrads of UBC.

Shortly after Freshman Week, the class of '48 held the usual poorly attended but hectic elections, and chose Herb Capozzi, second-year freshman, for president; Dave Rea for secretary; and John Ellis for treasurer. Norah Clark, WUS representative, was the only co-ed on the executive.

Freshettes Rosemary Hodgins and Harriet Hochman made University history when they became the first co-ed debaters, debating against Vic College, with Bob Harwood and Alan Roehner.

Beverly Wilson and Dorothy Lowther were successful in the Players' Club production of "The Taming of the Shrew" . . . and co-eds Maxine McClung, Taddy Knapp, Fern Anderson and Joan Denman cheered UBC teams on to victory as Mamook yell leaders.

In Inter-murals, the freshmen did well, especially in the table tennis tournaments . . . Jim Bennie placed in the singles finals against Aggie Tom Keenlyside.

On the Ubyyssey, Don Stainsby and Ron Haggart attained prominence as associate editors, with Ron doing double-duty as the CUP editor. Directory assistant editors included Tom Preston and Ross Henderson. Bruce Bowther, Laurie Dyer and Sheilagh Wheeler filled the positions as sports scribes.

On the sports sheet are the names of Bobby Haas on the basketball team, Jerry Stevenson in inter-murals, Bobby Croll on the rugby team and Pat McGeer on the Thunderbirds.

The class of '48 has already proved itself a real asset to the University. If first performances are any indication of things to come, 1948 should be a big year at UBC.

Overburdened Varsity student. Looking for someone?

Going steady.

This year has seen the rise of the Commencemen from the status of a club in LSE to that of a full-fledged Undergraduate Society of Alma Mater Society.

Commencemen have always taken an active part in student government, with at least two or three of their number on council, and this year's class is no exception. It lays claim to Helen Morgan, council secretary; Ken Creighton, treasurer; and Les Raphael, MUS president; as members of the faculty.

In the field of sports Commerce has Ole Bakken, star centre of one of the best basketball teams in UBC's history, and Jack McKercher, captain of the Varsity English Rugby team.

Other notables are Jim Wilson, president of the Parliamentary Forum, and a delegate to the inter-university conference last year, and Stuart Porteus, also a conference speaker, and a McGoun Cup debater this year.

The Commerce Undergraduate Society has been second to none in participation in Varsity's war effort. Among their more prominent representatives in this field are: Ted Chambers, head of the War Aid Council, who is responsible for the co-ordination of all work in this direction; Pat Cunningham, who handled the financial arrangements for the Red Cross Ball; and Brian Burke, who, as head of the employment bureau, directs students into jobs where they can be of most use to the country.

George Pierson, second year Commerce, was elected president, this fall, of the Canadian Returned Men's Association, a body which includes all veterans of the present war who are now attending the University.

The executive of Commerce '45 consisted of: Stuart Porteus, president; Pat Cunningham, vice-president; Les Wong, treasurer; and Helen Duncan, secretary.

Aren't we having fun? . . . Publicity agents . . . Our campus scenery . . . Mitch kibitzes . . . Miss UBC . . . Campus life.

After five arduous years of lectures and labs, the one hundred and five members of Science '45 are preparing to leave UBC to take their places in the industries and armed forces of Canada. In the past the graduating class in Applied Science has gone out to the mines, the engineering firms, and the construction camps. Now the majority will enter the army or the navy as technical officers.

Notable in the ranks of the engineers was Dick Bibbs, AMS president. In spite of a heavy course in Chemical Engineering, Bibbs not only filled the office efficiently, but also maintained an active interest in the Parliamentary Forum and the Players' Club.

John Powell, another Chemical Engineer, and past president of the Players' Club, also did his share towards proving that Scienccemen have as much cultural activity as anyone else.

Closely associated with the graduating class are the men of Science '46. Although still one year from graduation the fourth-year men are closely associated with the seniors through the various engineering clubs. In these clubs the fourth and fifth-year men meet and discuss problems peculiar to their own field. In this way an esprit de corps is built up, and "fourth" and "fifth" give way to "chemicals," "mets," or "miners."

The engineers have their star athletes, too. The most prominent being Sandy Robertson, captain of the Thunderbirds basketball team and a baseball pitcher of renown.

Roy Morton

The executive this year was: President, Roy Morton; Dawson Club, Bob Olsen; Engineering Institute of Canada, Harold Graves; American Institute of Chemical Engineering, John Powell; American Institute of Electrical Engineering, Harry Ellis; American Society of Mechanical Engineers, Jim Bryant; athletic representative, Gordon Ellis; Science '47, Ted Kirkpatrick; Science '48, Ron Grantham.

Science '47 works among coke bottles

Finishing their third year towards the degree of Bachelor of Applied Science, the men of Science '47 have passed the half way mark in the undergraduate careers.

They are acutely conscious of Canada's need for trained technicians and are preparing themselves to play their part in the war effort and the reconstruction to follow.

Every noon-hour the boys gather in the drafting room, always claiming they have work to do and always leaving the tee-square and drafting board untouched. Here, surrounded by empty coke bottles and pin-up girls, the redshirts plan most of their spare time activities which range from organized discussion groups to snake parades.

This same pride of their faculty brought third year forth in numbers for both the Science blood donor drive in November and the War Aid Council drive in January. Any worthwhile drive found the third year working hard for the University.

Another episode where Science '47 showed their initiative was in the purchase of the famous Science sweaters.

Chafing at the inability of the AMS to obtain the distinctive red sweaters dear to the hearts of all engineers, the class executive went out on their own resources and completed a deal which resulted in Science '47 getting their faculty identification before their seniors.

Ted Kirkpatrick, president of Science '47 for the second year, ran the business of the class smoothly and efficiently. A valued member of the Engineers Undergraduate Society, Kirkpatrick took an active part in the organization of the blood donor drive and Navy Week. In the elections, results of which are not available at press time, he ran for Junior member of AMS.

Executive of Science '47 this year was: Prof. H. M. McIlroy, honorary president; Ted Kirkpatrick, president; Norman Denkman, secretary; and Gordon Genge, athletic representative.

Science '48 don their red sweaters . . .

Fresh from the ranks of a nameless faculty, the class of Science '48 worked all year to erase the memory of the time they spent as freshmen before donning the red sweaters that set off the Engineers as the elite of the campus.

They strove so valiantly that the hardened upper-classman, while openly deploring the wild actions of the youngsters, went on record as saying that the new class was doing fine.

The men of Science '48 found themselves in a new world when they entered the Faculty of Applied Science. Replacing the almost void timetable of their freshman year they found a schedule filled to overflowing with lectures and labs. They discovered that the famous 60% entrance requirement was but a slight indication of the rocky road ahead.

Something novel in engineering classes were the two girls, Margaret Stokkeland and Lorna Lang, who are registered in 2nd year Applied Science. Although the boys found it difficult to reconcile themselves to the sight of a curly head bent over a drafting board, they girls were soon accepted as full-fledged members of Science '48. Margaret attended the Science Banquet wearing a Science red beret.

Science '48 took an active interest in extra-curricular activities. Every pep meet found them occupying the front rows. They also kept their end up by producing skits on occasion. Ron Grantham, class president, was also president of the Mamooks and Al Bluechel was president of the UBC Thunderbird Ski Club. Several members found time to work on the stage crew of the Musical Society.

The executive of Science '48 this year was: Professor Finlay, honorary president; Ron Grantham, president; Ed Lamb, secretary; and Bob Lawson, athletic representative.

Nurses Exec. ends successful year . . .

This year the Nurses' Undergraduate Society marks yet another successful round of activities on the campus. N.U.S. serves not only to direct the activities of the nurses at the University but also to keep them in touch with those training at the hospital.

The graduates include both Public Health and Teaching and Supervision. There are eight B.A.Sc. degrees and thirty-four certificate students in the class. Their time is taken up chiefly with their concentrated course. Public Health consists of a short period of lectures followed by a period of field work. This field work takes them to various clinics and institutions both in the city and out. Classes for Teaching and Supervision of Nurses are held both at the General Hospital and at the University.

Those students taking second year Nursing will enter the General Hospital next September and will continue on for three years until they receive their Registered Nurse Certificates. It is only after they receive their R.N. that they return to University to complete the course.

Canada, short of trained agriculturists, looks to the graduates in Agriculture this year, Aggie '45, for help in the successful waging of a total war.

For, in spite of the war, our nation must eat. Behind every man at the front are the munitions workers, and behind the munitions workers there are still more men in the fields.

They have drawn on their own initiative more, by doing away with the traditional Arts-Aggie Ball, replacing it with an informal of their own, in which they do not need to feel so completely overwhelmed because of the smallness of their faculty. Co-ed students turned out in fair numbers this year. From the many eligible the Aggies made a difficult choice to put up their candidate for queenship of the newly-founded Fall Ball.

Naturally enough, with the fullness of their courses, and heavy war work schedule, they found it hard to put up any outstanding stars in campus sports, but George Rush, formerly a star rugby player, headed the Men's Athletic Association.

Aggies, too, are all engaged in some form of war work. The men are in either the COTC or the UNTD, the women take their part in various forms of Red Cross work. The faculty turned out in large numbers to give their blood in January and February.

Several Aggies who have returned from the wars have enrolled in the special short courses which UBC offered for the first time this year. This number is expected to increase in the war-years to come.

The executive of Aggie '45 consisted of: Wilson Stewart, president; and Peggy Burton, secretary.

Like all classes in Agriculture, Aggie '46 took extra units of work during the last year, work which is not needed for their degrees but which will equip them for war research.

Working together in most of their classes, in their labs, in the barns, and in field work, the students have built up an esprit de corps which is outstanding among UBC's faculties—and UBC is noted for faculty spirit.

Third-year Aggies combined with the other classes of their faculty to put over the annual Aggie Barn Dance, the highlight of the Aggies' social calendar. Many of them were present at the Fall Ball, and the Snow Frolic, and they did their bit for the Red Cross when it came to volunteering to give donations of blood.

Aggie '46 students combined with the rest of the faculty in lending their support to the Junior C.S.T.A. Members of the class were present when the association visited Fraser Farms during the fall.

Like everyone else at UBC, Aggie '46 had to cope with classes and labs, mid-terms and finals, many army and navy parades and various other forms of war work. The pressure of this curricular and extra-curricular work did not prevent them from taking part in athletics, however. Among those who found time for extra-mural work was Kenny Devlin, who played for the UBC hockey team.

To co-ordinate the many and diverse activities, the Agriculture class of 1946 chose a lively and energetic executive: Gordon Bell was elected president of the class, and Halcyone Webb filled the position of secretary.

Second year Agriculture, a conglomeration of urban and rural students, have, even in a brief two years, added much to upholding the aims and traditions of their faculty.

Even the women are now seeing a definite future in the various fields of Animal Husbandry, as evidenced Margaret Mackay who is majoring in this subject.

Aggie 47 lost their president, Don Campbell, one of Aggie's brilliant scholarship winners, at Christmas, when our boy went to work for George. The president for the second term, Margaret Mackay, is one of the most active in the social and business problems connected with Agricultural functions. Jackie Stephenson, secretary for the second year executive, is one of the few students in her year headed for a career of dairying.

Aggie 47 students have learned the true meaning of our University's motto "Tuum Est". Not only have they given their best, both academically and extracurricularly for their faculty, but they have taken considerable part in university activities in general.

Second year women, including sports representative for WUS, Margaret Mackay, and Jackie Stephenson are the backbone of Aggie women Intramurals. Only a minority of the women are concerned with other campus clubs.

Aggies' future in sports is assured by second year men such as: E. M. Butterworth, prominent in rugby, swimming, and the Moyls boys in both rugby and hockey.

And then there are the Leavy brothers—the tall dark boys who serve as bouncers at every class party.

Aggie 47 has made a good showing in the last two years. It is hoped that the next two will be as good or better.

This year's freshman class in Agriculture, a large and varied group, has taken on efficiently and earnestly the duties and responsibilities of university life.

Under the able first-year president, Ian Greenwood, and secretary, Mrs. Joan Graham, the freshman class has become familiarized with the problems and traditions of university life. In particular, the traditions of the Agricultural faculty have been impressed upon them.

life are Douglas Knott, who is headed for a shining future in rugby, and G. Blair, who may some day be one of our top-ranking track stars.

One of the most versatile of the first-year men is Ron Vincent who combines his work in the Varsity String Orchestra with excellent amateur figure skating.

Frosh were first initiated into the history and possible future of the Agricultural faculty at the Aggie Fall Banquet. Traditionally, the freshman class provided the necessary humorous touch in the form of a skit.

The majority of first-year men are working towards careers as our country's future scientific farmers. A small percentage of the men and most of the women plan to become much needed technical workers, laboratory technicians and research workers.

It's all yours, Aggie '48. You have the traditions of the Aggie faculty to keep up and the future of Agricultural industry in our province to build to bigger and better heights.

Home Ec girls learn art of homemaking

Under the guidance of Miss Dorothy P. Lefebvre as acting head of the department, 117 girls partook of the varied courses offered by the Department of Home Economics this year.

Assisting Miss Lefebvre are associate professors Miss Stella Beil, Miss Charlotte S. Black and Miss Nina Morley.

Although this is only the second year of its existence, the department already has completed courses for years' credit and expects to grant the degree of Bachelor of Home Economics next year.

Among the great variety of courses that the girls may choose that will help them in their later life, there are: Dietetics, The Theory and Practice of Cooking; House Management; Art Appreciation; Dress Design; Hand Sewing; or House Decoration, as well as many others.

Although the department has not the standing of a faculty as yet, there is a Home Economics Club registered in the LSE of the University, to which all members of the Home Economics department belong.

Theologs move out of colleges . . .

Affiliated with the University are two theological colleges, the Union College of British Columbia and the Anglican Theological College of British Columbia. The former is headed by Rev. J. G. Brown, M.A., D.D.; the latter by Rev. H. R. Trumppour, M.A., B.D., D.D.

The setting of these colleges is but a stone's throw from the University itself. From their location on Marine Drive one can observe the north shore mountains looking down upon Vancouver's harbor entrance.

The Anglican College offers courses in Theology leading to the diploma of Licentiate in Theology and the degrees of B.D. and D.D.

Union College represents the successful amalgamation of three distinct theological colleges. They were: Columbia College, which was founded in 1893 under the sponsorship of the Methodist Church; the Presbyterian College, founded in 1908; and the Congregational College, founded in 1914.

The amalgamation took place in 1927.

Although attendance at both colleges has been greatly reduced since the outbreak of war, they are carrying on.

The Union College has added to its lecturing staff this year Professor Basil Mathews, formerly of the Boston School of Theology, who at one time worked for the British Ministry of Information.

The activities of the Anglican College have been very much reduced, but they still hold their important oratorical contest.

Today one can see coming from the direction of the colleges a steady stream of men dressed in the light blue suits of military convalescents.

The colleges have turned over their facilities to the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps for the benefit of convalescing army men.

At Union College more than 80 percent of the space is being utilized. One hundred and twenty beds have been set up in the classrooms and in the one residence, while the students have been confined to the east wing for their lectures.

The army occupies virtually all of the space at the Anglican College.

The soldiers who are hospitalized at the colleges were invited by the Alma Mater Society to the various meetings and pass features held on the campus at noon hours. The Red Cross Corps, Phrateres, and the WUS have taken it upon themselves to visit the boys. They provide magazines, play games with the men, and write their letters for them.

IFC supports war charities . . .

The Inter-Fraternity Council is the executive elected from the twelve fraternities on the campus to formulate and carry out the policies of the fraternities in respect to the rest of the campus organizations and their activities. The council is composed of two members from each of the fraternities. IFC conducted its business this year much the same as in previous years.

The IFC as usual supported vigorously the many campus drives to raise money for the various war charities, and the council combined with the Pan-Hellenic Association from the sororities, and the War Aid Council to make a huge success of the annual Greek Letter Society Red Cross Ball at the Commodore.

The council itself did not make any drastic changes in its policy or its rushing rules but at press time there were definite signs that a revision of the IFC constitution would be made before the holidays.

In the spring the annual Greek Letter Society song fest was held with all the fraternities and sororities supporting it to the best of their ability.

The IFC executive this year was composed of the following members: Don Newson, president; Eldin Underwood, vice-president; and Ken Broe, secretary-treasurer.

Sigma Tau Chi is an honorary fraternity, the members of which are chosen from all sections of the undergraduate body in recognition of their service and leadership in the extra-curricular activities at the University.

The purpose of the fraternity is to foster a better understanding among the leaders of student organizations of the aims and ideals of the other undergraduate organizations of the University. In this regard the fraternity promotes discussion among the leaders of student organizations. They discuss the many problems which arise in such organizations in their relations with other groups or with the AMS. By this means they hope to prevent much friction which arises between the various sections of the undergraduate body because of misunderstanding or lack of knowledge.

Pan-Hell completes a busy year . . .

The Pan-Hellenic Council, composed of two members from each sorority, is the organization through which pass the affairs of the Greek Letter Sororities. As a representative group, it has, on a smaller scale, much the same task as the Students' Council.

Perhaps its greatest concern is that of planning and supervising rushing. On such matters discipline is rigid. The breaking of rushing regulations is considered a serious offence and is dealt with severely. The Pan-Hellenic Council has endeavoured to keep rushing strictly "above board" and every sorority must act in accordance with the constitution which it, as a member, has approved.

The Pan-Hellenic Council was responsible for the organization of the Red Cross Ball. Under Chairman Mary Francis Trumbull, sororities and fraternities worked together to put over the major social event of the year. The sale of admission and raffle tickets, the formation of the chorus, the decorations and costumes, the orchestra, and the pep-meet, were all responsibilities of committees of Pan-Hell.

The executive of the Pan-Hellenic Council this year consisted of: President, Mary Francis Trumbull; vice-president, Barbara MacPherson; secretary, Audrey Buchanan; treasurer, Catherine Smart.

“Leadership, service and co-operation” led the women’s honorary sorority, Delta Sigma Pi, through its second year on the UBC campus. Under president Lulla Ireland, honorary president Dean D. Mawdsley, and the executive, consisting of vice-president Mary Quan, secretary-treasurer Joan Fischer and historian Elinor Haggart, the sorority carried on its activities as a discussion group and women’s society under the Women’s Undergraduate Society. The founder of the sorority last year was Mary Mulvin who was WUS president the year before. Under the executive and the Faculty Advisory Council, consisting of Dr. Isabel MacInnes and Dr. Joyce Hallamore, the sorority lived up to its aforesaid motto and kept the “torch of scholarship” on their pins burning.

... Phrateres, Famous for Friendliness

The Theta chapter of Phrateres at the University of British Columbia has lived up to the Phraterian motto of "famous for friendliness", in all its activities. The UBC chapter is the only branch of this organization, which embraces most of the universities in the western United States, to be set up in Canada so far.

The chapter is organized along the same general lines as a sorority, but is open for membership to all women attending university. Girls in first year are especially welcome, and most Freshettes join each year. Many Phraterians retain their membership in the organization throughout their full four years at Varsity. Every effort is made by the Phrateres to welcome new co-eds upon their arrival on the campus and to make them feel as much at home as possible.

During Freshman initiation week, at the beginning of the fall term, the upper class women arrange a number of firesides at various members' homes where newcomers mingle with older members to eat, play records, knit, and simply chat. Also on the initiation program is the annual university church service, which is held at one of the downtown churches and which all Freshettes are invited to attend with their Phrateres "big sisters." These functions aid the Freshettes in becoming acquainted with others of their number from different parts of the city or province, to meet the women in senior years, and to learn something of the ins and outs of campus life.

Phrateres is by far the largest organization on the campus, including half the female population of the University, and because of its size it is divided into a number of sub-chapters, each of which has its own president and executive, and holds its own separate dances, meetings, and activities. The activities of the organization as a whole are integrated by the presidents of the sub-chapters who meet every two weeks to keep things running smoothly. The sub-chapters do have a large degree of independence in their actions, however.

An inter-chapter competition is carried on throughout the year, with the most outstanding chapter being presented with a small silver cup at the conclusion of the year. The girl in each chapter who has the highest scholastic standing in the exams receives a sterling silver identification bracelet with her name inscribed on it, to wear for half a year.

As has been the custom with all Varsity women's organizations for the past five years, Phrateres have spent much of their time this year with various phases of war work. Drives for used magazines, quilting bees, knitting and sewing for the Red Cross, and many other activities contributing to the war effort are undertaken by the sub-chapters. Interest in this work is heightened by the fact that the chapter with the best record is awarded points towards the winning of the Phrateres' cup.

With the arrival of the wounded men at Union and Anglican Colleges, members of Phrateres arranged to visit the veterans at the hospitals twice a week. Under the leadership of Maxine Lindow, girls were chosen from the various chapters to attend the weekly dance held in Anglican College. The Eta chapter made scrapbooks of stories and cartoons which they thought would appeal to the men, and would relieve the hours of boredom.

At Christmas time, money was donated to the Strathcona Day Nursery. Lambda chapter bought Christmas gifts for the children of the Columbia Coast Missions, while other chapters aided the crippled children's hospital. Following the success of the scrapbooks for the returned men, picture books were made and sent to the coast missions and the children's hospital. A service dance was held, and a tea was served by Alpha chapter in aid of the prisoners of war.

This year, a new and improved system of voting was inaugurated. In former years, only a few members of the All Phrateres Executive were voted into office. Those girls who were defeated in the elections took the positions which were still open. By the new plan, not only was a whole slate voted on, but the elections were held in January instead of the usual March. This move was made to enable the new executive to get some idea of their jobs, while some experienced aid was still available. During the spring term, the incoming officers worked in conjunction with the present ones, and were duly installed into their new offices at the initiation ceremony.

The highlight of a Phraterian's social calendar was the Waltz Time Formal, held in Brock Hall the first week in November. The dance held all the glamour that any feminine heart could desire. This year's impressive candle-light initiation ceremony filled two purposes: it served as the formal induction of the new members, and as the installation of next year's executive. To supplement hard study and sober war-work the sub-chapters of Phrateres planned a number of parties. Tramp parties, mixers, theatre parties, roller skating, ice skating, and bowling parties kept Phraterians gay and friendly. In co-operation with WUS, Phrateres sponsored the Cupid Capers, also held in the Brock in March.

The executive this year consisted of: Honorary president, Dean Dorothy Mawdsley; honorary vice-president, Dr. Joyce Hallamore; president, Julie Van-Gorder; vice-president, Nancy Pitman; corresponding secretary, Ruth White; recording secretary, Phyllis Ney; treasurer, Marjorie Hood; sub-chapter chairman, Sheila Carlyle; publicity chairman, Ada MacLaren; social service chairman, Ivy Pronger; and membership and initiation chairman, Billy Oliver.

Sub-chapter presidents were: Alpha, Marita Robson; Beta, Audrey Jutte; Gamma, Yvette Morris; Delta, Ruth Hardy; Epsilon, Maxine Lindow; Eta, Irene Steiner; Zeta, Pat Mayne; Kappa, Betty Scott; Lambda, Nancy Macdonald; Omicron, Peggy Holt; and Sigma, Waverley Watson.

The Phrateres summer camp, which is held during the week immediately following exams, is usually one in which all the members recuperate from their university worries.

. . . Forestry Club

Bob Knowles, Guy Cawley, Harry Castillou, Stan Korsch, Jim Phelps, Sammy Flader

Promoting interest in forestry, and acting as an employment bureau, kept the Forestry Club busy this year. One of the main interests of the club is to provide summer work for the forestry students. They also keep the graduates informed as to what goes on in forestry at UBC.

The high point of their work this year was the presentation of a brief to the Sloan Commission in January. This brief, which was compiled largely through the efforts of the club, urged the establishment of a Faculty of Forestry with a degree of Bachelor of the Science of Forestry at the University.

Officers this year were: President, Bob Knowles; secretary, Stan Korsch; treasurer, Jack McKercher; head of special committee, Harry Castillou.

. . . Physics Society

Don Ivey, Bill Thompson, Louis Holroyd

The Physics Society meets twice monthly to hear and discuss papers for the benefit of all students interested in physics. Before Christmas the staff of the physics department and other outstanding speakers in the field of physics present papers. After Christmas students present papers and a prize is awarded to the undergraduate who presents the best paper.

The last meeting of the year is usually held at the home of Dr. G. M. Shrum, Head of the Physics Department. At this meeting a graduate presents a paper on his research work for his Master's Degree.

The executive of the club this year is: President, Don Ivey; secretary-treasurer, W. B. Thompson; vice-president, L. V. Holroyd.

. . . Mathematics Club

Bill Thompson, Eleanor Mayo, Tom Whittemore

The Mathematics Club, formed of mathematically-minded students on the campus, has as its aims the stimulation of interest in the various branches of this subject. The members of the club gave addresses in the special branches of maths in which they themselves are interested.

The club invites guest speakers to give lectures on mathematical topics, at several of the meetings during the year. Among these lecturers were Dr. Maslow, associate professor of psychology, and Dr. Murdoch of the maths department.

The membership of the club is of necessity limited and students must have taken, or be taking Math 10, or its equivalent. The meetings were held every two weeks at the members' homes.

The executive of the club this year consisted of: Tom Whittemore, president; Bill Thompson, vice-president; Eleanor Mayo, secretary.

Founded to bring the students and members of the staff of the geology department closer together, the G. M. Dawson Club has since expanded to include students of mining and metallurgy. In addition to weekly noon-hour meetings at which members give informal talks, the club also holds monthly evening meetings addressed by prominent geologists. This gives the students an opportunity to meet members of the profession.

Each year the club attends the Annual Western Meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, of which it is a student branch, and makes a field trip to a mine or some other operation.

The executive consists of: Honorary president, Prof. C. O. Swanson; president, Bob Olsen; vice-president, Fred Roots; secretary-treasurer, Bill Sharp; fourth year representative, Harris Hansen.

Fred Roots, Bob Olsen, Harris Hansen, Bill Sharp

The Newman Club, its membership composed of students of the Roman Catholic faith, aims for the friendly association of all Catholic students on a religious, intellectual and social basis. The agenda of the club during the year included Communion breakfasts, socials with the alumni group, roller skating parties, and discussions on current religious topics at the informal meetings at various homes throughout the year.

The club started something new this year when they held a Mardi Gras with colorful costumes and all the settings at the Masonic Hall in February, and made it a great success.

The executive of the club consisted of the following members: Bill O'Brien, president; Marg Guimont, Aline Ralston, Don Weeks, Ursula Stead, Jack and Leo Leavy and Jack O'Neill.

The Chinese Club has a membership which includes all the Chinese students on the campus. It was formed to bring them together for discussion groups, social evenings, and entertainment.

Their activities during the year included meetings with speeches by various prominent persons, followed by open forum discussions.

To introduce the Chinese freshman to the activity of campus life, the executive arranged a Frosh reception. They also organized a Christmas party and a very successful hike up the mountain.

This year the executive is made up of: Mary Quan, president; Gilbert Wong, vice-president; Vivian Wong, secretary; Dick Chow, treasurer; and Joseph Kent, social convener.

. . . Varsity Christian Fellowship

Lila Shields, Jean Oben, Wilbur Sutherland, Jessie Strachan, Jean Brotherton, Jim Martin, Godfrey Shultz, Les Babb, Hilary Carre

The Varsity Christian Fellowship has grown considerably since the year 1925, when it made its first appearance on the campus. Over fifty students have been actively connected with the group in the past year, and many more have attended the different club functions and the varied programs offered.

The group is affiliated with similar bodies throughout the world under the name Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship, an inter-denominational organization.

This year's executive was: Wilbur Sutherland, president; Jessie Strachan, vice-president; Jean Oben, corresponding secretary; Godfrey Schultz, missionary secretary; Les Babb, membership secretary; Lila Shields, treasurer; Hilary Carre, advertising manager; Jim Martin, science representative; Jim Brotherton, junior member.

. . . Home Economics Club

Catherine George, Maxine Johnson, Jean McKenzie, Joan Park

The Home Economics Club, formed only one year ago, was organized in conjunction with the introduction of a Home Economics course at UBC.

Realizing that the course was new, and wishing to know more about the possibilities of this field, the students felt that they would enjoy discussions relative to the careers they wished to follow. Their hopes became realized as a result of the resourceful energy of Miss Dorothy Lefebvre, Associate Professor, and Acting Head of the Department.

For their bi-monthly meetings in the Arts building the executive was fortunate in procuring a number of guest speakers. Particularly interesting were the addresses given on dietetics and interior decorating.

This year's executive consisted of: President, Maxine Johnson; vice-president, Jean McKenzie; secretary, Catherine George.

. . . Historical Society

Pat White, Doug Clark, Pam Mitchell

Although the Historical Society numbers only 14, and although the membership of the club is limited to third and fourth-year students, the club has been extremely active during the past year.

The purpose of the club is the study and discussion of historical problems. The members at each meeting present a paper or report on some vital question concerning history, after which they hold an open discussion of the topic.

At the end of the year a banquet is held at which some prominent speaker addresses the club, or a paper is read by one of the members.

The executive for last year consisted of: Doug Clark, president; Pat White, vice-president; and Pam Mitchell, secretary.

The Monro Pre-Medical Club enjoyed an extremely active year, with a membership of over two hundred. Twenty-five surgical and obstetrical films were shown at regular semi-monthly meetings throughout the year. Groups composed of first and second-year students made trips to local hospitals to observe operations; groups composed of third and fourth-year students also made two operation trips and three trips to observe autopsies.

Two surveys were made by the president of the club. One dealt with pre-medical requirements for Canadian Medical Schools with the result that a recommended pre-medical course could be outlined. The second survey dealt with the possibility of B.C. students being admitted to Medical schools.

The executive was: Allan Macfarlane, president; Robert Wener, vice-president; and Jean Gray, secretary.

Jewish students and Jewish returned men attending this university make up the membership of the Menorah Society. Its aims are cultural in scope, and discussions on pertinent questions and problems pertaining to the struggle throughout the world for the principles of racial and religious tolerance form the basis for the activities of the society.

Many guest speakers were heard during the year and various topics of interest to the members as a whole were brought up. The meetings were held informally as group discussions at private homes during the year.

The executive of the society this year consisted of the following members: Trev Glucksman, president; Robert Wener, vice-president; Marcia Gurvitz, secretary; Irene Steiner, treasurer; Aaron Zivot, freshman representative.

. . . Menorah Society

Bob Wener, Trevor Glucksman, Irene Steiner, Aaron Zivot.

The Jazz Society was formed early this year to popularize jazz on the campus as an art form of music. At present the club has about 75 members, all of them enthusiasts.

Their activities include a weekly record session and a jam session, again with records, at one of the members' homes. At their weekly jam sessions the members study the work of leading jazz musicians.

The biggest activity of the year was the presentation in the auditorium of a live, improvised jam session, with the assistance of the Deep River Boys, and leading city jazz musicians.

The executive of the club is: Roy Lowther, president; Jack Cohen, vice-president; Ross Strand, secretary; Mona Quebec, librarian-treasurer; and John Short, publicity director.

. . . Psychology Club

June Aubrey, Sheila Carlisle, Bob Wener, Jean Pridham

Psychology is a quickly growing field of science, the importance of which is becoming greater as new discoveries are made. This ever-expanding field is studied by the members of the Psychology Club.

Field trips to Essondale and Gordon House, and lectures by well-known persons such as Doctor Lindenfeld of Vienna, are only part of the activities engaged in by the Psychology Club whose aim is to promote an interest in extra-curricular Psychology. Perhaps the most interesting feature is the annual visit to a spiritualistic session and subsequent exposure. This is not only interesting, but also practical and highly amusing.

President this year was Jean Pridham. Other members of the executive were: Bob Wener, Sheila Carlisle, and June Aubrey.

. . . Women's Public Speaking Club

Elizabeth Evans, Mary Lou Jefferys, Lois Crook

The Women's Public Speaking Club is for the benefit of those students wishing to gain poise and experience when speaking before an audience.

Its members, desiring a sounder knowledge of the fundamentals of speech making, followed the outline of a public speaking course offered by the University Extension Department. They gained practice by delivering short prepared speeches to the club members.

During the second term panel discussions were held. Each of these was led by four major speakers who expressed their opinions and encouraged the others to join in the general discussion.

This year's executive consisted of: President, Elizabeth Evans; vice-president, Lois Crook; secretary, Mary-Lou Jeffrey.

. . . Letters Club

Mary Quan, Burton Kurth

Dedicated to the pursuit of the benefits to be obtained from the study of literature, the Letters Club is the oldest of the many discussion clubs on the campus. Membership is limited to 24 upperclass men and women with a common, keen interest in all things literary.

The club meets fortnightly to hear papers read by students on various aspects of literature, ancient and modern. Upon the conclusion of the student's remarks the meeting is turned over to an informal criticism both of the paper read and of the field of literature which it encompassed.

Once each year an "Original Contributions Night" is held, when members bring forth short stories, poems, and plays, of their own, for criticism.

This year's executive was Burton Kurth, president; and Mary Quan, secretary-treasurer.

Organized on the UBC campus in 1938, the student chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers follows a definite program of instruction in practical engineering and public speaking at its weekly meetings.

The society makes frequent field trips to local factories, this year visiting British Wire Ropes, Heaps Engineering, and Vivian Diesel.

The need of trained mechanical engineers who are not only competent in their profession but also trained in public speaking makes this club of prime importance.

This year's executive consisted of: Honorary president, Prof. W. O. Richmond; president, Jim Bryant; vice-president, Ross Hatte; secretary-treasurer, George Lloyd; librarian, Doug Finnie; program directors, Len Wannop and Don Stevens.

The French Club is made up of students who are interested in furthering the study and understanding of the French language and culture on the campus.

The members, who are divided fairly evenly between the two sexes, meet once a month at noon hour, to hold discussions on French ways of life. All conversation at the meeting is carried on in French. The group also plans putting on skits in French for club members.

The club takes the place of two separate organizations, La Canadienne and La Cercle Francais, which were formerly active on the campus.

The executive this year was made up of: Rohan Peele, president; Aline Robertson, vice-president; and Blanche Clayton, secretary.

Economics are of vital importance in our quickly changing world of today, and they are discussed and studied by the Economics Society. The aim of this society is to promote an interest in current economic problems not discussed in class, and it is carried out by the reading of papers on the field of economics, followed by discussions. The problems discussed are mainly of civic or provincial interest and provide a greater understanding of the business of our land. Two guest speakers, President Norman MacKenzie and Bill Mercer, both specialists in their field, appeared before the society this year.

President this year was Rosemary Stewart. Other members of the executive were: Fred Carrothers, Marjorie Smith, and Stewart Porteus.

The Engineers' Christian Fellowship, affiliated with the Varsity Christian Union, is primarily concerned with furthering the Christian way of life.

Organized for the benefit of Engineers, the club discusses religious problems particular to men following that profession. It is felt that they will encounter difficulties quite different from those at other types of work.

Religion is dealt with from a strictly personal point of view. An effort is made to draw the students closer to their religion. Prayer meetings are held on the request of the members.

During the course of the year a number of fire-sides were held. Particularly enjoyed was an evening of music held in conjunction with the Varsity Christian Union.

The Student Christian Movement studies the life of Christ from a scientific point of view. Treating the Bible as a text, the members discuss the social implications of Christ's teachings: how Christianity affects a people's thinking and values; its relationship with philosophy, psychology, history, and economics.

Desiring a well-rounded knowledge of current events and trends, the students invited a large number of guest speakers. Among these were Dr. McKenzie, whose subject was power politics, and Mr. Elmore Philpott, who spoke on Fascism.

This year's executive consisted of: President, Bruce Yorke; vice-president, Jim Williams; second vice-president, Jean Pridham; secretaries, Marnie Tunbridge, Julie Van Gorder; camp director, Kay Halpin; member-at-large, Rosemary Stewart.

Featuring films, informal talks by members, and addresses by notable guest speakers, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers aims to give students experience in the presentation and discussion of technical papers as well as introduce them to some subjects not included in the curriculum.

Guest speakers this year included Dr. G. G. Sedgwick who spoke on the importance of public speaking to the engineer, and the general manager of the B. C. Electric, who told of the type of work an engineer may expect on graduation.

The Institute also made a field trip to the transmitter of CBR on Lulu Island.

This year's executive consisted of: Staff advisor, Prof. W. B. Coulthard; president, Harry Ellis; secretary-treasurer, Austin Roper; fourth year president, John Sansum; fourth year treasurer, Miles Bodnar.

Meeting every week, the American Institute of Chemical Engineers aims to give its members experience in presenting and discussing technical papers and to foster interest in the development of the profession of chemical engineering. At the meetings students present papers and lead discussions. Book prizes are awarded to the authors of the best papers of the year. Prominent chemical engineers appear as guest speakers.

As the A.I.Ch.E. issues charters to universities with high standards only, the members are justly proud of their organization. It is the only student branch in Canada.

The executive for 1944-45 was: Honorary president, Mike Stusiak; president, John Powell; vice-president, Mickey Burrows; recording secretary-treasurer, George Perris; corresponding secretary, Jim Leith; librarian, Basil Dunell.

The Junior Canadian Society of Technical Agriculturists was founded by Agriculture students in the fall of 1940. It was the first club of its kind in Canada.

The purpose of the club is to promote co-operation between students and faculty in the field of agriculture. It keeps in contact with technically trained men in all fields of the profession.

The club consists mainly of senior students, who meet to discuss technical subjects, each student drawing up a paper on some chosen topic during the year.

New projects and methods of production, and conservation of materials, are being discussed with a view to the post-war period.

The executive this year was: Ted Cook, president; Neil McKinnon, vice-president; George Axen, secretary-treasurer; and Dave Blair, curator.

The U.B.C. Film Society, the first of its kind in Canada, was formed with the intention of learning to handle movie projection equipment.

Organized primarily for instruction, the club meets regularly to discuss technical improvements and other new developments in film presentation. Following the trends and gathering information, the president gives the members what instruction they need.

Working in close co-operation with the University Extension Department, the Film Society has shown many films varying in subject from those on foreign languages to COTC training.

The Film Society provides operators for projection machines off the campus.

This year's executive consisted of: President, Norm Coleopy; secretary, Alan White; honorary president, Dr. D. O. Evans.

. . . Glider Club

The Glider Club, an innovation on the campus this year, was immediately popular with the students, as soon as their plans for building and flying gliders were made known.

At the time of going to press the club has one glider under construction, and plans for many future ones. There are also seven members of the club working with the Vancouver Glider Club building another glider of a different type.

The club plans to have their glider in the air this summer, and they also hope to have a meet with the Vancouver Glider Club.

The glider is of the Northrop Primary construction and has a wing span of thirty-four feet, with a fuselage of seventeen feet,

The executive this year consisted of the following: Frank Woodward, president; Bill Adams, secretary-treasurer; George McLeod, production manager.

. . . Biology Discussions Club

Dr. Griffiths, James Hatte, L. de Grace, Iola Musfeldt, Gerry Wyatt

The Biological Discussions Club, organized to promote confidence in speaking and to stimulate interest and enthusiasm among students in the field of biological sciences, this year consisted of twenty active members including graduates and undergraduates as well as several honorary members

Spot-lighting each meeting was a paper presented by some volunteer undergraduate or guest speaker from which valuable and interesting discussions arose. The undergraduate speaker for the fall semester was Gerard R. Wyatt who spoke on "The Outbreak of the Blackheaded Budworm on the Coast of British Columbia." First guest speaker of the semester was Dr. M. Y. Williams, geological paleontologist, speaking on "Extinct Forms."

Once a year a meeting is devoted to "Observation Night" when each member gives a brief account of an interesting situation he observed.

. . . Social Problems Club

Jack MacDonald, Don Brown, Ed Lambe, Jacqueline Batt, Ruth Irish

The Social Problems Club was reorganized at the beginning of the year on a non-partisan basis. The constitution and program were revised with objects of more active members and of more study.

The main activity of the SPC this year has been in its discussion groups and study groups in order to develop in students a better understanding of social problems.

Large public meetings have been held at which well-known speakers have been presented, including N. A. M. MacKenzie, Elmore Philpott, Peter Stursberg, Solon Low and the Secretary of State for Canada, Hon. Norman McLarty.

Membership in the Social Problems Club is open to all students. The officers for 1944-45 were: President, Don Brown; vice-president, Jack MacDonald; secretary-treasurer, Jacqueline Batt; program director, Ed Lambe; publicity director, Ruth Irish.

. . . Fellowship and low cost of living

Co-operation is the keynote of the 55 resident members of the University Students' Co-operative Association. Incorporated under the Societies Act in 1939 the organization now operates three residences for men and one for women.

Aiming to supply comfortable board and pleasant surroundings at a reasonable rate the Co-op has succeeded so well that some members have lived in the residences all year round since joining.

While most of the members admit that they were first attracted to the Co-op by a board rate considerably lower than the prevailing scale, they soon discovered that the most outstanding feature is the feeling of good fellowship that exists between co-ops.

Eating, sleeping, and working together the residents learn the value of tolerance and co-operation. The boys place any of their possessions at the disposal of the rest of the house, be it a collar button, text-book, or last year's campus map.

Administration of the residences is simple. With the exception of the evening meal, which is prepared by the house-mother, all work is done by the members. Each student has some daily job which seldom takes more than half an hour. The jobs are mainly routine housework, such as washing dishes, peeling vegetables and chopping wood.

Although originally the jobs were rotated at the end of each month, most members prefer to find a job that fits their time-table and keep it. They feel that they can achieve greater efficiency in that way. Each house also has an executive consisting of a house-manager, treasurer, and purchasing agent who keep things running smoothly.

In order that the members of the various houses may get to know each other better exchange suppers are held every week with each house sending representatives to each of the other houses. Exchange nights also feature outside guests such as President MacKenzie and Registrar C. B. Wood.

Other activities this year included two parties organized in conjunction with downtown co-ops and two inter-house ping pong tournaments.

In former years the Co-op has had little trouble in obtaining houses to operate as residences, but since the housing shortage developed the association has been compelled to turn away almost two-thirds of the applicants each year because there is no room. However, the Co-op is now buying one house and is making all possible efforts to acquire others.

In Memoriam

ARVID REKSTEN

Science '46, Electrical Engineering.

The death of Arvid Reksten in December, 1944, meant the loss of one of the most liked and versatile members of Science '46. A keen athlete, he was active in track, skiing, mountaineering, and ice hockey, and was a member of the Outdoor Club. Reksten was also a prominent musician on the campus, playing his clarinet in the Musical Society Orchestra and the Varsity Band, as well as being president of the latter. With all his extra-curricular activities, he consistently maintained a high scholastic standing, and was holder of the W. M. Swan Memorial Bursary.

Reksten was affiliated with the Kappa Sigma Fraternity.

Who owns the great dams, transmission lines, the power houses and rolling stock of the B. C. Electric? Not one man, and not a small select group. The B. C. Electric is owned by a lot of people who have saved their money, and invested it in a sound enterprise. These people — 30,624 of them—have a stake in the future of British Columbia and faith in its builders.

COURAGE -

"HAPPY," it has been said by a distinguished man, "is he who can leave college with an unrepenting conscience and an unsullied heart." I don't know; he sounds to me like a sloppy, watery sort of fellow; happy, perhaps, but if there be real blood in him impossible. Be not disheartened by ideals of perfection which can be achieved only by those who run away. Nature, that 'thrifty goddess', never gave you the 'smallest scruple of her excellence' for that . . . Courage is the thing. All goes if courage goes. What says our glorious Johnson of courage: "Unless a man has that virtue he has no security for preserving any other." We should thank our Creator three times daily for courage instead of for our bread, which, if we work, is surely the one thing we have a right to claim of Him. This courage is greater even than gardens 'when the eve is cool.' Pray for it. "Who rises from prayer a better man, his prayer is answered."

We quote from Sir James Barrie's famous speech to the students of St. Andrew's University, Edinburgh, with the hope that it may prove equally as inspiring to the graduating students of the University of British Columbia. Our very best wishes for your future success and good luck.

For School or for Play .. It's Shop at the Bay!

This year, as always . . . whether you're a Grad or a forthcoming Sophomore . . . The BAY has your interests at heart.

For years we've passed — with flying colors — the "Fashion Favorites" test of the College crowd. We know you want fashion "firsts" made especially for you . . . and we have them. In our Third Floor Fashion Centre you'll find coats, suits, dresses and hats to keep you looking attractive and well-groomed from dawn to dark.

That's why we say . . . "Make The BAY your shopping headquarters!"

“Joe Blakes”

When an Australian soldier is low in spirits he refers to his complaint as “the Joe Blakes”. A frequent cause of “Joes” is lack of cash when needed. To avoid this malady make a practice of setting aside part of your monthly income regularly, in a savings account at the bank.

THE LIBRARY OF THE UNIVERSITY OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

The Gift of Opportunity

The Library, surrounded by beautiful landscaping on the campus, is the embodiment of opportunity . . . the centre of the hopes and aspirations of graduates seeking the success of the future that "our way of life" holds out to the persevering mind. To those graduates of '45, we offer our sincere hopes and congratulations! The same thoughts have been constantly in our minds, and for many years the firm of Ward & Phillips Limited has produced printing of fine quality, specializing in planning advertising literature from the "idea to the mailbag".

A GOOD IDEA STAYS GOOD!

In 1938-39 the TOTEM in its present form and size was created by Cleland-Kent—which was a good idea. It portrayed the life and activities on the U.B.C. campus in the only permanent record made. In this year 1945, the Totem returns to the campus after being discontinued for two years, because of wartime difficulties in production. Once again, life of the University year is recorded by word and picture for all time. It was a good idea in 1939, it is a good idea today, and we at Cleland-Kent are proud of the part we have played in the production of the 1945 Totem.
