DEDICATION

This University, doubtless to as great an extent as any school on the continent, has reason to respect the spirit of its undergraduate classes. There are few cases to parallel the vigour shown in University of British Columbia student enterprises. A review of the University history will indicate the active part that student endeavour has taken in the development of this institution. Development here implies not only the important but abstract ideas of general tone, disposition and prestige, but also the material examples of new sites, buildings, and faculties. To the 1915 to 1947 Undergraduates we offer our sincere gratitude. To the 1947 Undergraduates, in whose charge rest the traditions of student achievement and the opportunity to apply these traditions in building a greater University in the future, we dedicate this book.

FOREWORD

From the day he steps into his first registration line-up to the moment when he receives his precious sheepskin, the University student, consciously or unconsciously, is busy acquiring a vast collection of new experiences. Freshman or senior, he is continually adding to this collection—new friends, new ideas, new studies—actually, a new mode of living.

Years from now, these experiences will be labelled "memories of the best years of my life," and will be carefully tucked away in the back of the mind, to be brought out at nostalgic reunions with other grads.

Inevitably, many of the experiences will be forgotten. Only the highlights will be remembered. In a similar manner to the way in which the student acquires his memories, the Totem acquires its material. Only the highlights are mentioned. Naturally it would be impossible to collect all the experiences of every student of the University of British Columbia in one book. It is possible, however, to imitate the memory and cover the highlights of a Varsity year.

There is, somewhere in the Totem, something included in the experiences of every U.B.C. student—be it class mates, professors, a club production, fraternity brothers, a formal, or perhaps some favourite spot on the campus. These aspects of University life, and many more, are found in the Totem; they all add up to one thing—a year at U.B.C.

Each volume of the Totem represents one year of memories. And the 1947 graduate will have much to remember of the last few action-packed years.

In his life as a student he has seen immense changes in his University and the world, He has seen a campus at war, with co-eds knitting for war-stricken people, with secret research in the laboratories with marching squads on the Mall. He has experienced the end of the war, and seen veterans with be-ribboned battle dress mix with freshmen in the Quad.

He has seen hundreds of squat army huts spring up among the dignified stone buildings. He has watched the enrollment leap from 3,000 to 9,000 in three short years. He has lived next door to his professors in the first residences the campus has ever known. He has witnessed expansion in every educational department, the development and opening of new faculties.

He has seen the death of Chancellor R. E. McKechnie and the retirement of President L. S. Klinck. He has welcomed Chancellor Eric W. Hamber and President N. A. M. MacKenzie. He has rejoiced at a $5,000,000 government appropriation for new buildings. He has seen the start of the construction of a permanent Physics Building, and the beginning of a Library extension.

These and many other important changes he has seen in his quickly sped years at U.B.C. These events he will never forget. Other things he will remember—vivid experiences that are perhaps in themselves unimportant, but to the individual mean much.

A brilliant lecture, early morning coffee in the Caf, pepmeets, the beach on a warm spring day, a Mardi Gras, the deserted bus stop at night, the stacks, labs, Brock dances—hundreds of small, unclassified impressions—are remembered by the individual.

To help recall such impressions in those reminiscing moods of later years, the Editorial Board presents the 1947 Totem with the hope that it will give you pleasure when remembering ONE YEAR AT U.B.C.

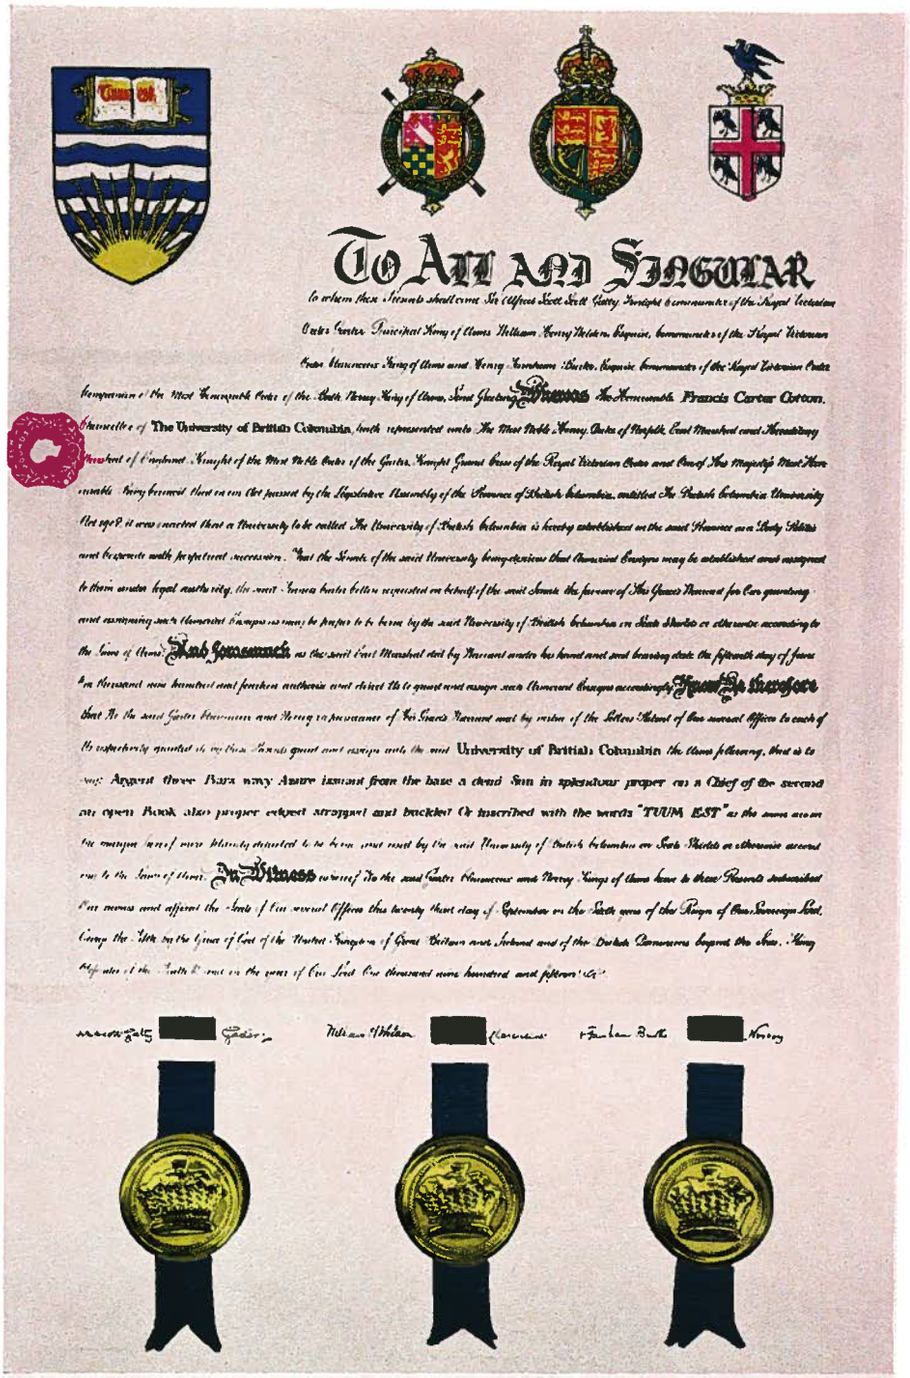

This year The Totem brings you an History Section as the opening feature of the book. This history of the University has, in fact, been developed as a theme throughout the volume.

The most obvious reason for this choice results from the very name—Totem. As the Totem pole was the historical record of the tribe, so, The Totem is the record of U.B.C.

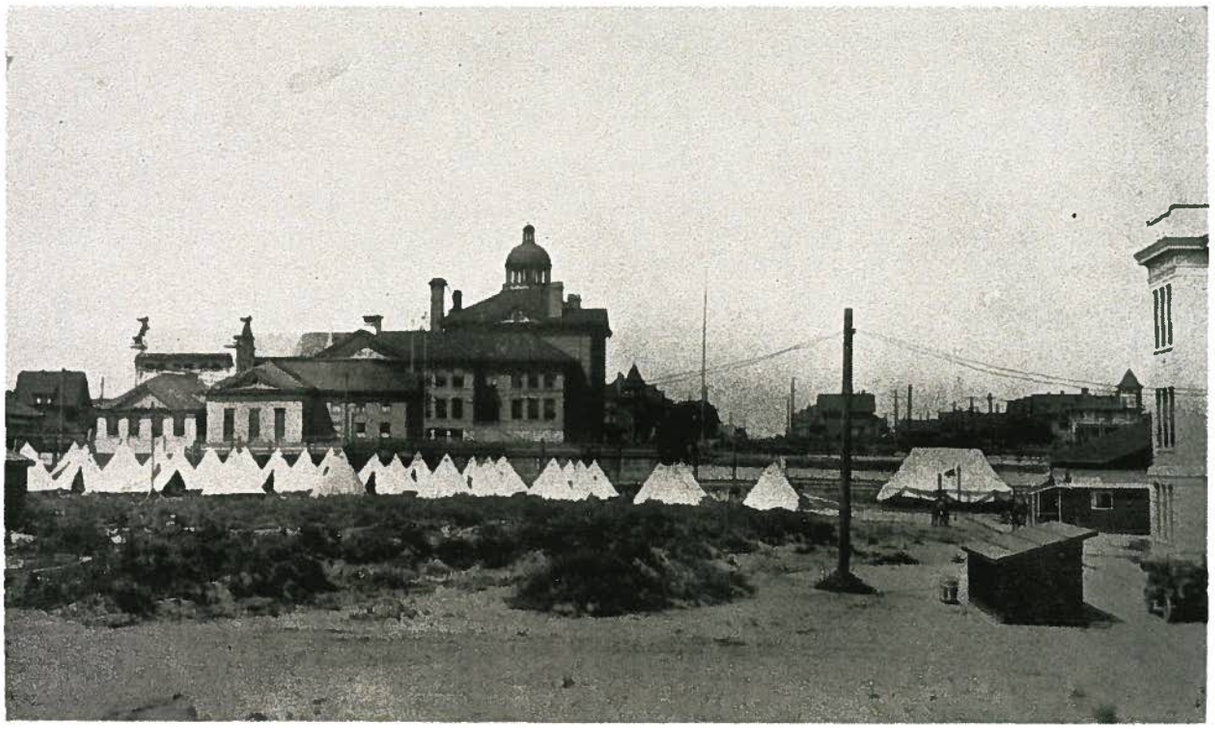

Secondly, including this history of not only this year but of all past years of U.B.C.'s existence, may bring to your attention our magnificent heritage of tradition at this, a most critical time.

Our University, faced with postwar problems is now at the crossroads of its development. We feel that a knowledge of the great work and faith that made it will help to build an even greater University of British Columbia of the future.

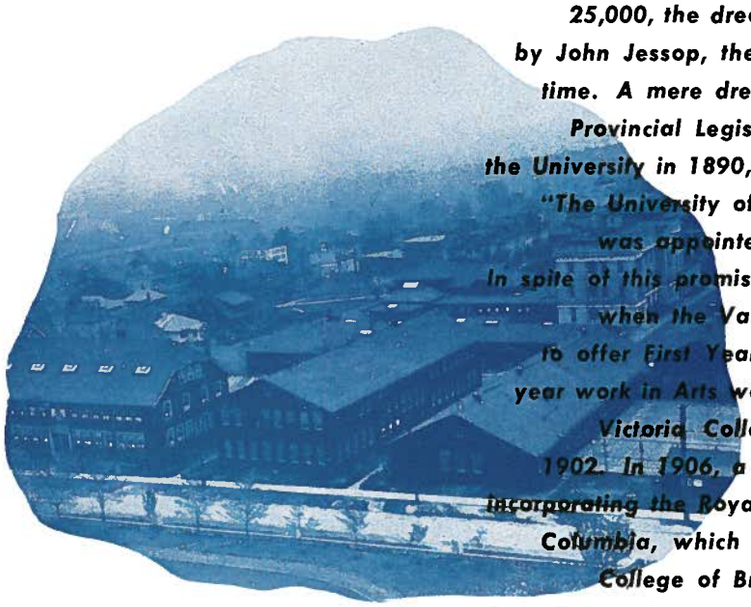

TO ALL AND SINGULAR

HISTORY

Tents which the students used for lecture rooms at the Fairview "Shacks" University of 1915-1924.

John Jessop First Suggests A

In 1877, when the white population of British Columbia was less than 25,000, the dream of a University for this province was suggested first by John Jessop, the Provincial Superintendent of Education at that time. A mere dream, however, it had to remain for 13 years. The Provincial Legislature took the first definite steps towards founding the University in 1890, establishing a body politic and corporate, named "The University of British Columbia". Dr. I. W. Powell of Victoria was appointed Chancellor, and a Senate was elected.

In spite of this promising activity, nothing was accomplished until 1898, when the Vancouver High School affiliated with McGill University to offer First Year Arts and took the name of Vancouver College. First year work in Arts was offered by Victoria High School when it became Victoria College by affiliation with McGill University in 1902. In 1906, a further step was taken when an act was passed incorporating the Royal Institution for the Advancement of Learning of British Columbia, which the same year established the McGill University College of British Columbia in Vancouver.

Over 700 students attended this college during the next eight years. The scope of work was gradually increased until the College was offering three years in Arts and two years in Applied Science. In the meantime, interest in the idea of a Provincial University was growing.

In 1907, an Act was passed endowing the University with 2,000,000 acres of Crown lands, and in the following year a new University Act was passed, repealing the old Act of 1890. This new Act, with amendments, determines the present constitution of the University.

Early in 1910, the Provincial Legislature passed an Act authorizing the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to appoint a Commission to decide upon a site for the proposed University. This Commission, a group of distinguished educationalists from outside the Province, spent the summer thoroughly examining the Province, and in the autumn they presented a report recommending the vicinity of Vancouver as the most suitable. The Executive Council decided to place the University at Point Grey—the site which the Commission had named as its first choice.

In 1911, this site was granted. The grant was later increased so that it now consists of 548 acres. The 3,000-acre tract adjoining the campus proper was granted in exchange for the Crown lands previously given.

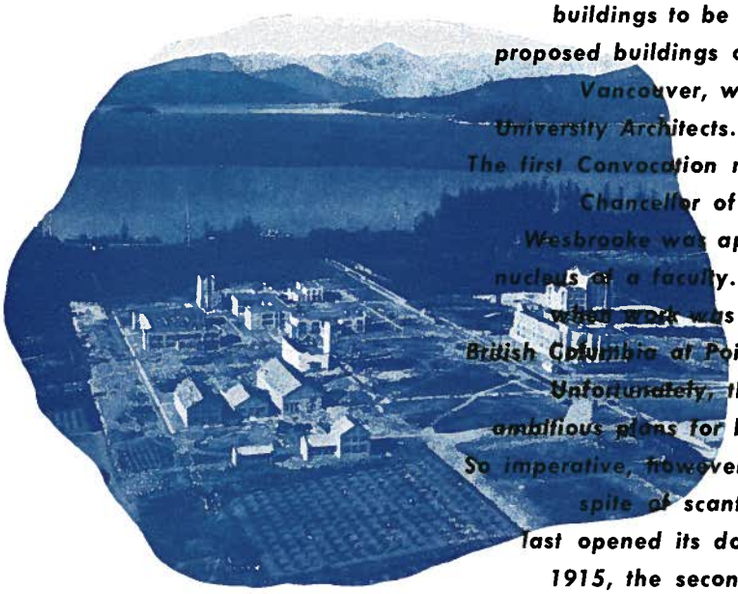

In February, 1912, the Hon. H. E. Young, Minister of Education, called for competitive tenders which should include plans in detail for four buildings to be erected immediately, and a block plan showing all the proposed buildings on the campus. Messrs. Sharp and Thompson, of Vancouver, were the successful competitors, and were appointed University Architects.

The first Convocation met in 1912 and chose Mr. F. L. Carter-Cotten as first Chancellor of the University. The following year, Dr. F. F. Wesbrooke was appointed President. Steps were also taken to create the nucleus of a faculty. Clearing operations were undertaken, and in 1914 when work was begun on the Science building, The University of British Columbia at Point Grey seemed a thing of the immediate future. Unfortunately, the outbreak of World War I put a stop to the ambitious plans for building.

So imperative, however, was the need for a Provincial University, that, in spite of scanty funds, the University of British Columbia at last opened its doors as an independent institution on September 30, 1915, the second year of the war. The memory of those war years is perpetuated by one small symbol. The yoke of the undergraduate gown is edged with khaki cord. This symbol is intended as a perpetual reminder to the students, to symbolize for them the birth of the University during the war.

U.B.C. was first housed in the crowded Fairview "Shacks" of the Vancouver General Hospital. The staff of those days included several members of the present faculty. The enrollment the first year was 379, in the main, co-eds, because the war depleted the male student body. The first student publication, Anon, a monthly magazine of a literary nature, appeared in 1916.

Despite the cramped conditions, the students of the "Shacks" under the leadership of Sherwood Lett, the first president of the Alma Mater Society, carried on many activities. In 1915, the Players Club was formed, and the following year, the Musical Society. In the same year the first Frosh initiation was held, there being no initiation the first session as then "everyone was a freshman". The freshette reception included speeches, a musical program and a reading. The rest of the evening was "spent in dainty conversation".

The name of the student newspaper was changed to Ubicee, and, finally, in 1918, the first issues of a weekly Ubyssey appeared on a Fairview campus, promising to bring the students the news while it was "hot". The paper featured articles on the merits of ragtime, and letters to the editor complaining that some freshman wore short pants.

The students were always conscious of their inadequate facilities, and, in the Ubyssey among the reports of dances and debates often appeared pleas for their "permanent dwelling in Point Grey".

Just before Armistice, the University lost its first President on the death of Dr. Wesbrooke. He was succeeded by Dr. L. S. Klinck. The same year, Mr. Carter-Cotten retired, to be succeeded by Dr. R. E. McKechnie.

During the influenza epidemic of 1918, students assisted in the hospitals as nurses and orderlies. A.M.S. fees were $2.00. The Players Club announced that they would present Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest" for their spring play of 1919, a fact which the Ubyssey deplored as showing trash under the guise of student entertainment. Examinations were reduced to one hour in length.

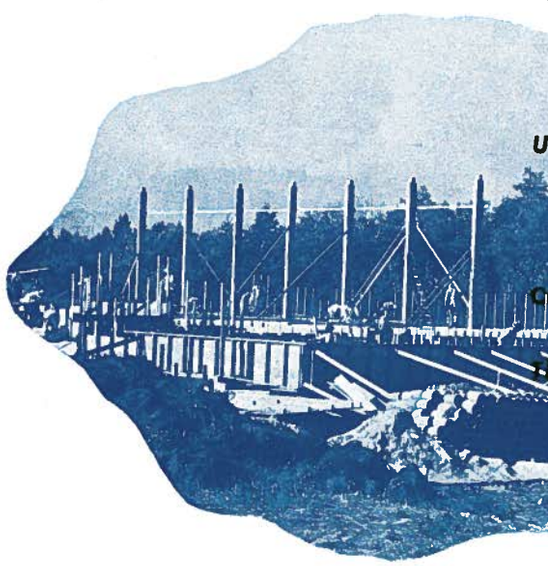

Varsity held its first Victoria Invasion, spending the week-end alternately winning and losing games with Victoria College. Final score— four wins each. A student song book was published that year, containing "British Grenadiers," "Ye Mariners of England" and

The partially-completed Stadium, which, with the wooden bleachers, will hold 2,600 spectators.

Despite Crowded Conditions

"Sentimental Songs". A new yell was written, beginning "U. Jazz Jazz". All women except Freshettes were ordered by the Women's Undergraduate Society to wear their hair up. The women held their first Hi-Jinx in February, 1919. One lone man appeared, but was quickly vanquished.

U.B.C. played Stanford in 1920, losing 8-0, but beat them in a return game the following year, 12-0, causing editorial rejoicing at having "found a University". New departments of Nursing, Forestry and Mechanical Engineering were added that year, and Wilson Coates became British Columbia's first Rhodes Scholar. Critics claimed that the Varsity was "unnecessary, dull, weak, anaemic and sensational". That year, the co-eds held the first pepmeet in the history of the University, in honor of the Arts men. On February 6, 1925, an astrologist predicted the end of the world. The engineers protested, because that was the night of the Science Ball. The Players Club, for their tenth anniversary, presented "You and I," by Phillip Barrie. Two men crashed Hi-Jinx. W.U.S. termed their actions as an "utter lack of sportsmanship and college spirit."

In the meantime, students sat on radiators and kitchen chairs, and had lectures in tents. The enrollment continued to increase each year.

Finally, in desperation, the students, led by Ab Richards, president of the A.M.S., organized the now-famous Student Campaign of 1922. To bring to public attention the stifling conditions at the Fairview "Shacks," they held mass meetings and parades. They canvassed the Province and obtained thousands of signatures on a petition to the Legislative Assembly, asking for a grant to complete the buildings at Point Grey. Six page boys were needed to present it to the House.

The climax of the campaign came on October 29, when the students made the "Great Trek," staging a monster parade through downtown Vancouver, then riding in street cars to Tenth and Sasamat. They marched to the campus and perched on the skeleton framework of the Science Building. In the parade they carried stones, later used in the construction of the Cairn, at which the Frosh gather each year to pay tribute to the class of '22. Campaign delegates addressed the Legislative Assembly, where Ab. Richards made "a stirring and convincing speech to the House".

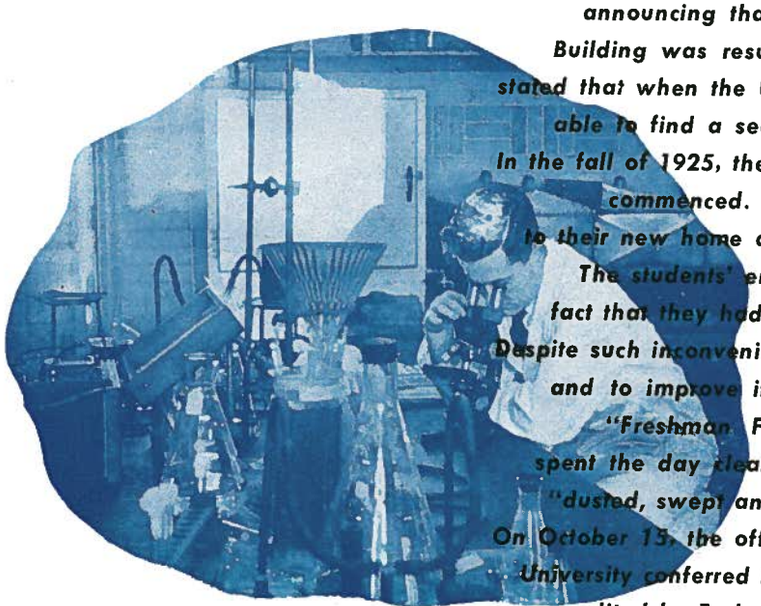

As a direct result of this campaign, the government, on November 9, granted

Part of today's campus, whose well-landscaped lawns are a pleasant place to relax on a spring day.

Government To Complete Campus

the University $1,500,000. The Ubyssey ran jubilant headlines announcing that at last the government "Saw the Point". Building was resumed the following year. An editorial optimistically stated that when the University moved to Point Grey "every student will be able to find a seat in the library".

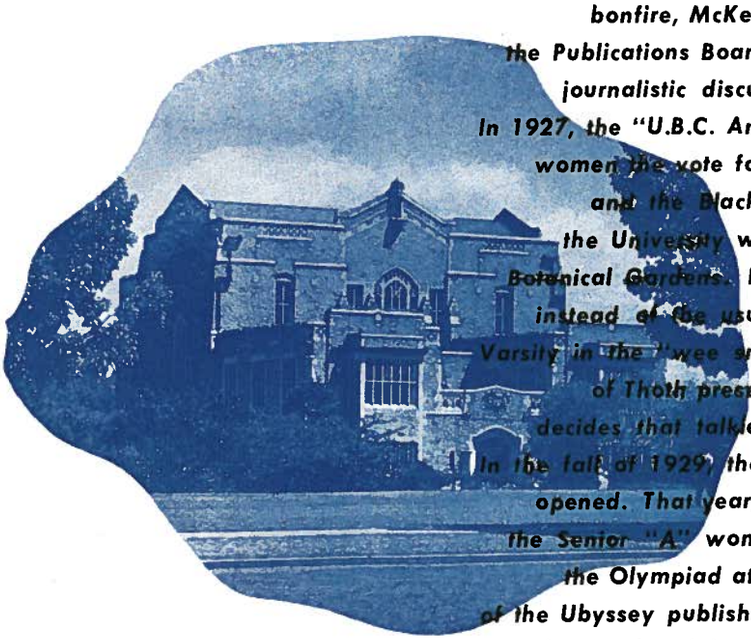

In the fall of 1925, the first session of the University at Point Grey commenced. The President and Chancellor welcomed the students to their new home at the first meeting ever held in the Auditorium. The students' enthusiasm at this meeting was not dimmed by the fact that they had to sit on the floor of the uncompleted building. Despite such inconveniences, the students were jubilant over their new home, and to improve its, at that time, rugged appearance, they held a "Freshman Field Day", in which the Freshman classes spent the day clearing stones off the playing fields, while Freshettes "dusted, swept and polished".

On October 15, the official inauguration ceremonies were held, and the University conferred its first honorary degrees. In 1925, the Ubyssey, edited by Earle Birney, became a bi-weekly. The first official Homecoming was held in the fall of 1926, complete with theatre night, bonfire, McKechnie Cup game and basketball dance. That year the Publications Board members formed the "Society of Thoth," a journalistic discussions group.

In 1927, the "U.B.C. Annual" became the Totem. Mock Parliament gave women the vote for the first time. Students were dancing the Charleston and the Black Bottom. At Homecoming, the Alumnae presented the University with the two Totem poles which stand now in the Botanical Gardens. Lectures in several courses were begun at 8:45, instead of the usual 9:00. Students moaned at the idea of going to Varsity in the "wee sma' hours". The Mamooks were formed. The Society of Thoth presented a ballet at Homecoming. A student poll decides that talkies are here to stay.

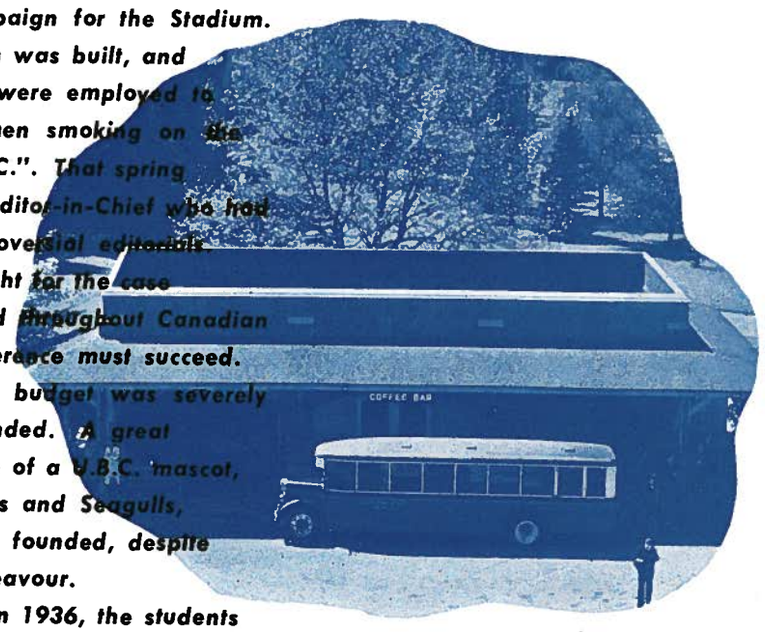

In the fall of 1929, the University Gymnasium was completed and officially opened. That year, U.B.C. students attended the Pan-Pacific Conference, the Senior "A" women's basketball team won the Championship of the Olympiad at Prague, and the Muck-a-Muck humour page of the Ubyssey published a fore-runner of the Goon Issue, stating that thousands rejoiced as the library burns, and advocating the sale of beer on the campus to raise college spirit.

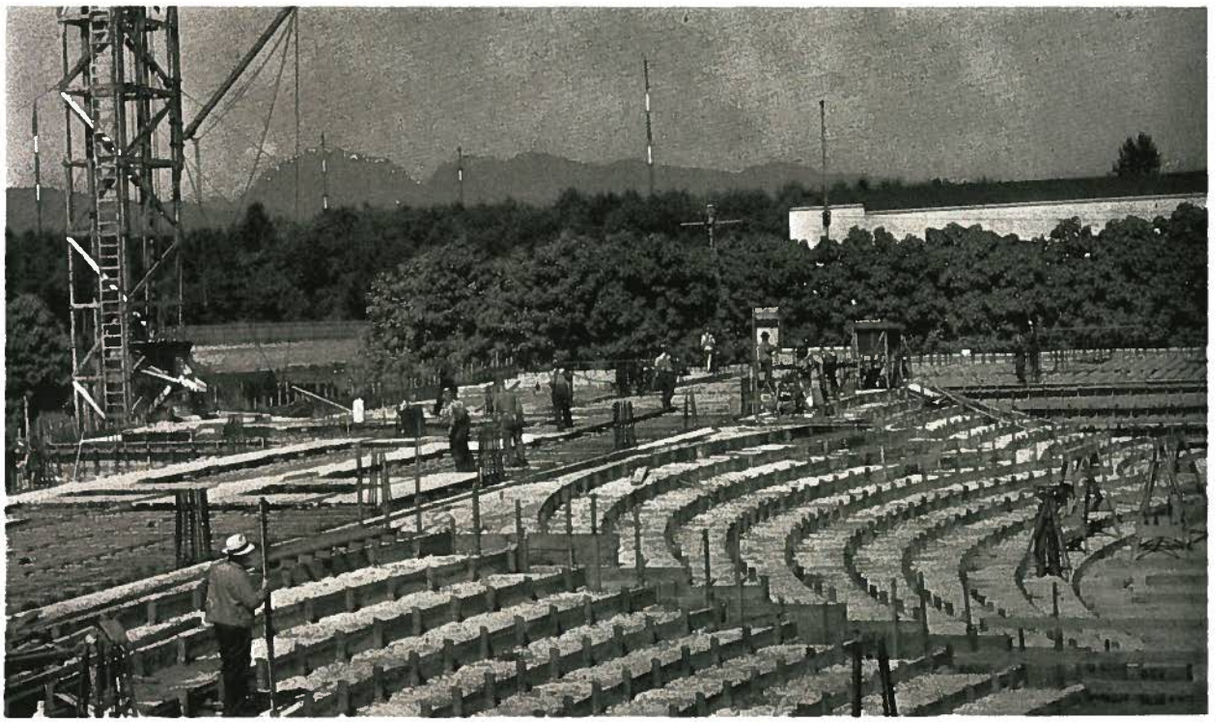

The student-built Brock Memorial Hall which was dedicated to Dean and Mrs. Brock in 1940.

And Begin Stadium Campaign

The financial depression of 1929 reduced the enrollment, but despite the scarcity of money, the students began a campaign for the Stadium. Men promised not to shave until the Stadium was built, and torchlight processions, tag days and horse races were employed to raise funds. Co-eds passed a ruling against women smoking on the campus. In 1931, Harold King wrote "Hail U.B.C.". That spring the Ubyssey suspended publications in support of the Editor-in-Chief who had been suspended for two weeks because of controversial editorials. It resumed publications, however, only "to fight for the case Free Speech". A student petition was circulated throughout Canadian Universities, stating that the next disarmament conference must succeed. Despite student campaigning, in 1932, the University budget was severely cut. A bursary fund for needy students was founded. A great discussion was raised in 1933 over the choice of a U.B.C. mascot, and after discarding B.C. Beetles, Golden Eagles and Seagulls, the students chose the Thunderbirds. Phrateres was founded, despite editorial forebodings as to the success of the endeavour. Gwen Pym was elected the first Junior Prom queen. In 1936, the students started the University Student Union Building campaign, with

War Brings Military Campus

$15,000 from the former Women's Union Building Fund. That year a mumps epidemic emptied the campus for several weeks and left only the sports staff to publish the Ubyssey. Women's fashions on the Society pages highlighted informal afternoon dresses of ankle-length velvet.

In 1937, the Stadium was built and over $45,000 was raised for the Union Building. A feature story on the extravagant amount spent by U.B.C. students, carried by Canadian Press, was reprinted throughout Canada and the U.S.A. Students objected to what they termed "gross exaggerations" of the story. A Vancouver newspaper suggested editorially that women only came to U.B.C. to get a husband. Co-eds stormed the paper with letters of indignation and denial.

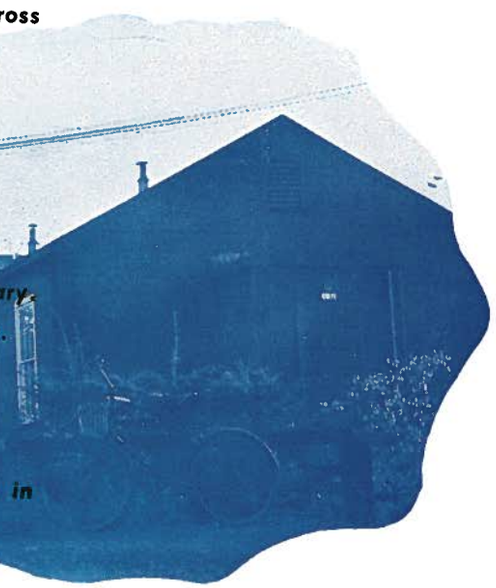

The enrollment reached 2,227, and faculty deplored the overcrowding. The Board of Governors limited enrollment, and the students held protest meetings and succeeded in their campaign. At the outbreak of World War II in 1939, the University pledged its resources to the government. The C.O.T.C. became compulsory, and the U.N.T.D. and U.A.T.C. were formed. Co-eds began voluntary war work. The Brock Memorial Building was officially dedicated in 1940, and the building,

A few of the 250 reconverted army huts utilized for lectures and labs to relieve post-war overcrowding.

And Great Postwar Expansion

primarily designed as the social centre of the campus, became, in those serious war times, the centre of Co-ed war work. The first Red Cross Ball realized $2,000. The War Aid Council was formed. Dr. McKechnie died on May 24, 1944, and was succeeded as Chancellor by the Hon. Eric W. Hamber. President Klinck retired and was followed by President Norman A. M. MacKenzie. The government granted the University $5,000,000 for buildings and expansion. The Physics Building and Library wing were begun in 1946. The War Memorial Gymnasium Drive for $500,000 was begun in February. Perhaps the fullest chapter of the University's history is being written today. Such problems as those presented in the overwhelming enrollment, the lack of facilities which necessitated the addition to the campus of over 250 army huts, the scarcity of tutorial staff, and the expansion in all departments, must certainly become a vital link in U.B.C.'s chain of development. The vigour with which the obstacles of the past year have been surmounted well exemplifies an adherence to the U.B.C.'s magnificent fabric of tradition. With such a heritage, the future of the University is assured.

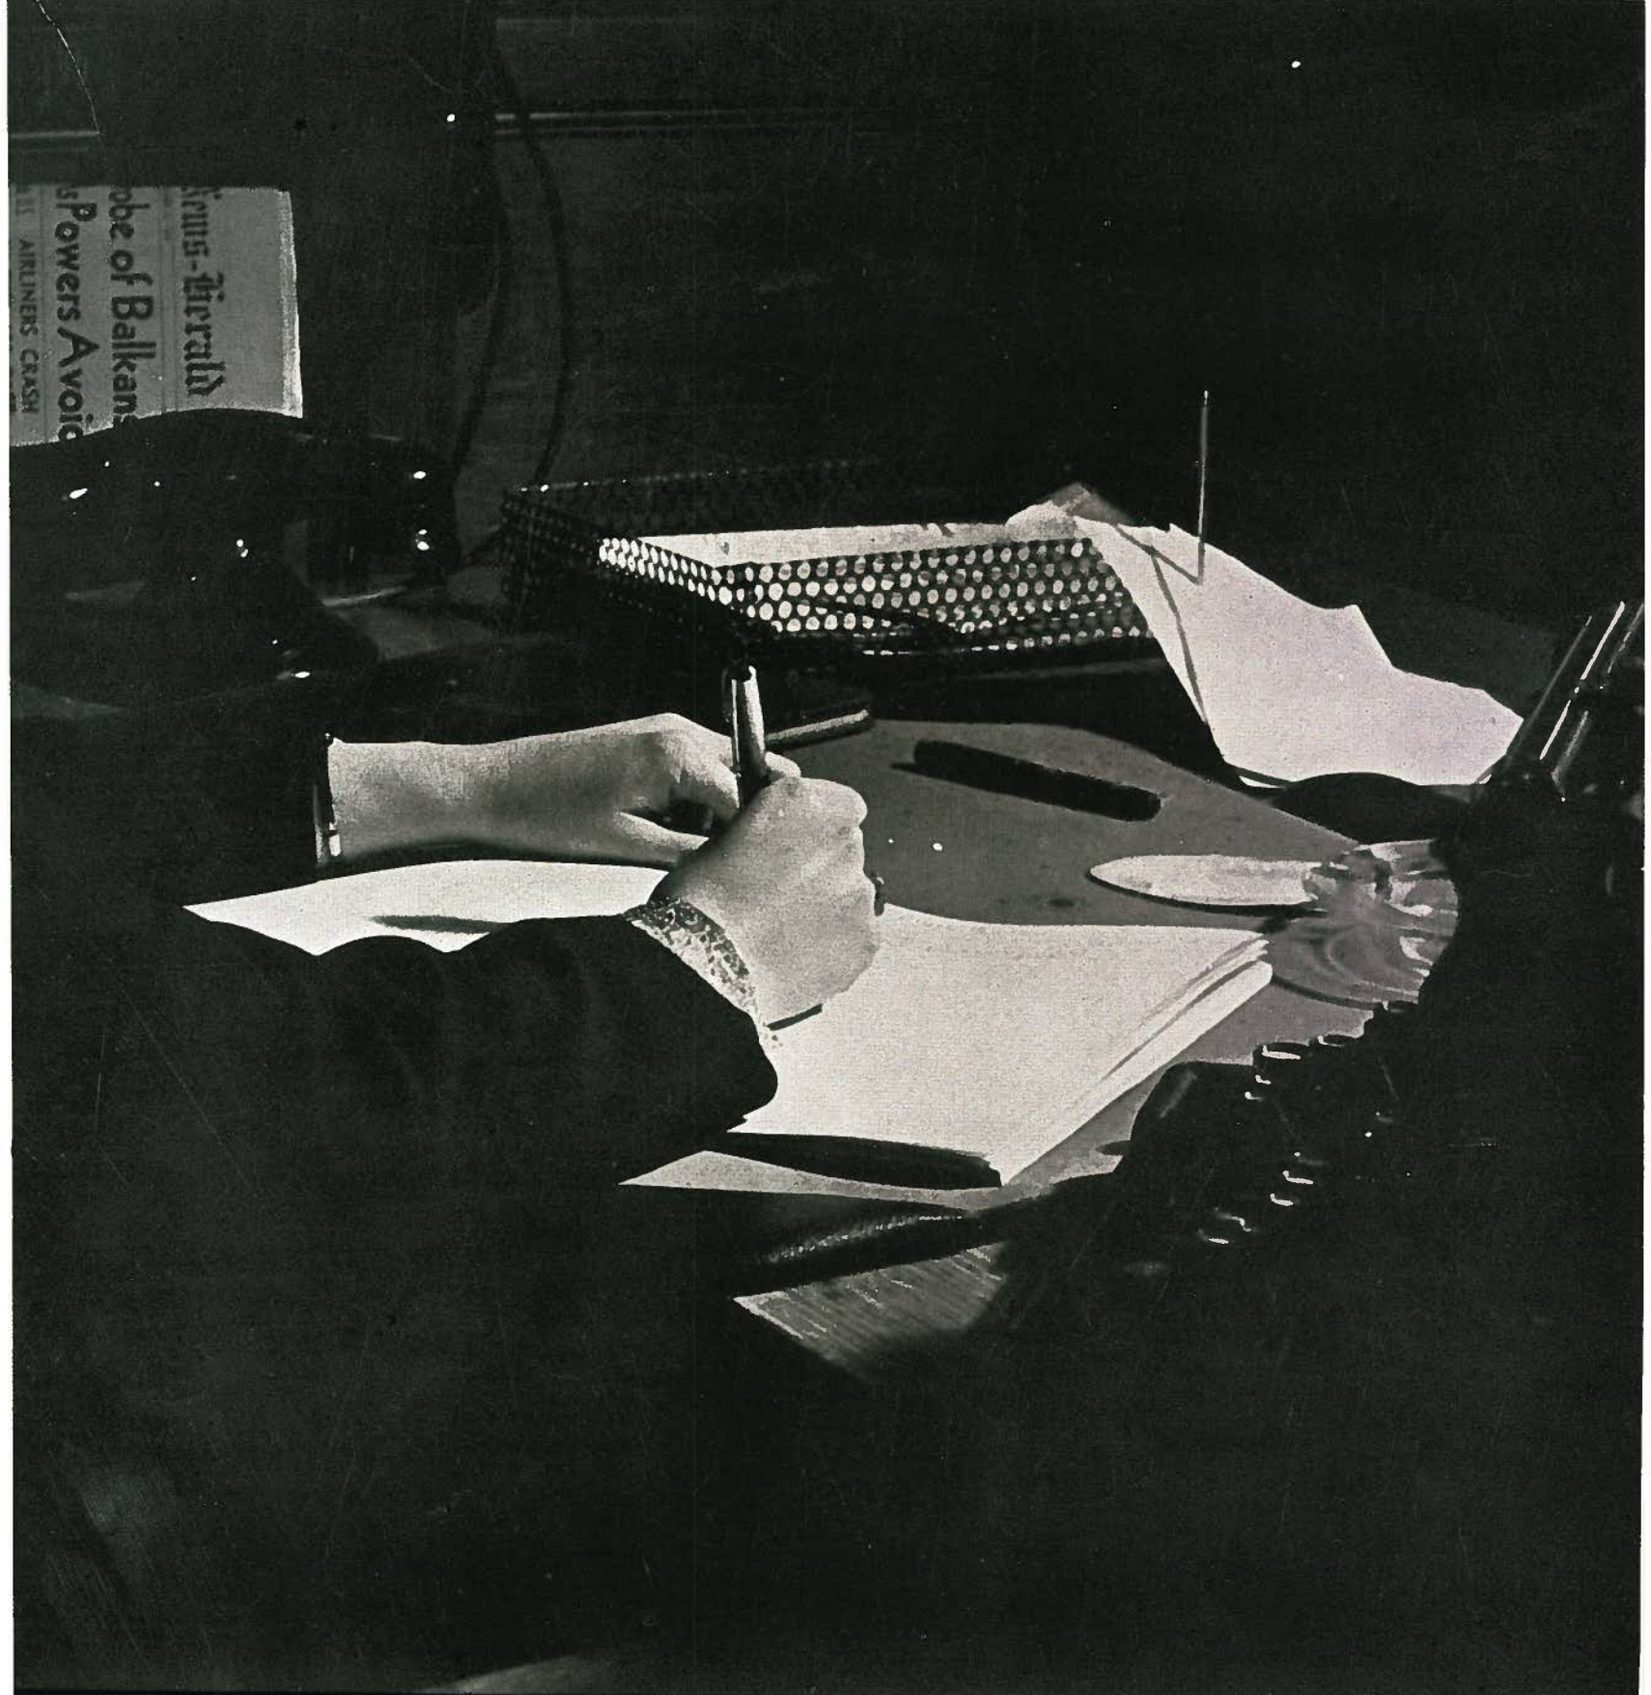

Administration is the controlling influence of the institution. The U.B.C. Administration is divided into two distinct governing bodies—faculty and student.

Strong student government has been encouraged since the inception of the University. The undergraduates have controlled student affairs with a minimum of faculty intervention.

The history of U.B.C. is closely linked with student endeavour. The spirit of the students has continually spurred new campus developments. In these enterprises the students have always had an able and energetic faculty to guide them.

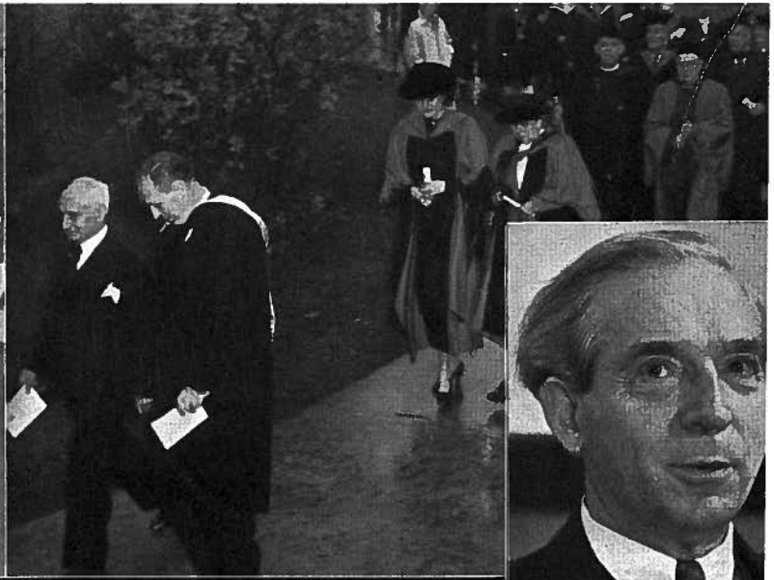

The present Faculty Administration has already successfully surmounted the imposing difficulties of rapid post-war expansion.

The challenge of "Tuum Est" will be heeded by both faculty and students as the watchword of the future.

President MacKenzie's Message

I am glad to again have the opportunity of writing a short statement for the Totem, and I would like to extend my congratulations to the members of your staff for the excellent work they have done and are doing in connection with this publication. I would like, too, to extend my greetings and good wishes to the Graduating Class of 1947 and to the Student Body generally. For those who graduate, I hope that as they go out into the community they may find interesting and creative opportunities, and that they will have happy and successful lives. Our world is still an uncertain and an uneasy one, and it has need of all the young men and women of intelligence and goodwill that the universities can train. This is particularly true in respect of the fields of human relations and international affairs. There is a great deal of misunderstanding and suspicion abroad in the world between groups and classes of people and among the nations. This misunderstanding and suspicion makes effective co-operation difficult and may lead to strife and conflict locally and internationally with all the loss and suffering that accompanies such conflict. Everything that we can do as individuals to prevent this and to promote understanding and goodwill will benefit all of us. To those who continue at the University, I would expect that the next two or three years will continue to be as stimulating and as interesting as the past one has been. I hope, however, that it will be possible for those of us in administrative and teaching positions to be able to provide better opportunities and more facilities for the Student Body generally, for we are all of us aware of the difficulties that the students have had to contend with during the past two years. In any event, I am sure that we will all, students and staff alike, do our best to meet any demands that are made upon us.

—N. A .M. MacKENZIE.

Fall Congregation Graduates

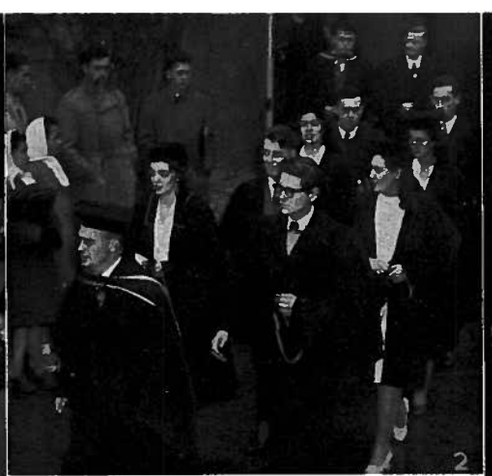

Two hundred and six students received degrees in October's Fall Congregation, the largest in the history of the University. Most of the graduates were ex-service men and women who completed their courses during the special spring and summer sessions.

The two hundred cap-and-gowned graduates then marched in solemn procession across the stage to receive their sheepskins in front of a capacity crowd of parents, friends and relatives.

Following the ceremony, a tea was held in Brock Hall for the fledgling alumni, and all those who attended the ceremony.

The ceremony began with a brief address by Chancellor Eric W. Hamber, former Lieutenant Governor of British Columbia, followed by the conferring of two honourary degrees by President MacKenzie. The first, Doctor of Science, went to Dr. W. G. Penfield, eminent neurologist and surgeon. Dr. Penfield gave the graduating address. A second honourary degree, Doctor of Laws, was conferred to Samuel J. Willis, B.A., LL.D. Dr. Willis was associate professor at U.B.C. from 1916-1918.

Deans Solve Many Postwar Problems

Contrary to the opinions of many sciencemen on the campus who express doubt as to the value of an Arts course, the Faculty of Arts continues year after year to prove its worth for the many students who flock to its banner. The Arts faculty, more than any other, provides students with a thorough and well rounded education. Its courses range from mathematics and biology to the study of philosophy and social problems. As well as providing the cultural background for an enjoyment of life, it enables a student to step out immediately into his chosen profession or affords a sturdy basis for study of engineering, law, and other academic fields.

Courses in modern languages prepare the student not only for teaching but also for government and diplomatic posts.

WALTER H. GAGE
Assistant Dean

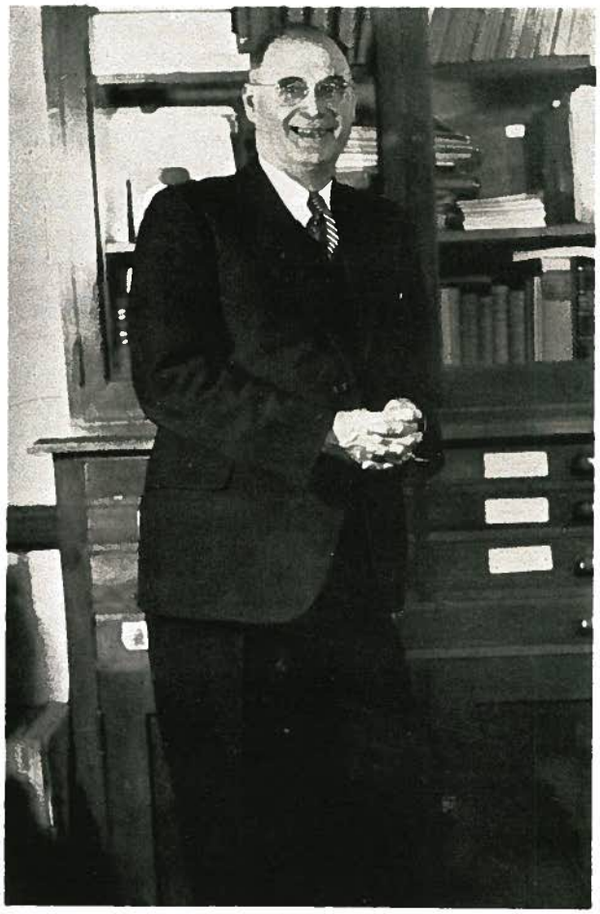

DANIEL BUCHANAN
Dean of Faculty of Arts and Science

Working in close co-operation with the Arts faculty, the Department of University Extension offers various courses to interested persons off the campus.

Dean Buchanan, popular head of Arts and Science, this term completes his twenty-sixth year at U.B.C. This year more than ever before he has had to use his foresight and experience in handling the many complex difficulties peculiar to the campus. The Dean and his assistant, the amiable Professor W. H. Gage, have had the tremendous task of interviewing and advising prospective students, arranging timetables that would not clash, and co-ordinating the work of various departments, as well as performing their regular duties. The university has this year distinguished itself for its generous policy of accepting all comers largely through the efforts of these two men, guided by the democratic ideals of President MacKenzie.

Despite the overwhelming increase in enrollment, the number and variety of the courses offered have been greatly increased. A Chair of Music has been established under Violinist Harry Adaskin, who has given lectures on musical appreciation as well as well-attended recitals.

F. M. CLEMENT
Dean of Faculty of Agriculture

The Faculty of Agriculture, under the able leadership of Dean F. M. Clement, has been expanding rapidly and attracting an ever increasing number of students. The number of courses has also increased and new faculty members have been appointed.

To augment the already varied work of the faculty, which offers a four-year course, special short courses for those interested in the practical aspects of farming have been added. The extension department works hand in hand with the faculty to increase agricultural knowledge by offering courses to outsiders. The new course of Farm Mechanics, a combined course in Agriculture and Commerce, a fundamental course in nutrition, a beginning course in Food Technology, and expansion of work in the soils and in fur animals have been added to the curriculum this year.

When we remember that such studies as cultivation and treatment of the soil, scientific study of plant nutrition, and the care and feeding of domestic animals all deal with man's basic need for food, we cannot overestimate the importance of the work being done by the students and faculty, particularly in view of the seriousness of the present world food shortage.

In the six years since she succeeded Dean Mary L. Bollert as Dean of Women at U.B.C., Dorothy Mawdsley has won the respect and friendship of thousands of women attending the university.

Always willing and eager to assist, in the capacity of advisor and friend, she solves innumerable problems which loom large in the life of the perplexed co-ed.

Included in her activities are the inspection of all boarding houses and housekeeping rooms and the listing of the approved accommodations for the aid of the out-of-town student.

Besides providing a source of enthusiastic assistance in the many activities of which women students partake during the year, she holds the positions of honourary president of Phrateres and the Pan-hellenic Council.

The Faculty of Law, organized at the commencement of the fall term in 1945, fills a long-felt need of the Province for the training of lawyers within its boundaries.

Under the leadership of Dean G. F. Curtis, the expanding faculty now boasts four permanent faculty members. In addition, President MacKenzie is a part-time lecturer. The greater part of the lectures, however, are given by well-known lawyers of the city of Vancouver who take time out from their business to come to the campus and pass on their knowledge and experience to the students and to emphasize the practical aspects of the profession.

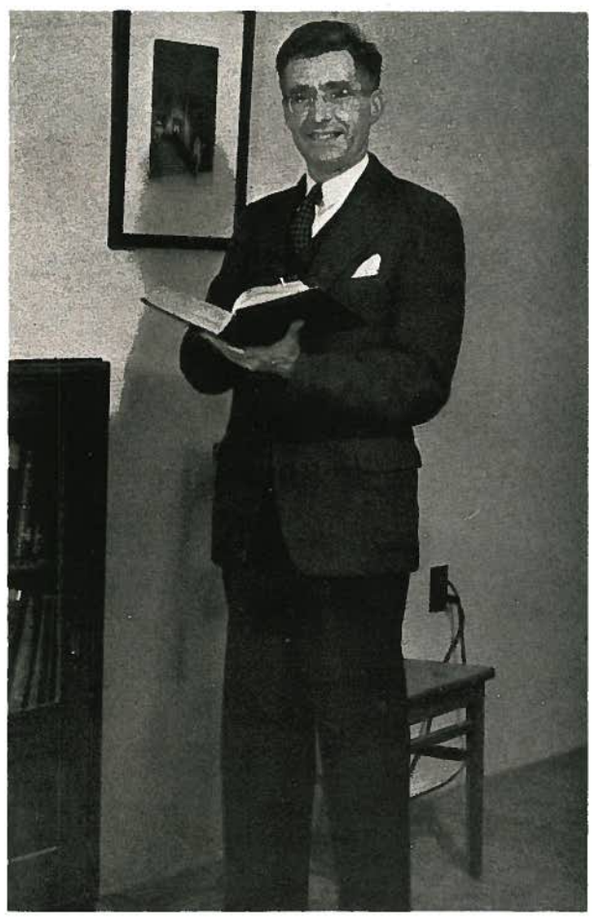

The aim of the faculty is to prepare students for the practice of law and business and government service. The curriculum is based upon that adopted by the Canadian Bar Association and leads to the degree of Bachelor of Law (LL.B.). Among the more interesting features of the three years' course are the moot courts in which each student must argue one case each year.

The Faculty of Applied Science has given Canada and the world a great number of talented engineers whose work, especially during the war, is a matter of record. The head of the faculty, Dean J. N. Finlayson, and his staff, which includes many of the top Canadian scientists of the day, feel sure that among the huge enrollment there are many students who will keep up the well-established tradition.

With the great task of reconstruction in Europe, as well as the future construction here in America, there will be ample opportunity for graduates to exercise the abilities which their engineering training has given them.

This year the Department of Architecture has been founded and many undergraduates have been attracted to this branch of engineering. The new course of Agricultural Engineering and Engineering Physics have also appeared.

Because of the large number of undergraduates there is not as much time or space as would be desirable for graduate research work, but in years to come this will be given greater attention. With the completion of the Physics building now under construction, much of the strain of overcrowding will disappear, and Applied Science looks forward to greater development.

The University staff has had its hands full of problems with the record enrollment this year and must be commended for the efficiency and patience with which it combatted these problems.

Registrar C. B. Wood was kept busy with his multiple duties which included keeping detailed records of each student, distributing examination results, giving information on U.B.C. courses, and answering questions about entrance requirements.

Bursar A. MacLucas had an enormous job attending to the difficulties of handling the fees of 9,000 students, and distributing annual bursaries and scholarships, as well as rounding up students who forgot to pay their fees on time.

In his second year on the campus, Major MacLean has done an excellent job of advising and giving information to veterans, as well as acting as head of the Employment Bureau, which placed hundreds of students on jobs both in the Christmas and summer holidays.

In the overcrowded Library, W. Kaye Lamb, guardian of some 250,000 volumes, pamphlets and serial publications, keeps a firm, efficient hand over the organization, and looks forward with pleasant anticipation to the day when the library wing now under construction will be completed and undergraduates will have ample room to satisfy their thirst for knowledge.

Governors and Senate

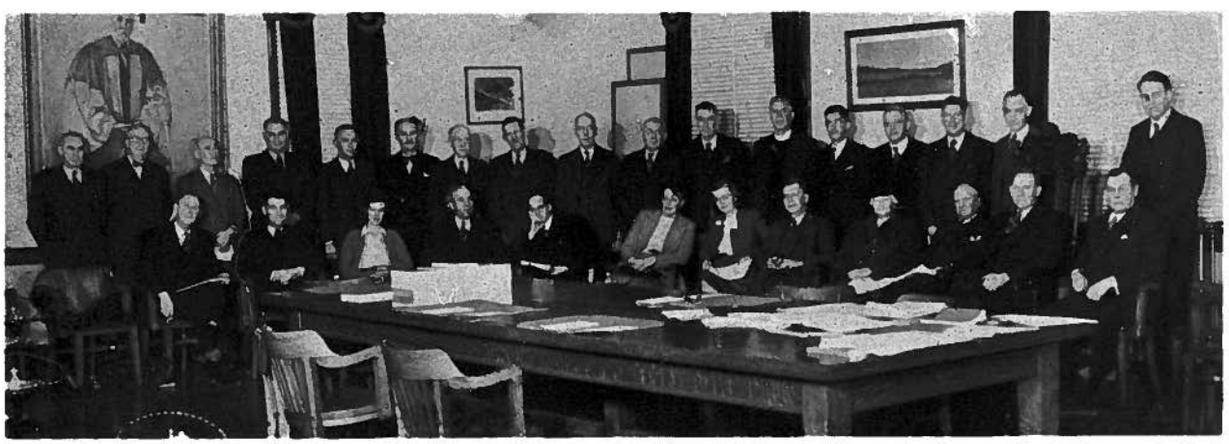

The Board of Governors.

The Board of Governors consists of a group of eleven prominent citizens,—men and women who have not only assumed professional leadership in their respective fields but also have devoted their time and ability to the furtherance of education.

In addition to the important task of maintaining the reputation and improving the academic standard of the University, the Board has such varied duties as establishing bursaries and approving scholarships, sanctioning erection of new buildings and improvement of old ones, appointing of the president, deans and faculty members, and deciding the size of the student body.

The governing body of the University is known as the Senate and consists of thirty-eight members, each appointed or elected for a term of three years.

In five annual meetings the Senate discusses and attends to many varied duties. It provides for the government, management and carrying-out of the curriculum; determines the qualifications required by students entering the University and in which Faculty each student shall register; grants degrees, including honorary degrees and certificates of proficiency; advises and consents to the establishment and recommends the discontinuance of any Faculty, department, chair, fellowship, scholarship or course of study; considers and revises the courses in all Faculties and departments of the University, and extramural instruction; provides for the affiliation with any college established in the Dominion for the promotion of arts or science or for the instruction in law, engineering, or agriculture; makes rules and regulations for the management and conduct of the library; and provides for the preparation and publication of the calendar.

Eleven Students Council

Ted Kirkpatrick, President.

Frequently heard from but less often seen in all their black-robed splendor, eleven members of the Student Council spent a fairly smooth-running year as the top executives of the Alma Mater Society.

From their offices centred in Brock Hall, the Council members directed all the routine business of the Society, settled matters of Society policy, and provided the link between Administration and students in extracurricular matters.

As head of Council, student political veteran E. T. "Ted" Kirkpatrick made himself at home to minor officials and students-on-the-campus alike, and managed AMS affairs with a minimum of fuss.

Second of the AMS hierarchy, Treasurer Don McRae, managed to juggle at least two things at once. The juggling act included keeping an eye on a record budget of more than one hundred and twenty thousand dollars in AMS fees.

Pert Joy Donegani, Council Secretary, kept up with the minutes and her knitting at one and the same time. Within the Council itself, Miss Donegani was one of the most popular members, driving half the Council home at late hours Monday nights.

Members Solve Problems,

Women's Undergraduate Society President Barbara Kelsberg, in addition to keeping an eye on the welfare of all the women, through the agencies of WUS, Phrateres, and Pan-Hell, managed to look after the men by arranging numerous tea dances.

Third of Council's nicest attractions, Pat MacIntosh, president of the Women's Athletic Association, turned up every Monday night, cheeks rosy from basketball practice, to fight the good fight for everything athletic.

In his unofficial capacity as assistant to the president, Junior Member Bob Harwood managed to ask more pointed questions than a barrel of politicians. The questions came after he had effectively disposed of his numerous glamorous duties, such as chairman of Homecoming.

In his traditional role as Council water-boy and provider of olives, Sophomore Member Phil Evans was the trouble-shooter for all other departments, and struggled against insurmountable odds in his ISS campaign.

Don McRae, Treasurer.

Show Executive Ability

Bill MacKay, USC; Pat MacIntosh, WAA; Keith MacDonald, MAD.

The man with his hands full of clubs, Jerry MacDonald, guided the activities of the Literary and Scientific Executive so well that he, like WAA Prexy Pat MacIntosh, was asked back for a second helping.

A staunch lover of the outdoors, Men's Athletic Directorate President Keith MacDonald ran his outfit with discipline of iron and used his happy disposition to good advantage in charming thousands of dollars out of Council.

Suave, debonair Buzz Walker, Co-ordinator of Social Activities, worked to keep the social calendar free of embarrassing conflicts, as well as to watch over IFC and the interests of the Mamooks.

Barbara Kelsberg, WUS; Buzz Walker, CSA; Phil Evans, Soph Member.

When the Undergraduate Societies Committee seemed to be going under for the lack of a leader, Council shopped around and called in Bill McKay to serve as an appointed USC Chairman. In that post, the tasks of Discipline Committee and Eligibility Committee chairmanships fell to him.

Twelfth man at Council's table every Monday night was Member Ex-officio Jack Ferry, editor-in-chief of publications, who took elaborate notes to give the members adequate publicity for their pet projects.

These eleven members of the often abused, and always overworked Council held the reins of student government this hectic post-war year. To their lot fell many unpleasant duties and many thankless jobs, but they executed them all with finesse, leaving behind them a memory of a year capably and efficiently handled.

U.S.C. Has Successful Year

The Undergraduate Societies Committee.

Official conscience of the Students' Council, the two-year-old Undergraduate Societies Committee, came of age during 1947.

Under the able chairmanship of Bill McKay, the body competently carried out its duty to act as a bridge between the undergraduate mass and their elected representatives.

Other members of the executive were Bert Shore, vice-president, and Heather Blundell, secretary-treasurer.

Under their leadership, the 30-odd members of eight organized graduate societies functioned to "advise the Students' Council on matters affecting general student welfare," and to co-ordinate council action with student opinion.

In its completely democratic method of procedure the USC approves a motion brought before and passed by an undergraduate executive. The USC chairman then brings the item before the Council and tries to get it voted upon, passed, and carried out.

Leaderless until sometime in November, the USC chose McKay as their chairman during a general meeting. Immediately laying out a concrete policy, the new chairman caused the weight of the hitherto somewhat defunct body to be felt in controversial campus issues.

Included in the membership of the Committee are the executives of the Arts, Agricultural, Engineers, Pre-Medical, Nurses, Commerce, Law, and Home Economics undergraduate societies.

L. S. E. Manages All Clubs

The Literary and Scientific Executive.

Upper: Jerry Macdonald, President.
Lower: Rosemary Hodgins, Secretary.

The Literary and Scientific Executive under the capable leadership of President Jerry Macdonald devoted much time and energy toward the organization of campus activities with a number of new innovations.

Chief of these new plans was the assembly of the club representatives on the lawn outside the Administration Building at the beginning of the year to enable Freshmen to get a comprehensive view of the club organization on the campus. At this time, over a thousand new members were added to the ranks of extra-curricular devotees.

After some serious consideration by the members of the committees involved, the Major Executive, the Stage Committee, and the Special Events Committee, LSE accepted the Radio Society as a Major Club.

During the year, more than a dozen new clubs took shape to augment the half dozen which were declared defunct and inactive. In a great many cases, the new clubs were of a discussional nature, dealing with problems of modern life.

Secretary Rosemary Hodgins spent much time investigating the constitutional proposals of the dozen new clubs which formed on the campus.

The Stage Committee, under the vice-chairmanship of Lorne Butterfield, and with Chester Taylor as secretary, devoted much of its time aiding the LSE in special events and other activities, with the extension of the Committee's equipment as a help.

W.U.S. Governs The Women

Joan Feast, Roma McDonald, Nancy Macdonald, Rosemary Byrn, Barb Kelsberg, Bodie Baxter, Nora Clarke, Pat Mayne, Joan Park, Andrey Jutte.

The main purpose of WUS is to undertake the promotion of extra-curricular activity and to increase student interest, and by doing this it has provided a great deal of amusement for everyone. The biggest job of the year was to conduct freshette week at the beginning of the term and to issue the characteristic green frosh regalia. Wearing the green armband, emblazoned with the significant WOOF (WUS Organized to Outlaw Frivolities), its members acted as Stern Disciplinarians for recalcitrant freshette, and applied green lipstick plentifully to any offenders. This gay week was topped off by the traditional big-little sister supper.

Other WUS-organized activities throughout the year included several tea dances, featuring a Sadie Hawkins affair in January, to which co-eds "Brung" their own men, by brute force if necessary.

During the fall term, WUS, in co-operation with several downtown department stores, presented a very successful fashion show. Hi-Jinx, an all-female gathering, featured a hard times theme, and boasted a large attendance of fantastically dressed co-eds.

In a more serious vein, WUS was responsible for distributing and collecting Red Cross knitting, and aiding the Health Service clerically during the annual TB checkups.

President of WUS this year was Barb Kelsberg.

Barb Kelsberg, Nora Clarke. Nancy Macdonald, Pat Mayne.

Pre-Meds Ask For School

Pre-Medical Undergraduate Society.

The Pre-Medical Undergraduate Society this year continued its policy of striving for the establishment of a Medical School at U.B.C. The campaign was conducted not only with a view to providing a Medical School for the students, but also of setting up a Medical Centre which could be of service to the entire province. Because of the wide scope of such an undertaking, what has formerly been wholly a student endeavour became a public effort throughout British Columbia.

The campaign work done by the members of the Pre-Medical Society did not fall solely on the shoulders of the executive. Every student realized his personal implication and lent his support to give the overall effect of a strongly united faculty.

Pilgrimages were made to Victoria to approach the government, and letters were written to M.L.A.'s. Press publicity reached a high point when the Pre-meds published a Ubyssey supplement during the spring term.

Further service to the students consisted of presenting them with the opportunity of taking aptitude tests for Medical School.

Social activities this year included a unique mixer in Brock Hall, and a Medical Ball at the Commodore in March.

President of PUS this year was Bob Wilson.

Engineers Always Active

Engineers Undergraduate Society.

Meeting every Tuesday noon, the Engineers' Undergraduates handled the professional, social, and general activities of the large group of Science undergraduates. It was responsible for a series of speeches given by practising engineers and presented weekly for the benefit of first and second year students to aid them in choosing their particular branch of engineering. This was regarded by most students as an extremely valuable service.

Tom Preston was the redman that was responsible for the Engineers' Ubyssey, published in red ink, during the spring term. Preston was assisted by Gordon Genge and a number of other interested sciencemen.

In conjunction with Major McLean, the EUS ran its own employment bureau and signed up its members for summer work in engineering fields.

The executive also arranged for such events as the Engineers' Informal, the Science Banquet, and the highlight of the year, the Science Ball.

President of EUS this year was Gordon Genge.

Special Events On Campus

The Special Events Committee devoted a great deal of its energy and influence at the beginning of the year to the War Memorial Gym Drive campaign.

During the Fall term a concert by Miss Thomasina Talley was well received by the student body. This was followed by a Symphony Concert conducted by Albert Steinberg, with Jan Cherniavsky as guest soloist.

The Armory was used for the latter occasion, and the use of seating facilities of Mr. Gordon Hilker was of considerable assistance.

Under the guidance of Mr. C. Hadyn Williams, the University Glee Club also produced a program of merit.

During the spring session, the visiting Australian conductor, Bernard Hienze, appeared, also in the Armory, with the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra. His informal remarks on the selections offered were of particular interest to the record student attendance.

Special Events Committee.

Another offering of the Special Events Committee was the talented pianist, Louise Meiszner, who played for a noon-hour audience in the auditorium. The effect of her recital was well evidenced in the number of students who missed their 1:30 lectures.

A.M.S. Office Staff Busy

Some of the most tireless workers on the University campus are to be found in the AMS office, where the girls are smiling and ready to help numerous undergraduates in a multitude of ways at all times of the day.

Bev Shepherd, friendly office manager, takes care of petty cash, and helps the elected student treasurer to learn the routine of his duties. She also allots work of her four office assistants, Janet McKerricher, Jane Lyle, Vere Young, and Mavis Walton.

Another busy person is Mr. Grantham, acting procter of the Brock Hall, who is responsible for the upkeep of the building, the commissionaires, the check room staffs, and catering arrangements.

Mr. Grantham was assisted by Ted and Joe, who helped in the maintenance of Brock Memorial Hall. Both were immediately accepted as friends of the many students using the building.

Janitorial work in the building was, to a large extent, attended to by parties of part-time student workers. This service was arranged through the Employment Bureau.

The AMS Office Staff.

Visitors to the University of British Columbia have often expressed amazement at the amount of activity of the student bodies here. They do so justly, for on few other campi is student activity so intense nor does it cover so wide a scope. The Alma Mater Society, a 125,000 dollar a year corporation, is fit enough example of the responsibility resting in student hands. The Players Club and the Mussoc have consistently offered annual presentations that often approach professional standards. The Pub has faithfully served the University since its inception over thirty years ago. And all on no further incentive than student spirit. The articles and pictures of the major of these activities, published in the following section, may serve to illustrate the present phases of this spirit so manifest in our history.

Frosh

Around the last week of September, the sight of ten inches of hairy, masculine leg or green-begoggled girls excited no more than a sophisticated nod from knowing upperclassmen.

These things, they realized, were manifestations of the orientation process that had been prepared for the largest army of freshmen and freshettes ever to establish a beach-head at U.B.C.

Stoically accepting the invasion of the campus by green-bedecked frosh, upperclassmen energetically set about breaking in the 2,000 impressionable newcomers, drafted from the ranks of both the Canadian armed forces and Provincial high schools.

In spite of frowns from the Discipline Committee, heckling of the newcomers continued throughout Frosh Week. During the traditional clash of the Green and Red, packs of prowling Sciencemen welcomed the Frosh with the good old water-treatment—and lived to find that they themselves were wet behind the ears.

To see that all Freshettes obeyed the rules of Frosh Week, WOOFS (W.U.S. Orders Out Frivolities) roamed the campus. At the Big-Little

Campus By Upperclassmen

Week

Sister supper, non-conformists were hauled before a tribunal to be sentenced, then later entertained with a new chapter from "The Saga of Dan McGrew".

Judgment of the boys came the night of the Frosh Smoker, when the green army were punished for their crimes. Later, Frosh lit up a peace pipe with their persecutors, and laughed together over the antics of comedian Fran Dowie.

Participation in the annual Cairn ceremony, at which newcomers learned the story of the Great Trek to Point Grey, and a little bit of the history of U.B.C., was another highlight of the orientation period.

A huge reception was held in the Armory at the end of Frosh Week. Here the newcomers were formally introduced to members of the Faculty and the Students' Council.

After doffing their regalia during the traditional snake parade past a replica of the Cairn, the Frosh became full-fledged members of the Alma Mater Society, and were granted the privilege of tormenting next year's influx of Freshmen.

Princess Ball Initiated by

Most unique formal and first affair in the fall social calendar was the Princess Ball, held at the Commodore cabaret on October 17.

Held for the first time this year, the event was heralded with lavish publicity that included a frustrated attempt by yelling braves on horseback to reclaim U.B.C.'s campus for the Indians.

The horse-play occurred during a gigantic noon-hour pep-meet, which followed a solemn declaration of war, published in the Ubyssey.

Led by their thundermugging Chief, a dozen redskins swooped onto the campus, carried off several co-eds — candidates for the Princess contest — and conveyed them to the Armory pepmeet.

Fran Dowie, Vancouver's comedian with the chewing-gum facial muscles, convulsed a 5,000-student audience as star of the meet. His act included a pantomime routine of what a co-ed gets into when preparing for an 8:30 class.

After donning a garish alpine playsuit, Mr. Dowie mimicked a German singing master, with student participation in the act "Ist das nicht ein?" Dowie asked the assembly. To which the students roared back the chorus, "Au du schone!"

Seven co-eds, one from each faculty, were chosen princesses-elect of the Ball. They were then voted for by ticket purchasers.

June Lawrence from Pre-Med was the successful candidate who reigned as queen for the evening.

Other candidates included: Peggy Aveling, Arts; Bernice Baxter, Agriculture; Verda MacGillivray, Home Economics; Elaine Twilley, Nursing; and Anita Henderson, Freshette.

Lavish entertainment at the "pow-wow" included a professional dance program and a baritone rendition of "Waters of Minnetonka" by Ernie Adams.

Princess Balls

Two choruses, one composed of six male dancers, one of a score of white buckskin-clad girls, executed a choreography designed by Josephine Slater. Both troupes performed by courtesy of Stuart MacKay's Jubilee show.

The Indian theme, traditional at U.B.C., was carried throughout the program decorations.

Medicine men, dusky maidens, and braves, cavorted through a native setting, to the throb of tom-toms and the flutter of eagle-feathers.

Of the three ballets done in the floor-show, one was based on an authentic Indian ritual, "Pale Moon". It featured a solo routine against a background of a mixed male and female chorus. Next, two painted Apaches executed a war-dance theme accompanied by the beat of gourds.

A medicine man in full regalia continued the ritual with the ancient ceremony of installing an Indian princess.

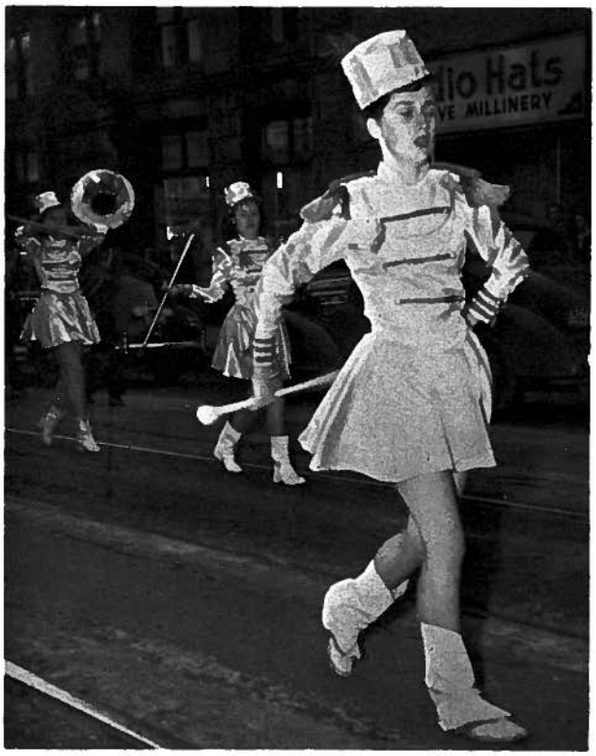

Miss Lawrence was presented with a floral bouquet and a gold brooch carved with the motto "U.B.C. Princess."

First dance with the newly-crowned princess went to Dr. Norman A. M. MacKenzie, the president of U.B.C.

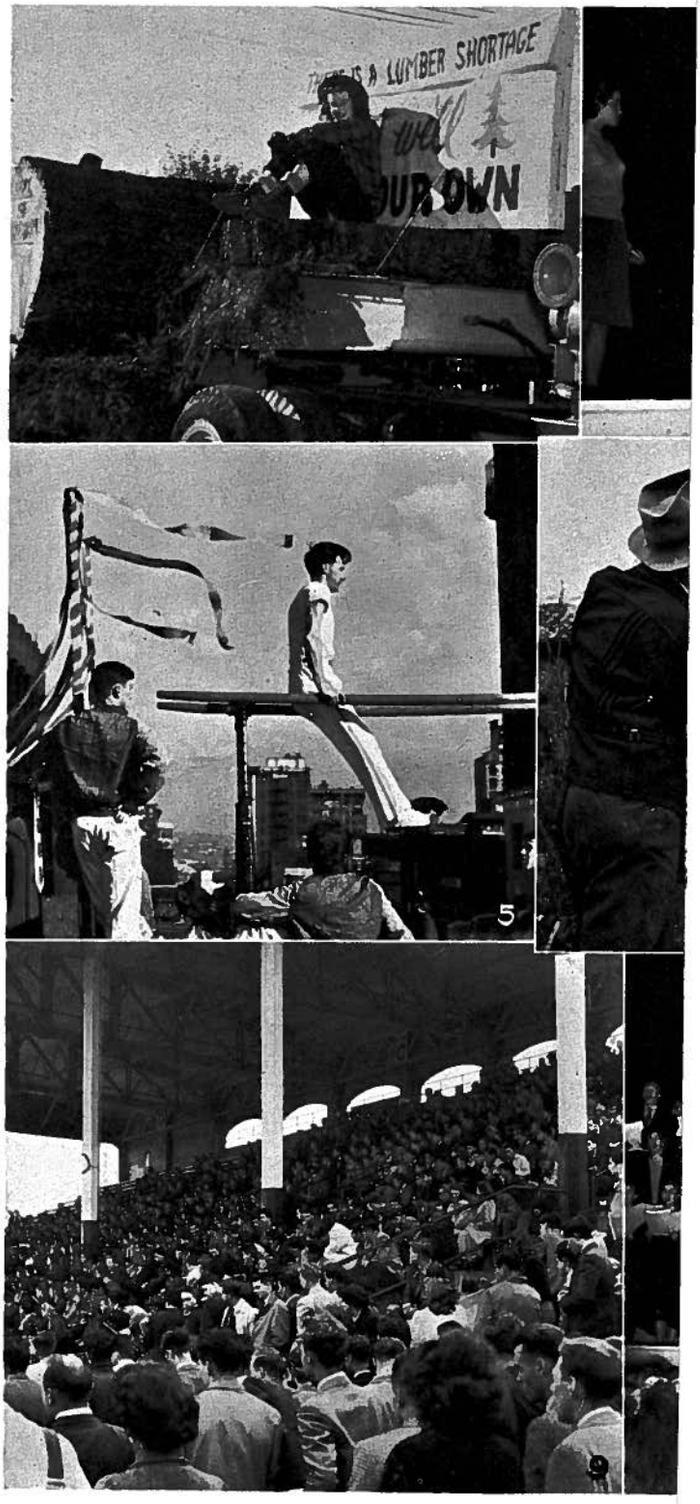

Kappa Sigma fraternity sponsored the affair.

Patrons included: Chancellor and Mrs. E. W. Hamber, Dr. and Mrs. N. A. M. MacKenzie, Dean and Mrs. P. Buchanan, Dean and Mrs. J. N. Finlayson, Dean Dorothy Mawdsley, Dr. J. Allen Harris, Dean F. M. Clement, Dean G. F. Curtis, and the alumni of Kappa Sigma fraternity.

Homecomin

Leading the Parade.

The annual homecoming had a new wrinkle for several thousand alumni, who flocked to their old nesting-ground on Point Grey on Saturday, October 26.

Program of the day's activities began with a mammoth car parade arranged for by the Memorial Gym committee, complete with colorful flags, floats, brass band, and color party, the Army, the Navy, the Airforce, and the mayors of two cities.

A luncheon for men and women of the Big Block Club, held in Brock Hall, entertained guests from as far away as Rhodesia, Africa. Afterwards the bronze plaque dedicating the Brock Memorial Building to Dean and Mrs. Reginald W. Brock, was unveiled.

Later the graduates witnessed their first Homecoming American football game, and saw the Thunderbirds take the lame end of a 14-13 score against the University of Idaho.

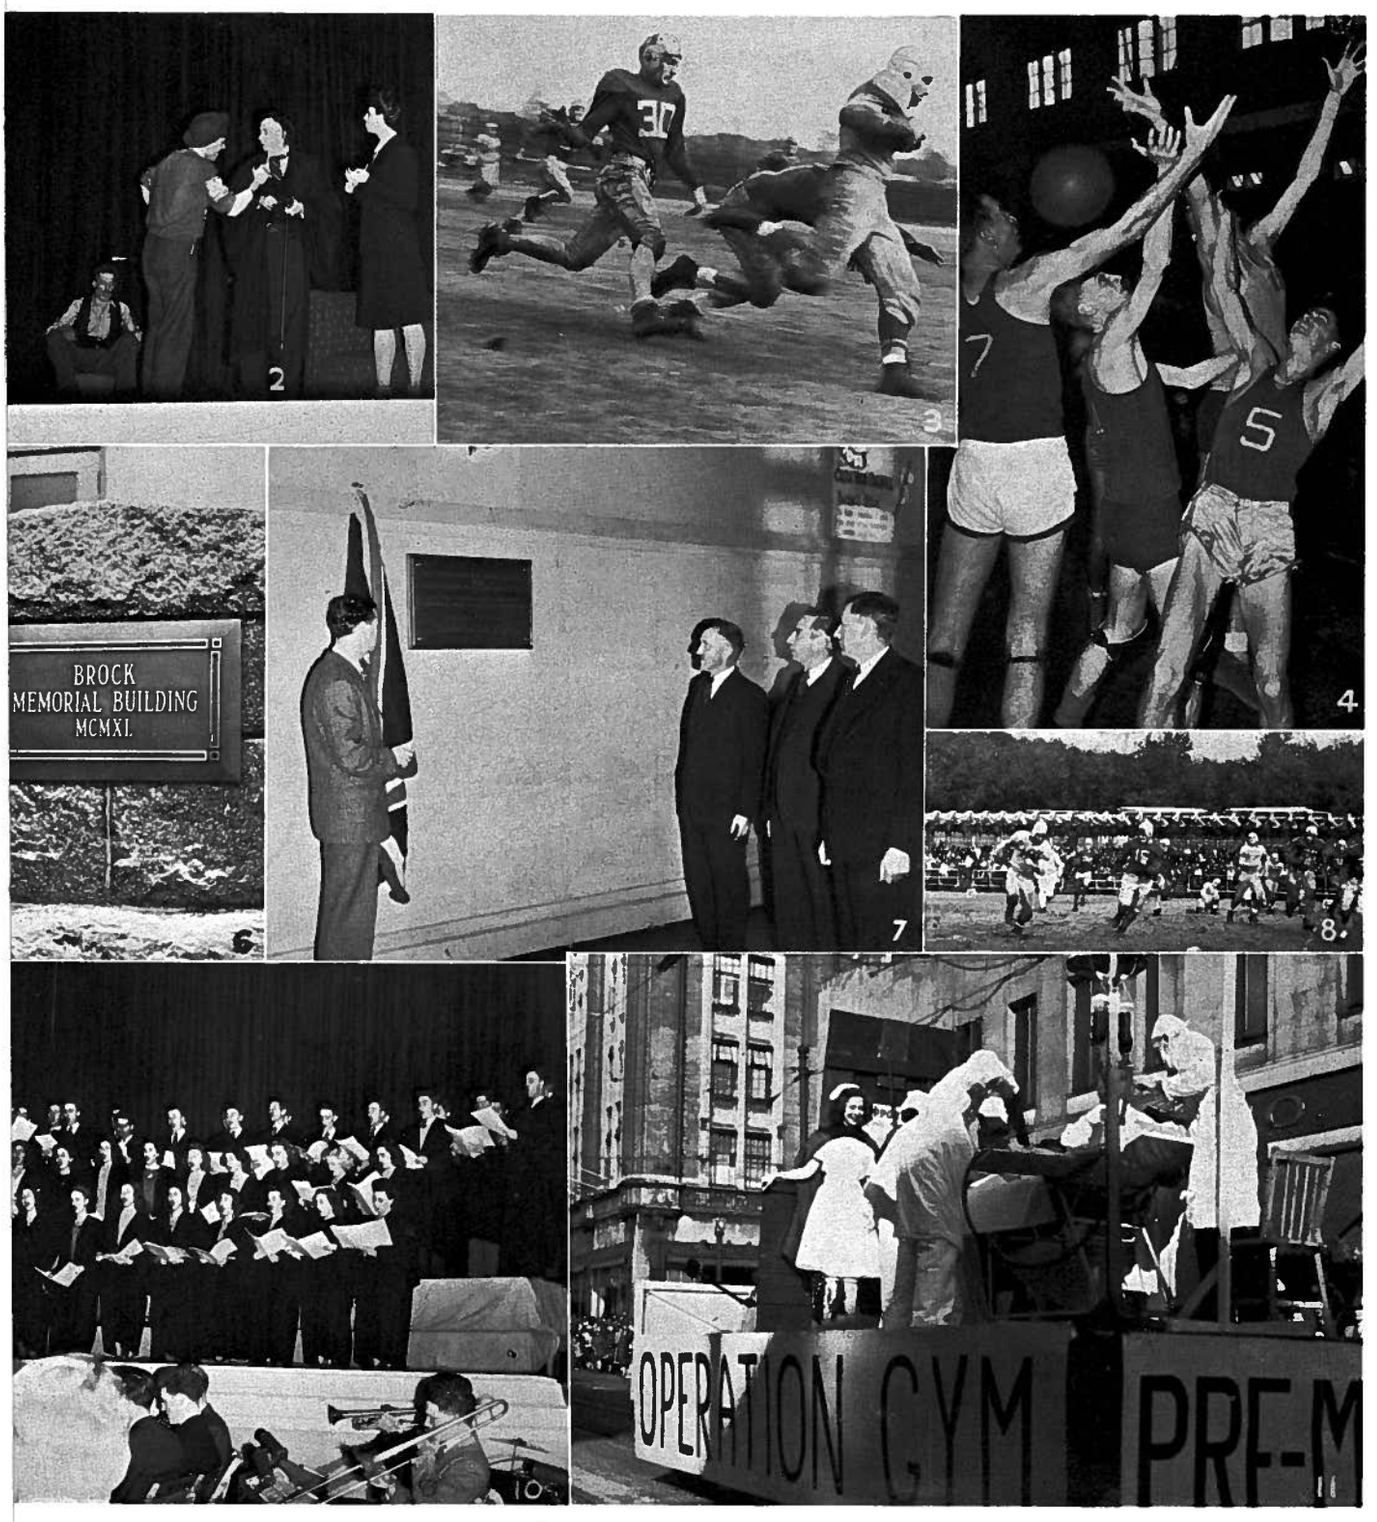

The Jabezian classic, "Her Scienceman Lover," was again dusted off and presented.

Much, much later, with their "dates" at the Big Block-sponsored dance in the Armory, the visitors were saluted by neon lights winking out a "Welcome Grads" and "Tuum Est" in gold and blue.

Executives who held the overall responsibility for the arrangements were Bob Harwood, student chairman, and Alum Walter Lind. Aiding them were Phil Evans, Bill McKay, Keith MacDonald, Herb Capozzi, Pat McIntosh, and Harry Franklin.

Fall Ball

King, Desbrisay, Hamilton deck the hall.

Clusters of autumn leaves and flowers bedecked the Commodore cabaret last November 7, as one of the University's first formal affairs of the post-war era was launched.

This distinction went to the 1946 Fall Ball, which was held in aid of the Memorial Gym Fund.

Acting on a spare-the-wealth social policy, the Ball committee decided to proclaim the affair a Dutch treat. This was necessitated by the year's extensive social program and the run on the pocket-books of the men about the campus.

Rescued from the naphthalene of the war years, staid tuxedoes appeared everywhere, contrasting with feminine shoulders bared above decollete evening gowns.

Mystery raffles, tickets for which were sold by the yard, awarded strange and wonderful prizes every fifteen minutes during the evening. Dance music was provided by George Calangis' orchestra.

The use of the cabaret, the music and refreshments were donated for the ball by Nick Kogos, proprietor of the Commodore, while free services were supplied by the Commodore staff. Sale proceeds from corsages were donated by the Point Grey Florish Shop—all of which went into the Memorial Gym Fund.

Committee in charge of Fall Ball arrangements were: Bill McKay, Don Newson, Dudley McGeer, Taddy Knapp, Don Ferguson, Casey King, and Booty Hebb.

Beauty Contest

One never knows to what a flair for writing can lead.

A letter to their hometown newspaper from seven disgruntled Saskatchewans, deploring U.B.C.'s lack of feminine beauty, precipitated the first peacetime pulchritude contest among the nation's colleges, caused a U.B.C. freshette to be judged Western Canada's loveliest co-ed, and eventually led to the auction of the first post-war kiss on North American campi.

The contest was even more unique in that all entrants wore evening gowns, to avoid any hint of "vulgarity".

All benefits from the affair went to the Memorial Gym Fund.

The students who started the affair were Dick Crump, Harry Lidster, Gray Gillespie, Roy Olsen, Rob Hill, Alan Blythe, and F. W. Dakin.

Carried out before the largest crowd that filled the Armory, the contest resulted in regal, brunette Marion Albert being picked—by impartial American judges—from among two contestants each from the Universities of Alberta, Manitoba, B.C., and Regina College.

The kiss was auctioned off during a subsequent pep-meet in the Armory, at which Marion Albert and Rhonnda (Miss Australia) Kelly were guests of honor. For a $10 donation to the Memorial Gym Drive, Dave Hayward won a kiss from each of the girls.

The half-dozen "prairie lovelies" who took part in the finals here were, Rosalie McHaffie and Norma Shearer from Alberta, Lee Armstrong and Pat Lebbeter of Regina, and Marie Blondal and Jean Rogers from Manitoba.

While here, the girls were guests of the Vancouver Daily Province. Gowns and coiffures for the occasion were supplied by downtown stores.

U.B.C. entries Tina Howard and Marion Albert were picked from sixty-four contestants, nominated by campus organizations.

"C"-night for the co-eds was Saturday, November 16, when, gowned in formals, they appeared at the final judging in the Armory.

Queen Marion gasped for the edification of radio audiences.

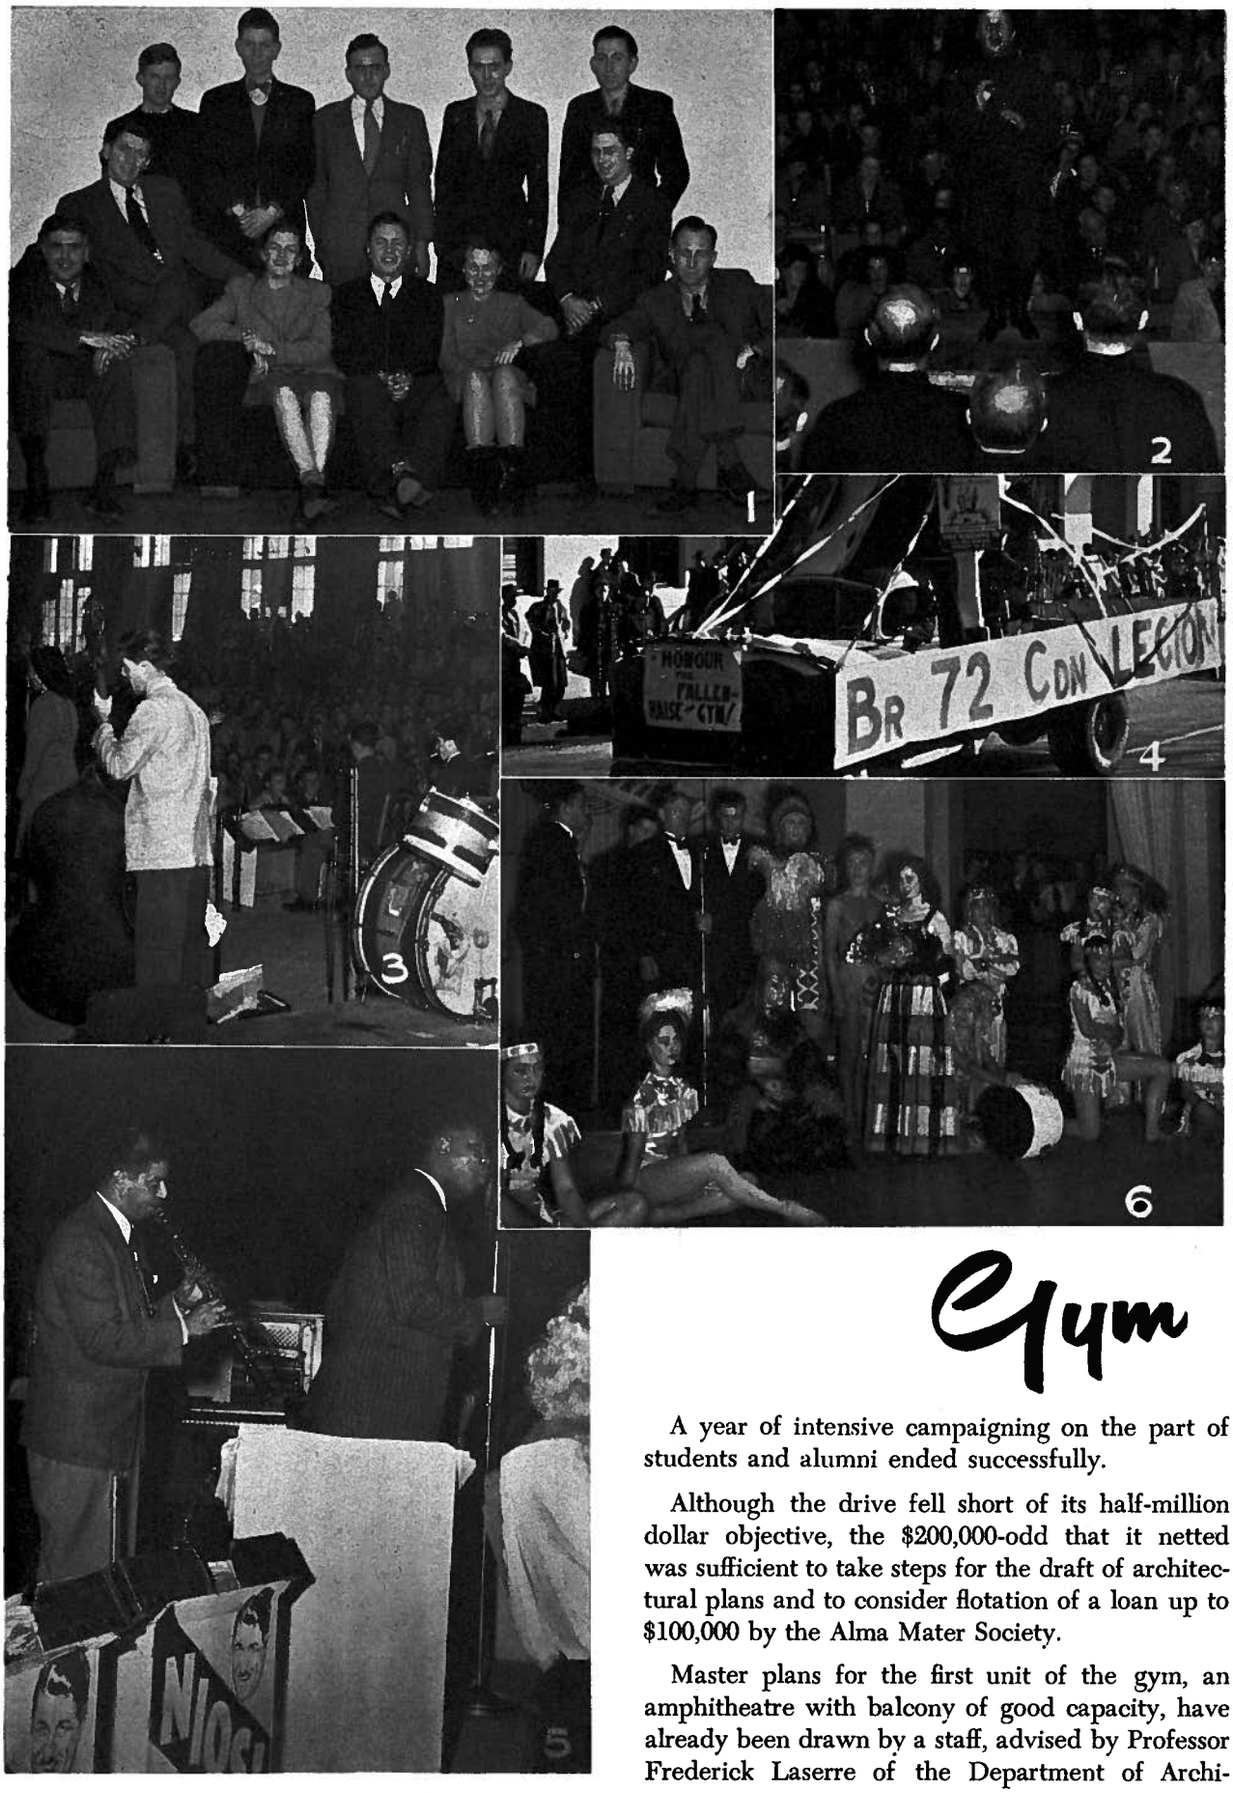

The mammoth decoration job was handled by Mamooks, who transformed the barnlike Armory into an attractive cabaret.

Central backdrop consisted of five Grecian pillars, each bearing the crest of a competing university, from which gold and blue bunting stretched fanwise. The rafters were hung with streamers and hundreds of balloons.

A year of intensive campaigning on the part of students and alumni ended successfully.

Although the drive fell short of its half-million dollar objective, the $200,000-odd that it netted was sufficient to take steps for the draft of architectural plans and to consider flotation of a loan up to $100,000 by the Alma Mater Society.

Master plans for the first unit of the gym, an amphitheatre with balcony of good capacity, have already been drawn by a staff, advised by Professor Frederick Laserre of the Department of Architecture.

A special 8-page edition of the Ubyssey was circulated throughout the province.

Other contributors were: Proceeds from the Beauty contest, the Princess ball, the Fall ball, the Bert Niosi dance, student sales for Henvy V tickets, and rents for the Auditorium by Hilker Attractions.

Greeks' Mardi Gras Uses

Mardi Gras

A novel Oriental note set the decorational theme for the annual two-day Greek Letter festival of January 23 and 24. But the words and background music were traditional—nine lovely candidates for the "queen" title, and a hand-picked Mardi Gras chorus.

Fierce dragons and gay Chinese lanterns sparked the fete, were used to decorate the balloon-hung Caf, student cars, and the queens' campaign posters displayed in prominent places about the campus.

Carrying out the Chinese-Balinese theme, the queen-candidates wore Oriental costumes during a preliminary rickshaw parade around the Armory.

Pat Drope of Gamma Phi Beta sorority was voted queen, and crowned during the last night of the festival.

The gala two-night dance held at the Commodore cabaret included a fashion show, a lottery whose prizes had been donated by downtown stores, two orchestras and a quartet, besides the main floor-show.

The short girls' chorus did an interpretation of a Javanese dance, which was followed by a modern rendition of an ancient Chinese routine from the "tall" chorus.

Casey King and Hank Sweatman were co-chairmen of the committee in charge.

Net proceeds of $3,894.22 went to the Women's Auxiliary at Shaughnessy Hospital fund.

Engineers Forget Labs

Science Ball

The symbol of graduate engineers throughout Canada, the Iron Ring, provided the name for this year's Engineers Formal, the Iron Ring Circus. The ball was held in the Commodore towards the end of February.

There, over 1200 people took a night and following morning reaction from studies to help make the frolic one of the most successful in years. Sciencemen left their slide rules and test tubes in the labs and entered into the spirit of the evening.

Rumours from back stage intimated that the heroine of the Engineers' Ubyssey supplement, Lady Godiva, was scheduled to appear on the program. It was later found that she had been detained because someone had stolen her horse. As a last-minute stop gap, the Wig and Bustle Revue, took over the spot, giving a bizarre second-string version of the Mardi Gras Chorus. The chorus's shapely legs were somewhat despoiled by verdant growths of hair.

The annual award for the best model engineering project was copped by the Electricals' reproduction of the Bridge River Power project. Second prize was taken by the Chemical's synthetic rubber plant, while a smoking volcano constructed by the Dawson Club took third spot.

The Danish-born Metropolitan star visited the campus during the Fall term. So did the multi-voiced croon kings, the Don Cossacks.

Paul Robeson came to the campus on February 15.

Chairmanned by Jerry MacDonald, the committee worked in close co-operation with the Memorial Gym Committee, the Legion, and various campus organizations to present their programs.

The Vancouver Symphonic Orchestra gave three campus concerts during the year; once under the baton of Albert Steinberg with Jan Cherniavsky as featured soloist; conducted by Bernard Heinze in a February concert; and featuring Jacques Singer, on a concert given March 6.

Scholarship

Patrick C. T. White

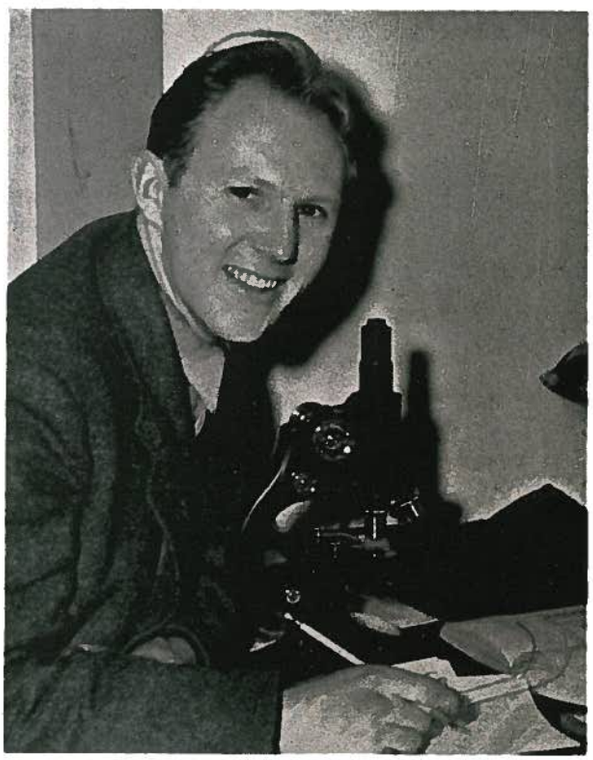

Selection of Patrick C. T. White as the outstanding scholar of 1947 will serve in some way to culminate Pat's career at U.B.C. Climaxing four undergraduate years of outstanding scholastic achievement, he was awarded, early this spring, the I.O.D.E. overseas scholarship on the merit of his graduation results.

Coming directly to U.B.C. after excelling at Lord Byng High School, his undergraduate years were interrupted when he joined the R.C.N.V.R. on completion of his second year. The war over, he returned to the campus on D.V.A. to graduate last spring in history honours. Oliver Cromwell was the topic he chose for his graduation thesis. This year, Pat has been working towards his M.A.

Pat's interests are not limited to his studies. He has served with distinction in student activities, chief of which are the Parliamentary Forum and the Historical Society.

He hopes to apply his scholarship to continue his study of history at Cambridge University, specializing in the Tudor and Stuart period. After receiving his Cambridge M.A. he will probably return to profess history at a Canadian university.

Research

Dean Fisher

Nationally acclaimed for the contribution his study of hair seals will make to the fishing industry, Dean Fisher has been selected by the Totem to represent outstanding U.B.C. research workers of the year.

After receiving his Master of Arts at spring graduation, Dean will go to Ottawa, where he has been appointed Administrative Assistant of Wild Life, under the Department of Mines and Resources. Dean, 25 years old, who claims Kamloops as his home town, received his education there, prior to university. He graduated from U.B.C. in 1944, majoring in zoology, and has continued university on a scholarship for graduate studies from the B.C. sugar refineries.

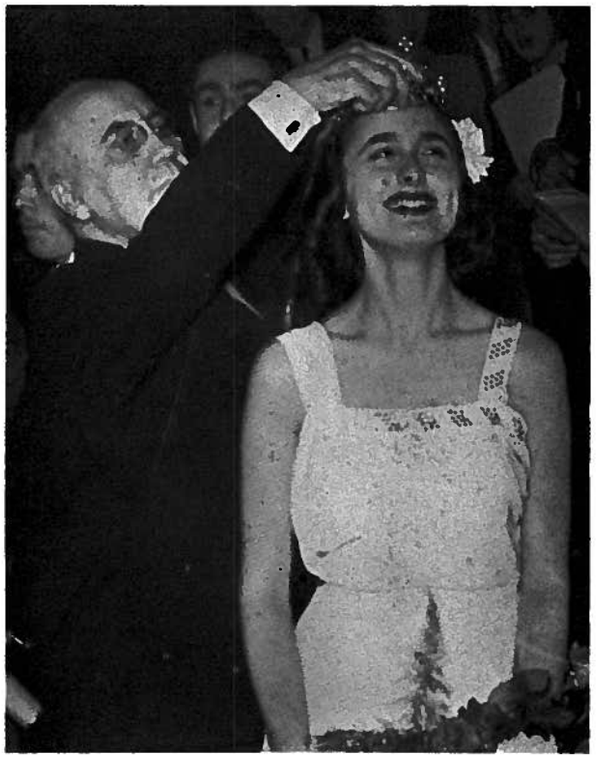

Field work for his research was accomplished while working during summer holidays for the Pacific Biological Station of Fisheries at Nanaimo. Last summer, following the animals in a launch, he traced their movements to the head of the Skeena River. He discovered their main areas of birth, previously known only to Indians. His study of hair seals, in relation to the fishing industry, is of much economic importance.

Most Beautiful Co-Ed

Seventeen-year-old Marion Albert may justly claim the distinction of being not only prettiest girl at U.B.C., but Western Canada's most beautiful co-ed. Overnight, Marion's name was known from coast to coast when she was chosen winner at the Western Canadian University Beauty Contest. The competition was sponsored by the Province newspaper in aid of the U.B.C. War Memorial Gym Drive. There were eight competitors, two university girls chosen as outstanding beauties from each of the four western provinces.

Not only beauty, but charm of manner, speaking voice, personality and poise were contributing factors to the judges' decision. Gowned in a schick Grecian-style evening dress, Marion, five feet nine inches tall, appeared "every inch a queen".

Vancouver-born and educated, Freshette Marion has above average scholastic ability. She completed two years of high school in one, graduating from Prince of Wales high school last year. She plans to direct her studies toward social service work. Interested in "just everything," Marion is the personification of an "all round" college girl.

Best Citizen

AMS president-elect, and immediate past president of the U.B.C. Legion, Grant Livingstone has been selected as the student who has contributed most to campus affairs.

Although a "Blue nose," born in Halifax in 1922, Grant came to Vancouver from Nova Scotia in 1938. He entered U.B.C. in 1939. The summer of 1940, Grant went to Gordon Head, officers' Training School, and proceeded overseas in 1941 with re-inforcements for the Canadian Scottish Regiment (1st Division). Injured in a training accident which cost him his right hand, he returned to Canada in 1942, and served for the remaining war years as an instructor in Canada.

Since his return to U.B.C. in 1945, Grant has been a prominent member of the Parliamentary Forum, The Legion, and the War Memorial Gym Drive Committee. He led the 1945 Fall Mock Parliament, as Conservative Prime Minister. Vice-president of the Legion last year, Grant conducted a survey of the cost of living, housing, and employment for veterans. This report was used when Grant appeared before a Parliamentary Committee on Veterans' Affairs in 1946.

Womens' Athlete

Irene Strong.

Leading athlete of the year was Irene Strong, a comely 18-year-old freshette, who seems destined to enhance the reputation of her Alma Mater, as a probable contestant in the 1948 Olympic Games.

Voted the most outstanding sportswoman of the year in the annual Vancouver News-Herald poll, Irene is an all-round athlete who has lately sky-rocketed to international fame as a result of her amazing prowess in the water.

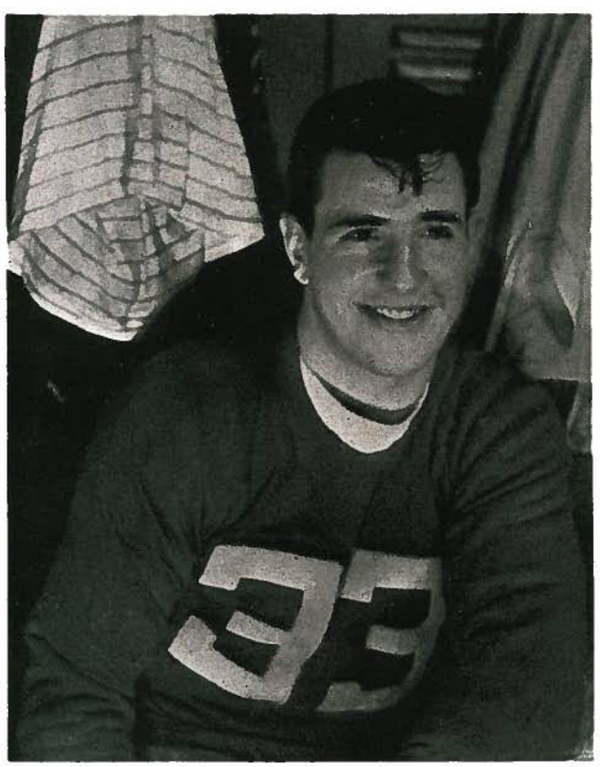

She holds over 15 senior Canadian swimming records,—one world mark besides: the 50-yard breast-stroke swum in a 50-yard pool at Kelowna.

A mainstay of the feminine bracket of the Varsity Swimming Team, she was recently complimented by Ray Daughters, world-famed coach of the Seattle Swimming Club, who rated her as "one of the three top swimmers in America," a generous comment that had no precedent in the arena of Canadian aquatics.

Irene also includes riding, at which she has excelled in local competition, and skating, among her proficient sports.

Plans for the future of this first year student are indefinite as yet, except, of course, for a date in London in '48.

Mens' Athlete

Herb Capozzi.

Standing head and shoulders above the 1946-47 crop of male athletes on the campus was husky, popular, Herb Capozzi, honoring this year in Chemistry.

Versatility sums up the university career of this 205-pound product of Kelowna, B.C., but it was on the gridiron that he really shone.

Playing first string guard on the Thunderbirds, he led them to the Hardy Cup in 1945, and was co-captain of the team in its first season of American Conference play. He was chosen All-Conference Guard, and received an offer from the New York Giants of the National Football League.

Capozzi included basketball in his repertoire, and in his second season of a four-year stint with the U.B.C. Chiefs he was nominated the most valuable player in the Senior City League.

A student of high scholarship standing, Capozzi is an initiate of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity, and he aided their intramural program with stellar performances in swimming, wrestling, and rugger.

Among his activities were included membership in the Big Block Club, Secretary of the MAD, and election to Sigma Tau Chi Honorary Fraternity.

Major Clubs

Activities

Players Club Members

Irene Gava, Beverly Wilson, Jim Argue

Plans for a freshman play, the annual fall and spring plays, the Inter-Varsity Drama Festival, and the erection of a scenery shop kept the Green Room humming with activity this year.

Thespians started off the Fall term in a dramatic fashion by introducing freshmen to the vagaries of varsity life. An amused audience viewed the revival of "Jabez" Eric Nichol's "Scienceman Lover," which was presented at the Frosh Reception. Norm Campbell, back on the campus as a physics instructor, played the role of John, a part which was originally written for him. Norm, a Players Club alumna, had a supporting cast of active members, including Carol Aikins, Arnold Watson, Beverly Wilson, and Jim Argue.

The Fall Plays presented a wide variety of dramatic entertainment which gave scope for all types of Players Club talent.

"Solomon's Folly" was a satirical comedy which treated the wisdom of King Solomon in a refreshingly different light. Arnold Watson, as Sofar the scribe, won Joan Powell, the lovely Queen of Sheba, from Solomon the wise, played by Dick Newman.

The second play was "House on Fern Road"—a modern melodrama centering around a cold-blooded murder. Donna Powers and Des Seymour played the leading roles.

In "Riders of the Sea," reputed to be one of the greatest modern tragedies, Norma Fieldhouse played the mother who lost her husband and five sons. The part of a sixth son, who was killed later in the play, was taken by Murray Colcleugh. The two daughters were played by Ann Galloway and Greta Ward.

"Pierre Patelin," directed by Roth Gordon, brought to the Players Club stage a medieval farce. Ned Larsen played Patelin, Audrey Blanchard his wife Guillemette, and Duke Saunders was the draper.

Main production of the year was Sir James Barrie's whimsical "What Every Woman Knows". It is the story of a Scottish railway porter, who, through the efforts of his freakish and unmanageable wife Maggie, rises to the position of a cabinet minister. The play mingles tragedy and comedy in the most improbable manner, yet it is so skillfully done that it completely captures the imagination of the audience.

Heading an excellent cast were Ron Bates as John, and Mary MacLeod as his wife Maggie. James Argue, making his fourth appearance in spring productions, played the part of David, a humourous and sentimental old bachelor. Norma Bloom was the Comtesse, and John Nieuwdorp took the character role of Venables. 'What Every Woman Knows" was skillfully directed by Mrs. Elsie Graham.

This year the Players Club was host to the second annual Inter-Varsity Drama Festival which was inaugurated last year to stimulate university interest in dramatic talent.

The University of Alberta brought out a five-scene adaptation of the French play "Martine" which was directed by Bob Orchard, an instructor of English at U.B.C. last year. George Bernard Shaw's "Dark Lady of the Sonnets," a satire on Shakespeare, was presented by the University of Saskatchewan. Manitoba did an adaptation of "The Woodcarver's Wife"; and U.B.C. played "Solomon's Follies".

Although the festival was on a strictly non-competitive basis, the casts met afterwards for private criticisms given by Miss Dorothy Somerset, Honourary President of the club, and Professor F. G. C. Wood, member of the Advisory Board.

During their stay in Vancouver, the out-of-town students were entertained by the Players Club. Climaxing their stay was the formal reception given in Brock Hall by the university.

The social calendar included the Fall Formal, three production parties – one of which followed the festival, and bi-monthly play readings. The reading of Noel Coward's "Private Lives" was called a "grub for Ainsworth" party. Everyone brought something which could be sent to Rhodes Scholar Allan Ainsworth, who is now studying at Oxford.

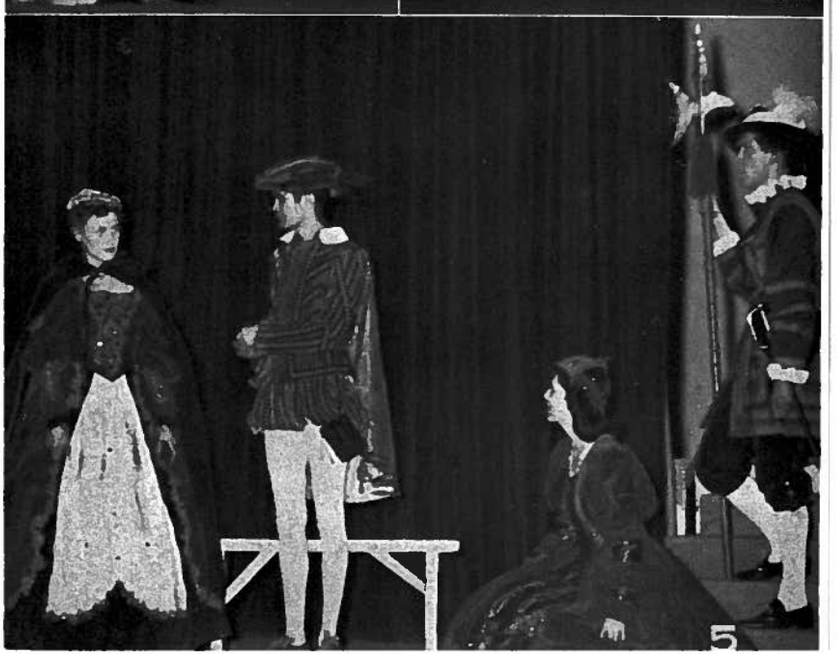

Honourary President of the Players Club is Miss Dorothy Somerset. Professor and Mrs. F. G. C. Wood and Professor T. Larsen are members of the Advisory Board.

Musical Society Executive: Walter Wasylkow, John Murray, Gerry Foote, Lucill Hawkens, Jim Smith and Bill MacDonald.

Expansion was the keynote of the Mussoc this year. The members decided that it was high time the campus realized that the most spectacular activity of the club--the Spring production--was not the only one. Their policy is to stimulate interest and develop talent in several forms of music.

The result of this over-all organization was the highly successful presentation of the two Musical Reviews which featured the Glee Club and several instrumentalists. To everyone's great disappointment, the newly-formed ballet group could not be incorporated into the program because of the lack of stage facilities. Particular difficulties were encountered in the special type of lighting which ballet requires.

The Glee Club has expanded, and became a particularly enthusiastic group this year. Members practised constantly, and as a result were able to provide a Homecoming program and the background music for the Beauty Contest, as well as take their part in the Musical Review.

After Christmas, the main efforts of the club were focussed on the production of Gilbert and Sullivan's "H.M.S. Pinafore". It was a success which quite lived up to campus expectations.

David Holman, tenor, starred as the humble seaman hero, Ralph Rackstraw, who eventually wins his Josephine, proud captain's daughter, sung by newcomer Shirley Gunn, lyric soprano from Victoria. John Fish lent an authentic touch in the baritone role of Captain Concoran, commander of "Pinafore".

Bob McLellan, another bass baritone old-timer, was an excellent Dick Deadeye. Among newcomers were Hank Naylor, freshman baritone, who sang the part of Sir Joseph Porter, K.C.B., who "polished his way into the Queen's Navee", and Doug Whetmore, baritone, as the boatswain.

The Portsmouth Bumboat Woman, Little Buttercup, was sung by contralto Bette Purvis. Gerry Foote, mezzo-soprano, who first starred as the witch in "Merrie England," was Sir Joseph's first cousin.

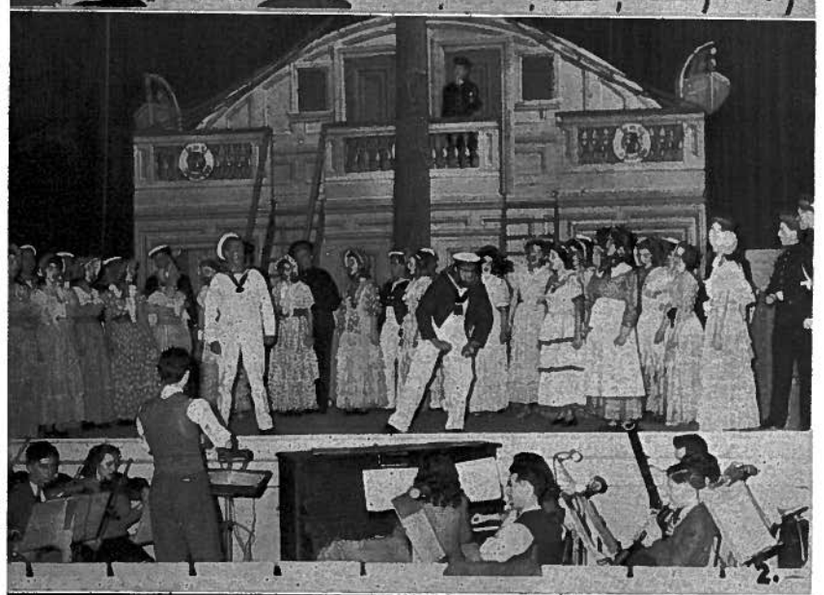

A chorus of sailors and ladies supported the dramatis personnae in this romantic tale of "The Lass That Loved a Sailor".

Several of the scenes from the production were filmed by the University Extension Department for their historical library.

The entire cast, including stage crew and scenery, went on tour this year to White Rock and to Seattle. The latter trip was an exchange with the University of Washington Musical Society, which in turn sent their members to U.B.C. to perform in a Variety Show for the Canadian students. Both productions were a great success. Everyone enjoyed themselves immensely while they gained valuable experience. It is to be hoped that the same system will be carried out next year.

The Mussoc is most grateful to Mr. C. Haydn Williams, who has worked with the Musical Society for the past twenty-two years. It is his careful guidance which has enabled the club to attain its traditionally high standard of performance, for it is he who helped to develop the musical talent of the members, and directed them through painstaking rehearsals.

Working in close co-operation with Mr. Williams, and giving invaluable assistance, was the dramatic director, Mr. E. V. Young, who has been associated with the Musical Society since 1934. He was capably assisted by Professor Walter H. Gage.

"Music From Varsity," directed by Lucill Hawkens, has become increasingly well known to radio audiences this year. It is a weekly half-hour program of classical music over CJOR featuring production previews and Mussoc artists. Among those included was alumna Erico Nalos, Vancouver winner on "Singing Stars of Tomorrow".

The October acquaintance banquet and the yearly ticket dance were outstanding on the Mussoc social agenda. The production party climaxed the activities for another year.

Members of the Musical Society were delighted to see a Faculty of Music finally established on the campus this year. Although a regular schedule of study had not yet been drawn up, Professor Harry Adaskin gave informal lectures on the appreciation and forms of music.

Symphonic Club Culture

1. Tom Mallinson, President. 2. Attentive Listeners. 3. Joyce Newman and Martin Brown. 4. Lorraine Gadbois. 5. John Bargus.

The University Symphonic Club was formed in the spring of 1945, by a number of students who believed there was room on the campus for an organization devoted to the promotion of an interest in symphonic music. The activity and popularity of the club has raised it to the level of a major club under L.S.E.

This year the Symphonic Club presented a series of programs dealing with music historically. The programs took the form of brief talks about the music to be heard, followed by recorded music representative of a certain period in musical history.

Several times during the year the club sponsored musical films which were open to the whole student body. A few evening concerts were given, which were devoted to the playing of a single long work, or a group of compositions from the pen of a single musician.

The members of the Symphonic Club regularly contributed articles to the music column in the Ubyssey.

This year's executive consisted of: President, Tom Mallinson; vice-president, John Bargus; secretary, Lorraine Gadbois; publicity director, Jean Thomson; and program managers, Jim and Eva McGregor.

Film Society Is Active

The Film Society, one of the really modern clubs on the campus, is training its members to handle movie projection equipment. The far-distant dream of the club is to take part in the actual production of moving pictures, but at the moment both training and equipment are quite inadequate.

A more immediate hope, however, is for the installation of arc projectors in the auditorium so that films may be shown in a smooth and professional manner. The present necessity of placing the camera down in the audience should be alleviated by equipping the present balcony film booth to suit the club's 16 mm. projectors.

The members of the Film Society have gained invaluable experience through close co-operation with the University Extension Department. After they have been trained and written an exam, they are qualified to work with Extension films in showings all over the city.

Quite independently, the club has rented films each week from downtown distributors, and shown them on the campus. Two of the better-known productions were "I Know Where I'm Going" and "The Wicked Lady".

The services of the Film Society are available to any club under the L.S.E.

This year's executive was: Honorary president, Norman Barton; president, Harry Nicholson; secretary, Eleanor Cock; publicity manager, Ray Steer; personnel manager, Brayden Roberts.

One hundred lively new "probies" at the beginning of the term infused the Mamooks with a high-pitched enthusiasm which has carried the club through the busiest year it had ever seen. The Rainbow Room, under President Bill Smith, was a combination work shop and public relations office, as it became the central advertising agency for all campus organizations.

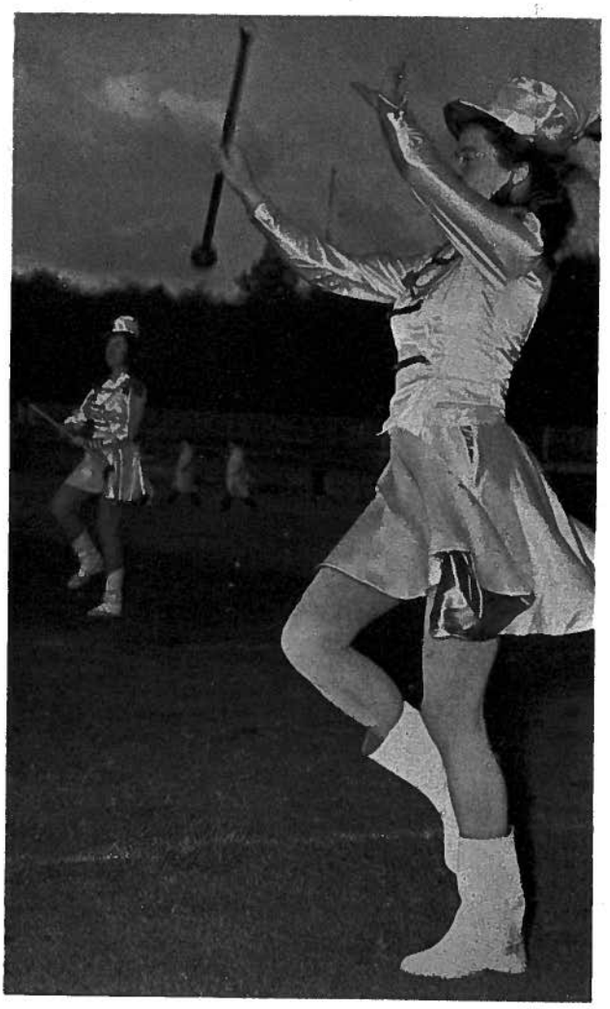

In addition to painting 1,500 individual posters, Mamooks took charge of the new Quad billboard which headlined the most significant campus-wide activities.

The most striking innovation of the year was Don Kerly's organization of the five drum majorettes who made their first appearance before the capacity crowd at the Homecoming football game. Their colourful performance, complete with white satin uniforms and twirling batons, drew a noisy appreciation from the grandstand.

Ticket sales, coat checking, ushering, and the ingenious decorations for all the Brock Hall dances and the Western Universities Beauty Contest all came under the jurisdiction of the energetic club members.

President Bill Smith was assisted by Vice-President George Bishop and Secretary Maureen Auterson. George Bloor was head yell man. Goldie Goldberg took charge of ticket sales, and Jean McMynn looked after the ushering.

Gordon Stevenson added a professional touch to the post painting. Frank Heard supervised decorations.

Organized in the interests of student veterans, the University Branch of the Canadian Legion has gained a reputation for intelligent and well-directed action. Legion committees have investigated grants and gratuities of students who are in danger of having to discontinue their education, have made financial loans available to members, and have instituted an aggressive employment bureau. Over 160 families have been housed, and vets in hospital have enjoyed visits from Legion members. The Legion Canteen was opened this year.

The University Branch of the Legion was represented at both Provincial and Dominion conferences, at the last two National Conferences of Student Veterans and N.F.C.U.S., and is represented on the executive of the Vancouver District Council.

Honorary president of the Legion is Dr. Norman A. M. MacKenzie, C.M.G., M.M. and Bar; honorary vice-presidents, Prof. S. N. Chant, O.B.E.; Lt.-Col. Gordon M. Shrum, O.B.E., M.M.; Prof. Walter H. Gage. Padre is Capt. John Stewart.

The year's executive was: President, Grant B. Livingstone; first vice-president, Perry S. Miller; second vice-president, David R. Brousson; secretary, F. M. Hewett; and treasurer, Colin C. Gourlay. Executive members: Mrs. Helen R. Noel, Ray P. Dewar, Donald A. S. Lanskail; housing director, John W. MacKenzie.

Parliamentary Forum

The Executive of the Parliamentary Forum.

Dave Williams, President.

Debating reached unprecedented heights this past year under the able guidance of David Williams. As president of the Parliamentary Forum, he kept a watchful and directive eye over all Forum activities.

First on the agenda came the weekly Thursday debates, arranged by Bob Prittie, at which the temporary "Prime Minister" and "Leader of the Opposition" introduced the topic. The members of the House then made their comments.

Next came the weekly Monday debates started this year by Tony Scott with the intention of providing a less formidable opportunity for public speaking novices.

Probably the most notable innovation was the Radio Forum. Cliff Greer handled each Friday night broadcast, aided by four student speakers and a faculty moderator. Fifty-six students appeared throughout the year at the Radio Society microphone.

Regularity of all these weekly features was broken by the McGoun and Frosh Debates, contests with American Colleges, and the one Mock Parliament of the year, in March.

January saw the McGoun Cup Debates held simultaneously in the four western Canadian university towns. Rosemary Hodgins and Jim Sutherland upheld the afiirmative at U.B.C. against a Saskatchewan team, while Gordon Reed and

Under Joan Fraser's careful supervision, the Frosh Debates against Victoria College came off in March, with Mary Leiterman, Catherine Robertson, Hugh Legg and Dennis Sheppard representing U.B.C. on the question, "Resolved that the Veto Power in the U.N.O. be Abolished Immediately."

Colleges across the line which engaged in "forensic struggles" with U.B.C. teams included: Washington State, College of Puget Sound, Lutheran College, Linfield, University of Washington, Stanford, and University of California at Berkeley.

Last and biggest Forum event on the campus was the Mock Parliament, led, this year, by a C.C.F. government.

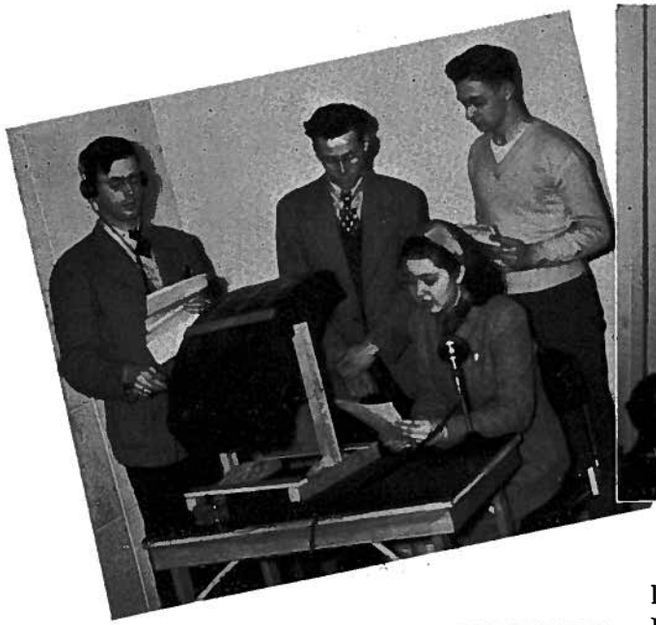

The 1946-47 Forum executive consisted of: President, David Williams; first vice-president, Joan Fraser; second vice-president, Tony Scott; historian, Rosemary Hodgins; treasurer, Cliff Greer; publicity, Gloria Kendall; and program director, Bob Prittie. Invaluable help was also given by Isabel Cameron, Bill Cameron, John Cowan, and Bob Dodd.

Radio Society Expands

Few people are aware of the really professional level of work accomplished this year by the U.B.C. Radio Society. Main efforts of the club were directed towards preparation of programs for downtown networks. RadSoc members wrote their own scripts, managed their own production and technical directing, and made all announcements. They provided talent for their drama program, "Thunderbird Theatre," over CKMO. From the same station came the university roundtable discussions.

"Music From Varsity" was a weekly feature aired through CJOR, and CKWX carried a RadSoc description of the fall Beauty Contest. All programs were directed through the campus studios of the Society.

Broadcasts of the fall football games represented an outstanding achievement of the RadSoc. It was the first undertaking of this sort and was handled through the campus studio and aired on CKMO.

During the Gym Drive the Radio Society directed a full day's program from four lower mainland stations. "Plugs" for the drive were announced throughout the day.

The Radio Society played a major role in the university Western Radio Conference, the first of its kind in Canada.

I.R.C. Group Discusses

The International Relations Club is a discussion group whose chief aim is to obtain a better understanding of the problems facing the world today.

The club is a non-partisan organization, one of 833 similar world-wide clubs sponsored by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. It is hoped that the objective study of current affairs will give members knowledge that will enable them to become part of an intelligent and well-informed public, a public better equipped to analyze international problems, and therefore better able to express opinions as to their solution.

Most important campus activity of the I.R.C. was its presentation of authoritative speakers, which enabled students to gain first hand information. Some of the topics under discussion included "Is The U.N.O. Enough?", "The Pacific Theatre", "Canada's Foreign Policy", "Indonesia" and "Holland's Problems". The new year saw the traditional annual survey "Review of 1946" by Prof. F. H. Soward.

Radio round table discussions on "Palestine, International Barometer" and "The Occupation Zones of Germany" were presented by the U.R.S. over CKMO. The subjects of the student roundtables were those spoken upon by Rabbi Goldman and Dr. McKenzie at previous I.R.C. presentations.

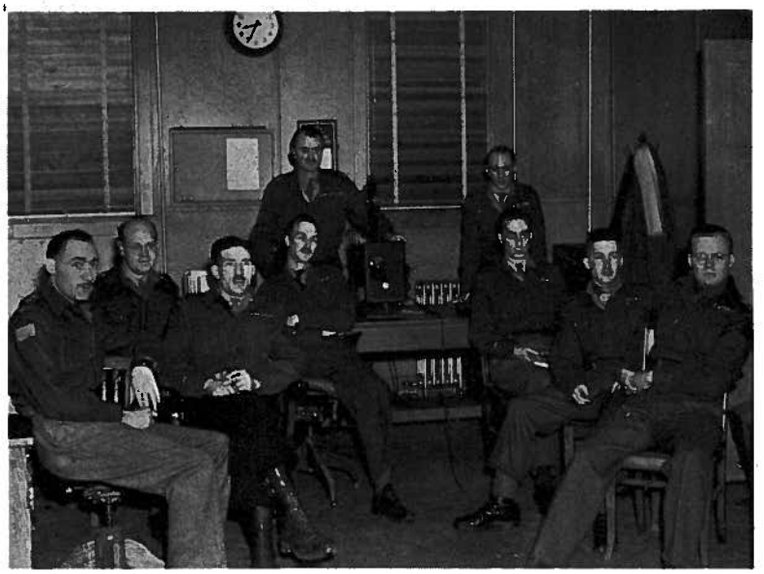

Highlight of the year was the annual N.W. Pacific Conference to which the club sent four members. The Conference was attended by 90 delegates from Alberta, Saskatchewan, B.C., Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana. The subject, "Can the U.N.O. Solve the World's Political and Economic Problems?", stimulated some valuable discussion. Much was gained from the variety of opinions expressed. The guest speaker, Dr. F. Munk, who played an important role in allied co-operation, addressed the group on "The U.N. from the Inside".

The University of B.C. delegates extended an invitation to the Conference to meet next year at U.B.C. It was unanimously accepted. The appearance of some 100 delegates on the campus in November will be a significant event in the club's history.

This year's active executive included: Dacre Cole, president; Allan McGill, vice-president; Muriel van der Valk, secretary; Irene Grayston, treasurer; and Prof. F. H. Soward, faculty advisor.

C.O.T.C. Reduces Numbers

Training in the Canadian Officers' Training Corps started last fall with the medical examinations for the new recruits. Following these tests came the regular parades, which included such work as the writing of intelligence tests and a series of talks given by senior Regimental Officers. Documentary films were also shown to the Corps at various times during the year.

Relaxing in the Officers Mess.

Those candidates who were successful when they went before the Selection Board will undergo a period of Local Headquarters Training before attending their first summer camp. The program of studies that still faces the embryo officers is not exactly an easy one. Among other things, the Contingent will offer lectures in specialized study. These lectures, which will be given in the succeeding years of training, will be an additional amount of work added to the regular training. The candidates will have to attend two more summer camps, and the training there, too, will become more and more technical as time goes by.

All in all, the course covers a period of three years, and is sandwiched in along with the candidates' regular courses. When they have finished their course and the summer training periods called for each year, they will emerge as army officers.

U.N.T.D. Trains Sailors

The parades and training of the University Naval Training Division on the U.B.C. campus were once again under the guidance of the Division Commander, Lieutenant-Commander MacIlroy of the R.C.N. V.R. The sailors left the campus for their training this year, and received it out at the Stanley Park naval base, the well-known H.C.M.S. Discovery.

Instructions in Seamanship.

The training schedule of the U.N.T.D. takes four years to complete, and included in it are weekly parades, and the Saturday afternoon instruction periods in such subjects as boat drill, seamanship, and the old sailor's arts of knotting and splicing. When the summertime comes, the members of the U.N.T.D. pack up their duffle bags and head for the H.M.C.S. Naden at Nanaimo. In this Vancouver Island base they spend two weeks each year, receiving training both on the station and at sea in Royal Canadian Navy vessels.

Naval Officer Candidates have to work two years in the Division before they are interviewed by the selection board as to their fitness to continue the course. But, to those who are successful, the U.N.T.D. opens the door to three different divisions of the Royal Canadian Navy.

Through its program of discussion forums, study groups, conferences, personal counselling, camps, firesides and worship services, the Student Christian Movement has tried this year to help students to understand the basis of Christian life and to develop a growing Christian fellowship and purpose in the world today.

S.P.C. Examines Problems

Panel discussions on atomic power, scientific socialism, co-operatives, divorce, juvenile delinquency, and current events, absorbed the interest of the Social Problems Club members this year. They met each week to discuss the causes and effects of problems of contemporary society in our own and other political and economic systems.

A large number of speakers were brought out to address the students on many of these subjects. Although the three mayoralty candidates aroused considerable interest, the stormiest controversy raged around Tim Buck, leader of the L.P.P.

Membership has increased considerably this year, and any student who is interested in social problems of the modern age is invited to join.

This years executive consisted of: Honorary president, Professor H. V. Warren; president, Gordon Martin; vice-president, Gordon Gray; secretary, Jack Howard; program director, Roy Jeffries; social convenor, Robin Denton; and publicity director, Jean Christie.

Hams Establish Contact

Frank Ives, President.

The U.B.C. radio "hams", working towards their amateur licences, are operating a 200-watt transmitter, soon to be exchanged for one of 500 watt strength.

During the past year, members have been given competent instruction through theory lectures and code practise lessons.

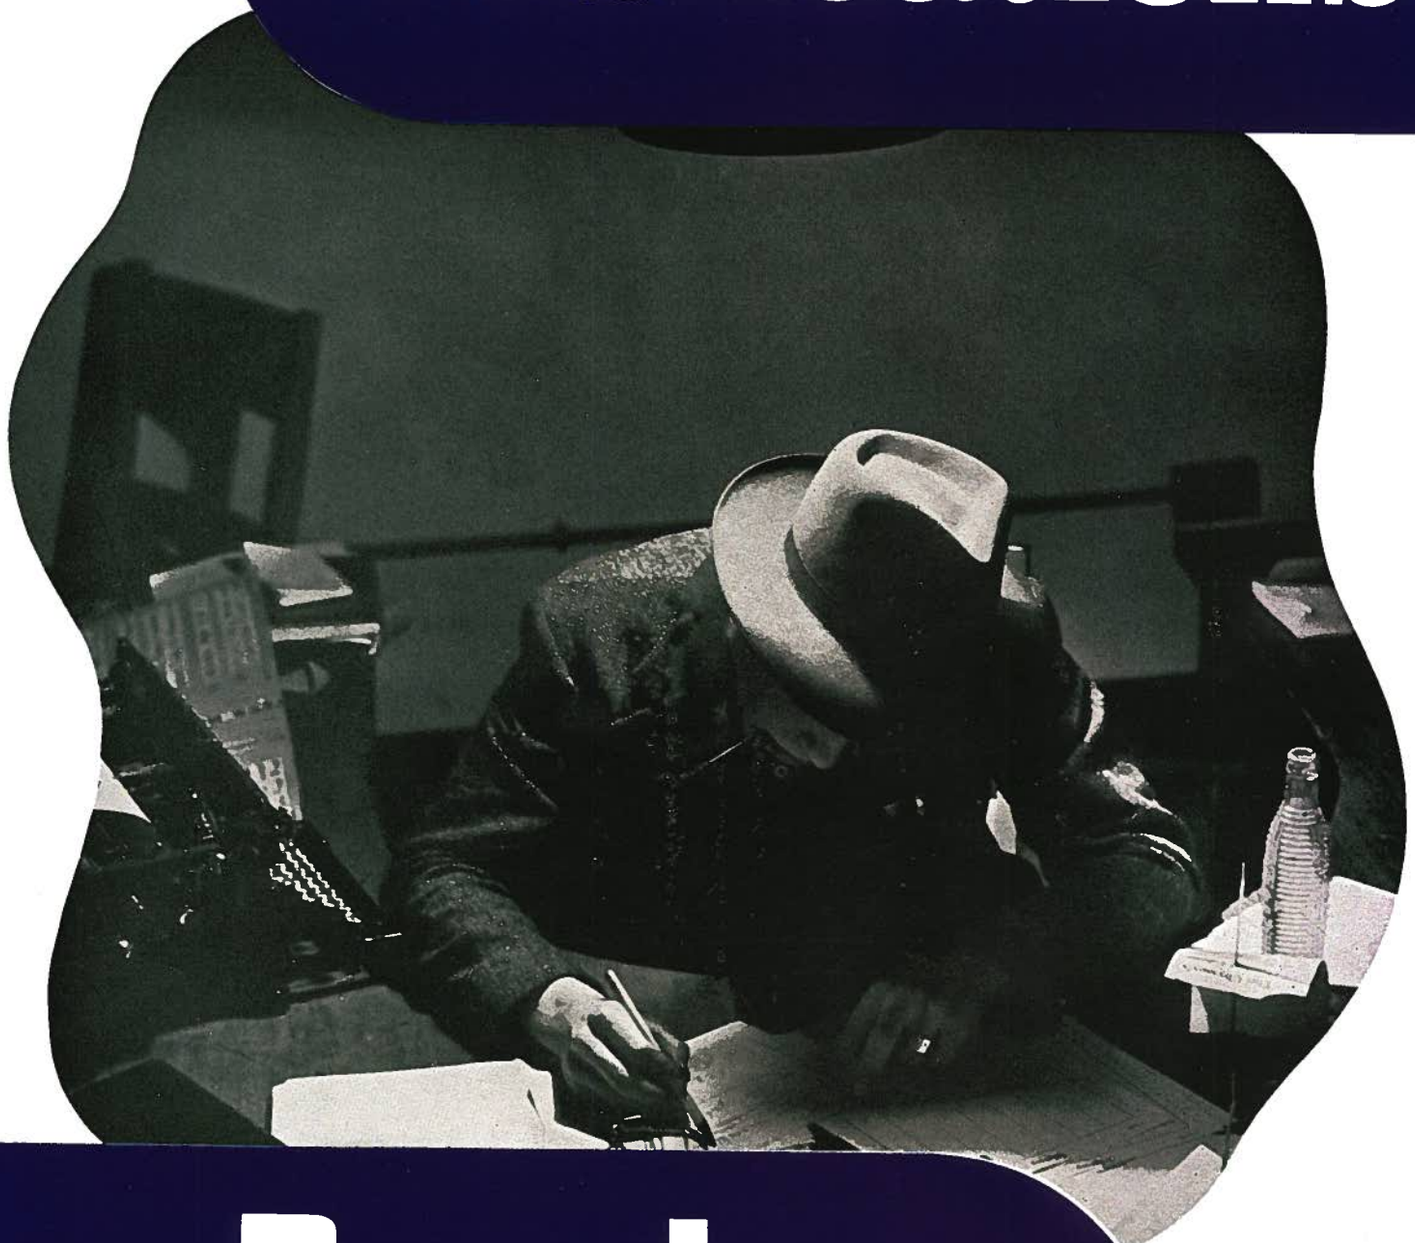

Next year the club hopes to maintain regular contact with ham clubs in other Canadian and American universities.

Jack Ferry, Editor-in-Chief.

The Ubyssey, tri-weekly campus newspaper, is the recorder of student activity and opinion. This year, however, in addition to presenting news, the Ubyssey, in three instances, made news itself. The paper was adjudged one of the top three in the Bracken Trophy contest for the best college newspaper in Canada. It acted as president and secretary of the Canadian University Press, and thirdly, it changes its form, returning to the traditional newspaper style of make-up with column rules.

Jack Ferry, as Editor-in-Chief, held the responsibility for the operation of the various activities of the Publications Board. In addition to these worries, Jack, as president of CUP, kept in contact with all the Canadian college journals to ensure the continuity of the bureau.

The prime responsibility for the three editions of the paper fell to the three senior editors, Don Ferguson on Tuesdays, Don Stainsby for Thursdays, and Harry Castillou on Saturdays.

Ferguson and Castillou, both beset with heavy lab courses, had trouble even keeping a nodding acquaintance with the desk. Val Sears, associate editor on the Tuesday paper, was perhaps the most independent of the demi-gods. On the Saturday staff, Hal Pinchin, Betty Whitecross, Jack Wasserman and Laura Haahti formed an oligarchy to act in the frequent absences of Forestry-ridden Castillou. Campus Memories Compiled

Jean MacFarlane, Editor.
Phil Ashton, Associate Editor.
Joan Grimmett, Associate Editor.

This year's Totem, that you are even now reading, is one of the most ambitious ever attempted by the Publications Board.

The book is larger, has more pictures, more reading material, and is printed in a more lavish manner—complete with four colours—than any of preceding years.

The central theme of the book is based on the history of the University. This choice was made in the hope that students might become more familiar with heritage of the school. The University of British Columbia has a tradition of which every student should be proud. Certainly all students should be at least aware of the past record of the school.

The editor of the Totem this year was Jean MacFarlane. As an associate editor of last year's publication, Jean learned much to qualify her for her post this year. There were long hours spent in the Library last summer, compiling material for the history section. There were still more long hours spent in layout conferences at Clelland Kent's, the engraving company, and in proofing at Ward and Phillips, the printers, not to mention the overall average of eight hours each day in the Pub office.

Associate Editor of the book was Phil Ashton. He also did extensive work with the Radio Society and various youth movements in the city, was responsible for the monumental task of sorting and arranging all the class section pictures. Assisted by Phyllis Reid, he also edited the section on administration.

By Diligent Totem Staff

The second Associate Editor was Joan Grimmett, who handled the minor club section and the index in the back of the book. She was assisted by Maurice Ayes in compiling the written material on each of the minor clubs.

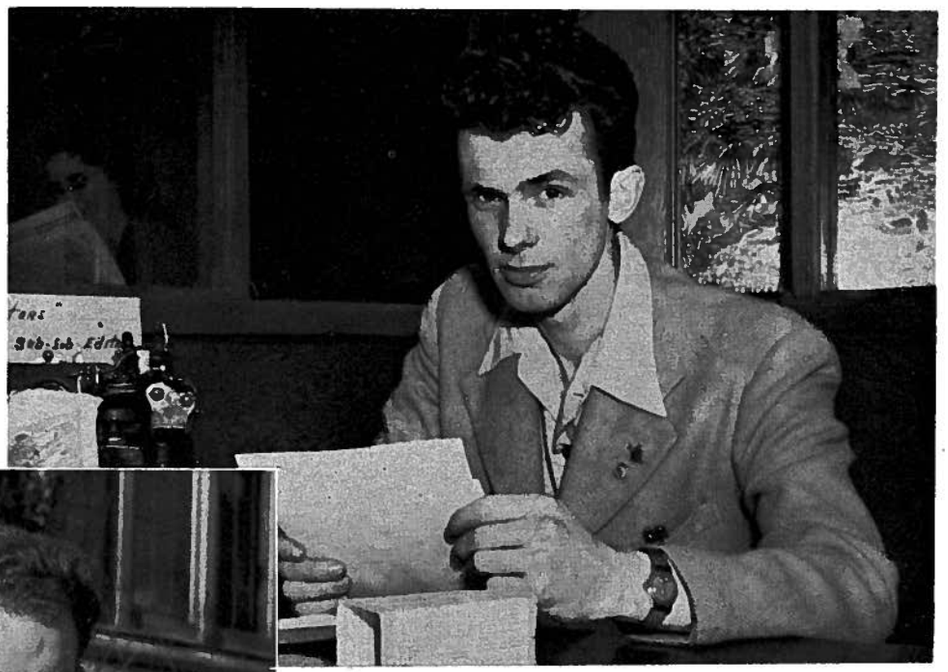

Three Assistant Editors completed the staff. First was Jane Seymour, who wrote and edited the material on the major clubs. She was assisted by Rosalie Haakenson and Dennis MacNeill. Laura Haahti compiled the highlight section covering all the noteworthy activities of the year. Laura also wrote the copy for the report on the student government. The third Assistant Editor was Betty Motherwell. Betty handled the section on student residences, including Fort and Acadia camps. She also was responsible for the interviews and preparation of the Roll of Honour section.

In past years, the Totem sport section has always presented a problem. This year, however, the sport section was very capably organized by Ray Ellard and Chick Turner, to bring one of the most comprehensive records of the athletics of the year that the Totem has offered in some years. Nev Tomkins was assistant sports editor.

The sales and advertising departments were smoothly operated this year by Jack Wasserman.

Photographers Shoot News

Tommy Hatcher, Photography Director.

Hal Harris.

An integral part of the Publications Board, the Photography Department has worked in close co-operation with both the Totem and the Ubyssey. Throughout the year, over ten student photographers have worked industriously to produce a collective sum of nearly 8,000 pictures.

Tom Hatcher, second year veteran student taking a chemistry course in Arts, has been responsible, as photography director, for the effecient operation of the department. The complex system of assignments whereby the work was delegated to the most suited photographer was organized by Hatcher. He also filmed the Publications Board shots and conceived and produced the outstanding art montage appearing at the beginning of the advertising section.

Among Hatcher's busiest bulb-snappers were Hal Harris, Mickey Jones, Paul Jaffery, Bob Steiner, Danny Wallace, and Gus Worthington.

Mickey photographed all action and team pix used in the sports section, as well as several noteworthy section page shots. Bob Steiner handled the student administration beat, as well as covering many campus activities. Hal Harris filmed all portraits of the faculty, and Danny Wallace busied himself with class executives and scrap shots of campus life.

Minor clubs were photographed by Paul Jaffery, and major clubs by Gus Worthington and Hall Harris. Dick Oulton handled the delightful assignment of Beauty-on-the Spot portraits.

Jacquie Hart and Marta Rolston added the feminine charm to the photography department. Roy Dougans, Ron Bruce and Ralph Huene took occasional shots.

All work was done in the Publications Board dark room in Brock Hall. Much new equipment, including a condensing enlarger and an electric ferrotype dryer, was added.

Directory Date Bureau

Val Sears, Directory Editor.

The Student Director, edited this year by Val Sears, is one of the most valuable publications on the campus. It contains the name, address and telephone number of every student, as well as a complete listing of the hangouts of all the major and minor clubs, sports officials, council members and, in fact, almost everything that can be reached by picking up a phone.

The tremendous job of editing this pocket-size date bureau was done almost entirely by Val himself, as checking over endless lists of names is by no means interesting work.

As one compensation for this thankless toil, however, Val learned the names and numbers of all the beautiful women on the campus far ahead of even the most persistent wolves. His job naturally necessitated his phoning and checking up on these girls to make sure he had spelled their names correctly.

The work of typing out the lists of names received from the Registrar's office was greatly speeded this year by the hiring of a professional stenographer. In former Directory work, this task was done by the editor and his assistants, and the date of publication was usually quite late.

Tillicum Friend To All

In an effort to acquaint the newly-arrived Frosh with the activities and schedules that the Alma Mater Society has planned for them and to aid in their introduction to campus life, the Publications Board issues the Tillicum Handbook.

By working steadily at it through the summer months, the editor, Rosemary Hodgins, managed to have the 150-page booklet on the campus in time for its distribution during Frosh Week. Hordes of bewildered ex-high school students wandering around the campus clutching the little yellow book were a familiar sight during the first week of Varsity.

The booklet was dedicated to the memory of the late John B. Mitchell, the Proctor of Brock Hall from 1940 to 1946, as a remembrance "for the active and helpful interest which he always showed in student activities."

The publication is useful not only to Frosh but to every student at the University. It contains a list and a short note on all the clubs on the campus, a complete explanation of the athletic system at U.B.C., and a hundred other details which will enable a student in any year or faculty to have a more enjoyable University career.

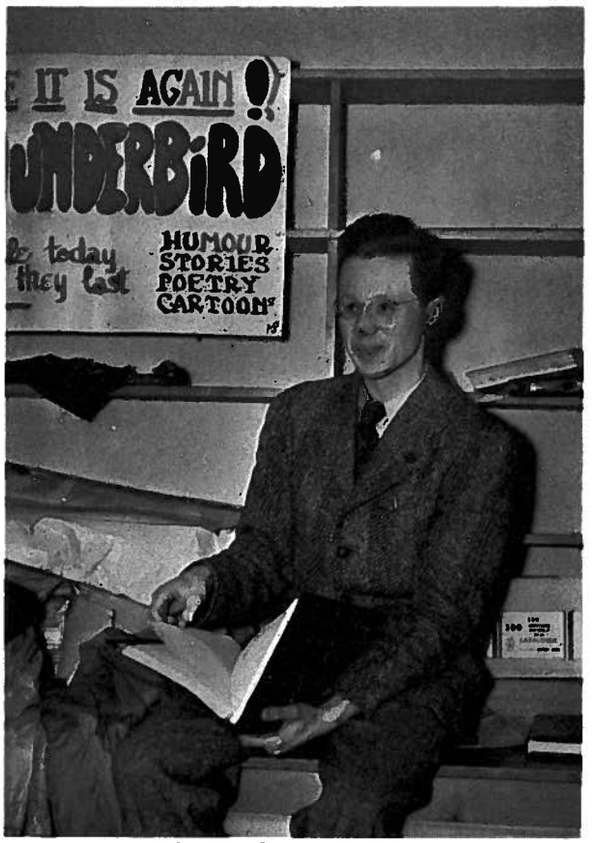

Rosemary Hodgins, Tillicum Editor.

Thunderbird Improves Minds

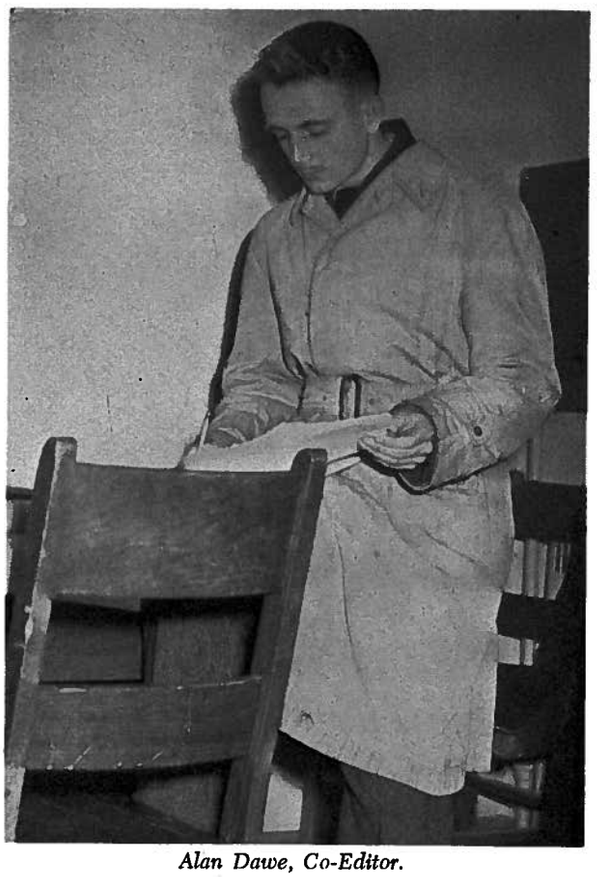

The campus literary magazine has survived and prospered in this its second year of publication. The two new editors, Alan Dawe and John Wardroper, worked together to keep the magazine in publication, but in order to do this they found it necessary to make several definite changes in the format, editorial policy and management of the magazine.

The changes in format are the most obvious. Instead of the flashy pictorial cover with its Thunderbird cut, there is now a subdued colour cover with the name U.B.C. Thunderbird and the contents printed on it. The layout and the paper have been changed as well, from a three-column page on glossy paper to a two-column layout printed in a more modern font on a more severe, more literary, paper.

The policy of the editors this year has been to publish a more homogeneous collection of articles and poems, the criterion which they attempted to employ being that of literary merit. Although they had to struggle at times to maintain their high standard (and sometimes they failed to do this), they were successful in that they were able to print several fine pieces of work. In the short story field, William McConnell, Dean Bonney, James

John Wardroper, Co-Editor.

Alan Dawe, Co-Editor.

Beard and L. H. MacKenzie are particularly worth mentioning. D. K. Paul and N. L. Wilson contributed essays, and among the poets, P. J. Thomas, Hilda Halpin and J. S. Henderson were steady contributors. Mario H. Prizek was the most versatile contributor with his prose articles, cartoons, sketches, and poems. Ted Rashleigh helped the editors considerably with his illustrations and art fillers. Many other people contributed or assisted in one way or another, among these, T. J. Mallinson, Ernest Perrault, Peter Remnant and Desmond Barton should be mentioned. There was as well in every issue an article in the inimitable Jabez idiom.

Two things seem particularly remarkable in connection with the general management of the U.B.C. Thunderbird this year. The first is that the three editions of the magazine did not lose money, even though extra pages were added to each new edition. The second is that the magazine went on sale the very day the editors promised it would.

This year has proved that the U.B.C. Thunderbird is a necessary possibility on this campus. It is necessary because it is a medium for the encouragement and presentation of creative writing.

Athletics at the University of British Columbia as at every college, have always played an important part in student activities. From the yesterday of the University at the Fairview "Shacks" until the today of our ever-expanding, hut-filled campus, the sportsmen of U.B.C. have made champion Thunderbird teams the rule rather than the exception. The blue and gold Varsity colours have become known on every playing field as the symbol of hard fighting ability and good sportsmanship. This tradition is a spirit that is a challenge for every student to uphold, either by active participation in sports or by support of the teams. And this tradition has been upheld this year. With the addition of American football and the expansion of the many war-curtailed activities, U.B.C. athletics have again brought honor to their Alma Mater.

ATHLETICS

Physical Education And

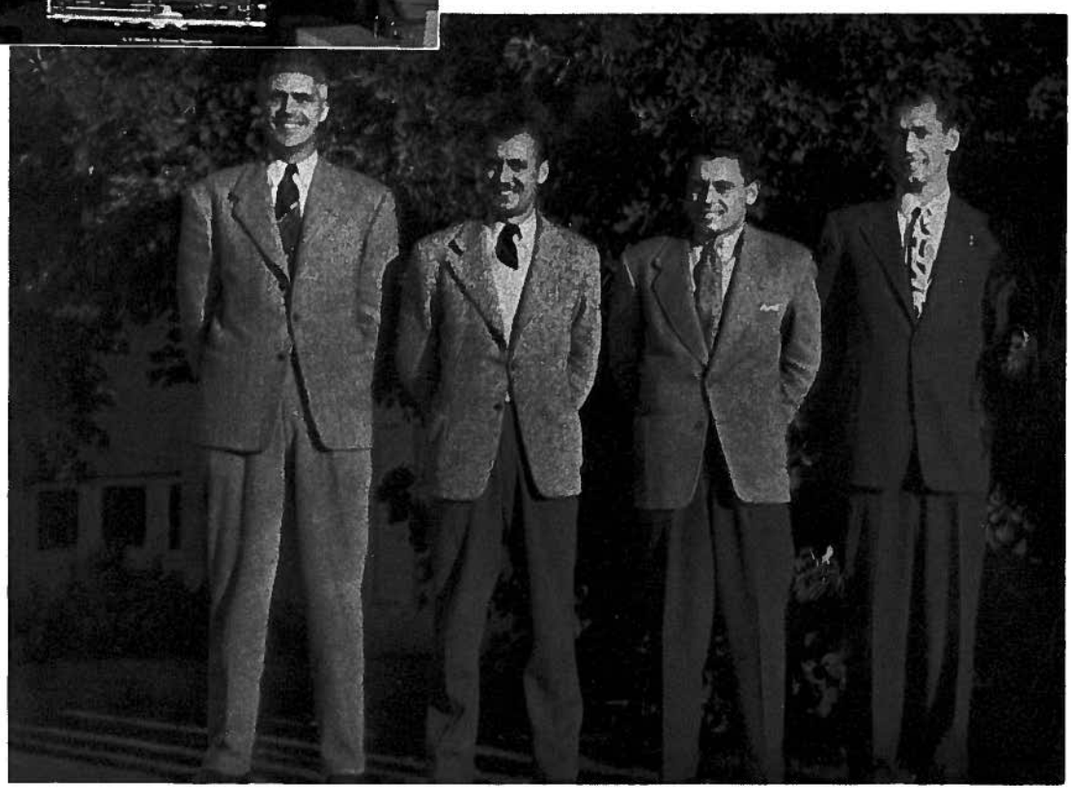

Athletics at the University made great strides in 1946-47, and with the image of the War Memorial Gymnasium looming on the horizon, the Athletic Administration took on new powers and duties.

First recognition of the widening scope of sport and athletics was the reorganization of the Athletic Department to a Department of Physical Education granting a subsidiary degree in Arts. Heading the Department was popular and capable Bob Osborne, now British Columbia's representative on the Olympic Committee, a graduate of UBC, and a former member of the Thunderbird Basketball Team he coached to the Pacific Northwest Conference Title in 1945-46.

Assistant Director of Physical Education was Doug Whittle, a native of Calgary, and a graduate of Hart House, Toronto, in Physical Education. Newcomers to the Department were Jack Pomfret, former University of Washington athlete, and Ivor Wynn, a product of McMaster University and Hamilton, Ontario.

Athletic Administration

Misses Jean Carmichael, Marian Henderson, Isobel Clay.

Miss Marian Henderson.

Miss Marian Henderson, a graduate of the University of Toronto was in charge of Women's Physical Education. Aiding her in her chores were Misses Isobel Clay and Jean Carmichael.

A further manifestation of the post-war boom of Intercollegiate Sport was the creation of a position of Graduate Manager of Athletics. Luke Moyls, a former Sports Editor of the Ubyssey, and well-known sports mogul on the West Coast, received the position, and in his first year put his many contacts and abilities to good use.

Control of student athletics resides ultimately in the hands of two student bodies, the Men's and Women's Athletic Directorates.

Piloting the M.A.D. through a successful year was Keith McDonald, Big Blockman, and well-liked all-round student. The Directorate controls its own finances, and has sweeping powers over every phase of male sport.

Pat McIntosh was the Chairman of the Women's Athletic Directorate. The W.A.D. has powers similar to those of the M.A.D. but functions, of course, on a much smaller budget.

The Rugby series between the University of California Golden Bears and the Thunderbirds was renewed this year, and the World Cup, emblematic of collegiate rugger supremacy on the West Coast was again offered for competition.

Rowing and cross country were again put on an international scale, the former club competing in the Washington Regatta during the summer of 1946, and the latter squad capturing the Pacific Coast Cross Country Title for the fourth straight year.

Controversy of the year in the field of Athletics was Article XXIV of the A.M.S. Code. The Article states in effect that no university student may play for a team in direct competition with a university squad unless previous permission has been granted to him by the M.A.D. Various infractions of the law were met with during the course of the year, resulting in minor friction in the student heirarchy.

Intramural sport blossomed out again after a five year lapse into a dominant aspect of the University athletic picture.

Under the guidance of Ivor Wynne, the various organizations on the campus interested in participating,—fraternities, faculties, Jokers,—arranged a wide program which included such novelties as a Roller Skating Derby, an Intramural Ski Meet, and an Intramural Boxing and Wrestling Tourney.

Twenty-eight teams competed, and were led down the point-trail by the Jokers who captured a majority of the events, and completely dominated roller skating and swimming.

Men's Athletic Directorate

Standing: E. Larsen, Maurie Physik, Bud Harford, J. Hough, G. Gardom, L. Dyer. Seated: D. F. Dickenson, H. Capozzi, K. MacDonald, Dave Comparelli, Bob Osborne.

The Men's Athletic Directorate, operating in its second year as an autonomous body, controls all athletic activity on the campus. It is sustained by a budget approximating $25,000, and supports a variety of sports, varying from the major athletic activities to the minor sports clubs such as archery, track, and swimming.

Chairman of the M.A.D. this year was Keith MacDonald, rugged Big Blockman and English rugger star. Keith handled his mammoth chores in stellar fashion, and combined his Council and Directorate duties to the benefit of Varsity's athletes. Members of the Men's Athletic Directorate were: Secretary, Herb Capozzi; Treasurer, Dave Comparelli; Faculty: Dr. Gunning, Dr. Dickson; Alumni: Ralph Thomas. Senior Managers were: Basketball, J. Hough; American Football, Gardy Gardom; English Rugby: Maury Physick; Soccer, Bud Harford.

Publications Representative, Laurie Dyer; Minor Sports Representative, Ned Lawson; Alumni Association Representative, Ralph Thomas.

Women's Athletic Directorate

Phebe Manley, Miss Marian Henderson, Dean Mawdsley, Dr. J. Hallamore, Jackie Shearman, Jean McKinnon, Pat McIntosh.

Women Engaging in Athletics for the University come under the jurisdiction of the Women's Athletic Directorate. Clubs and individuals taking part in sports on the campus or representing the Alma Mater must abide by the rules and regulations of the Directorate. The constitutions of such clubs, as well as their budgets, must first be passed by the W.A.D. before they go before the Council.

This year's executive consisted of the following: Honorary president, Dean Mawdsley; faculty member, Dr. Joyce Hallamore; director of physical education, Miss Marion Henderson; president, Miss Pat MacIntosh; intramural manager, Jackie Shearman; clubs director, Phebe Manley; secretary, Jean McKinnon.

In the future, by revising the constitution, it is expected that the W.A.D. will more closely parallel the organization of the M.A.D.

Men's Big Block Club

The main function of this club is to promote willing helpers for organizing and promoting athletic activities at the university.

Big Block sweaters indicate ushers at most sport events, either in the stadium or the gym.

Big Blockers held their ninth annual homecoming banquet in the Brock, welcoming graduate members to homecoming. The club includes all men who have received the major athletic award, the large block BC, as a player or senior manager.

President of this year's club was well-known Harry Franklin.

Women's Big Block Club

The Women's Big Block Club has served women's athletics on the campus this year as in the past. The girls entertained their graduate members at the Annual Homecoming Banquet last October, presenting Miss Louise Stirk as guest speaker. The banquet was arranged by Miss Mary Ann Norton, president. Other members are Yvonne French, secretary; Maisie Ewart, Nonie Carrothers, Pat MacIntosh, Nora McDermott, Jackie Shearman, Jean MacKinnon, Phebe Manley, Taddy Knapp, Audrey Thomson, Jenny Rodenchuck.

Miss Norton also served as chairman of the Women's Awards Committee.

American Football

Coach Greg Kabat, Doug Reid, Herb Capozzi, Bill Pierson, Don Nesbit.

The drama of the gridiron at U.B.C. underwent a change this year, as the Varsity Thunderbirds bypassed their defence of the Hardy Cup, emblematic of Western Canadian University Football supremacy, to enter the Pacific Northwest Conference. The move, inaugurated by the Athletic Department in the spring of 1946 when the basketball edition of the 'Birds swept to the Conference title, entailed a new brand of ball—a switch from the Canadian to the American code.

Aiding the Blue and Gold in its revolutionary adoption of unlimited blocking and the clockwork precision of the American game, was its skilled coach, Greg "Hardrock" Kabat (All-American, Wisconsin, '32), the mentor who piloted the U.B.C. to the Hardy Cup triumph the year before.

Assisting Kabat in his coaching chores were Jack Pomfret, a former athletic prodigy of the University of Washington, and Dr. James Hutchison, a Winnipeg Blue Bomber of old. Facing this triumvirate was the coach's greatest bugbear, inexperience.

After a desperate pre-season period which was rendered more acute by the lack of spring training, the Varsity football machines displayed its wares before a home crowd on October 5. Employing the Minnesota unbalanced line with a single wingback, the Thunderbirds electrified a banner crowd at the Varsity Stadium by launching two touchtowns in the same number of minutes against the heavily-favored Willamette Bearcats to tie up the half-time score 13-all. However, experience paid off in the end, and the powerful Bearcats, who later copped the Conference title, romped to a pair of third-quarter touchdowns to drop the 'Birds by a 26-13 score.

This unfortunate theme was maintained throughout the season, as a hard-fighting and determined squad fell repeatedly before superior experience, and later before a bumper crop of injuries, to finish out a winless season.

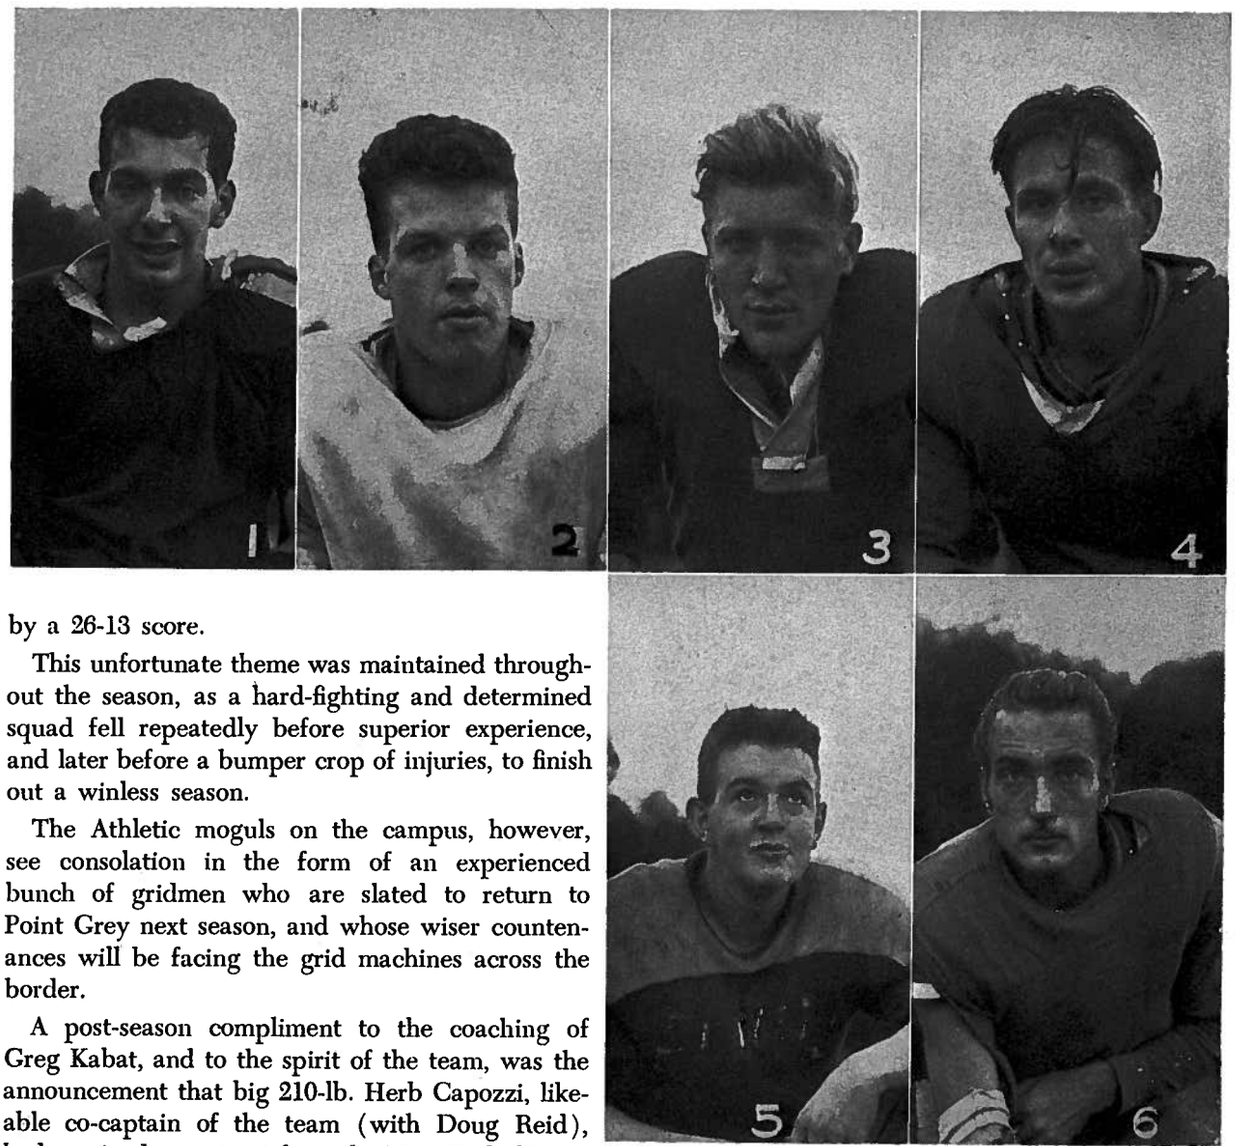

The Athletic moguls on the campus, however, see consolation in the form of an experienced bunch of gridmen who are slated to return to Point Grey next season, and whose wiser countenances will be facing the grid machines across the border.

A post-season compliment to the coaching of Greg Kabat, and to the spirit of the team, was the announcement that big 210-lb. Herb Capozzi, likeable co-captain of the team (with Doug Reid), had received a contract from the New York Giants, a professional football club in the National League.

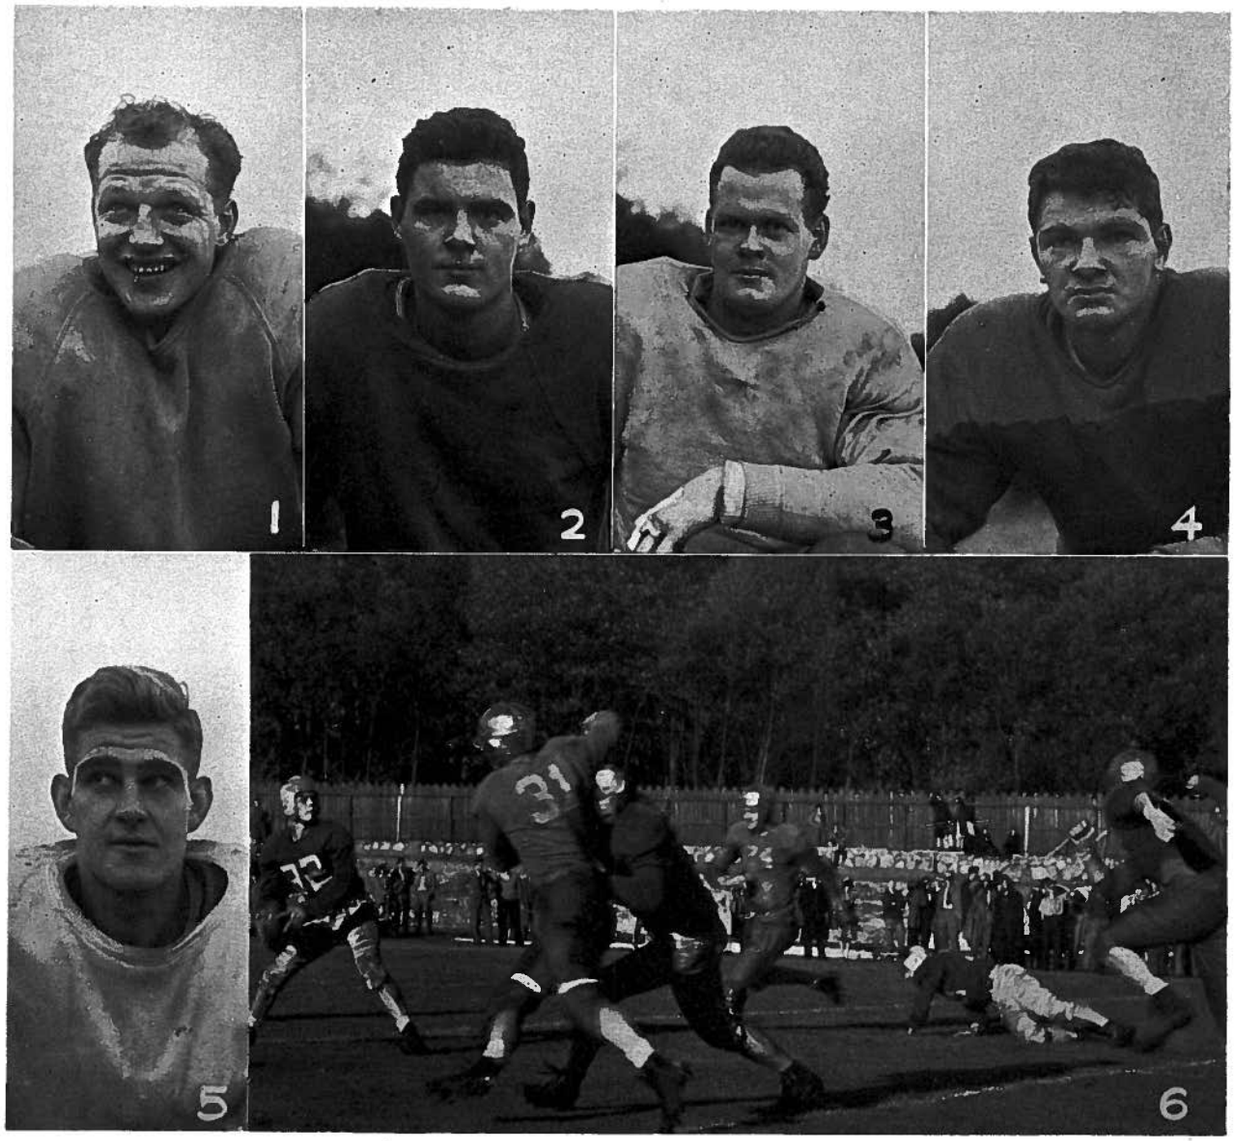

First-string performers included ends Bert HorWood and Dmitri Goulobet, tackles Alex Lamb and Phil Nixon, and guards Herb Capozzi and Gordie Genge. Filling the backfield slots were Freddie Joplin in quarterback position, Phil Guman and Don Nesbit as halfbacks, and Dougie Reid as fullback.

The managerial staff was headed by curly blonde-topped Gardy Gardom, who handled all equipment problems, as well as co-operating with the Graduate Manager of Sports in such matters as train and hotel reservations, entertainment for visiting teams, and so on.

Ably assisting Gardom were six assistant managers: Jim Evans, Gus Thodas, Paul Stockstad, Dick Stewart, Rex Merritt, Ian Kenny, and George Flagg. Johnny Owen, genial stadium manager, was in charge of rub-downs and general conditioning and repair work, and towards the end of the season his time was fully occupied.

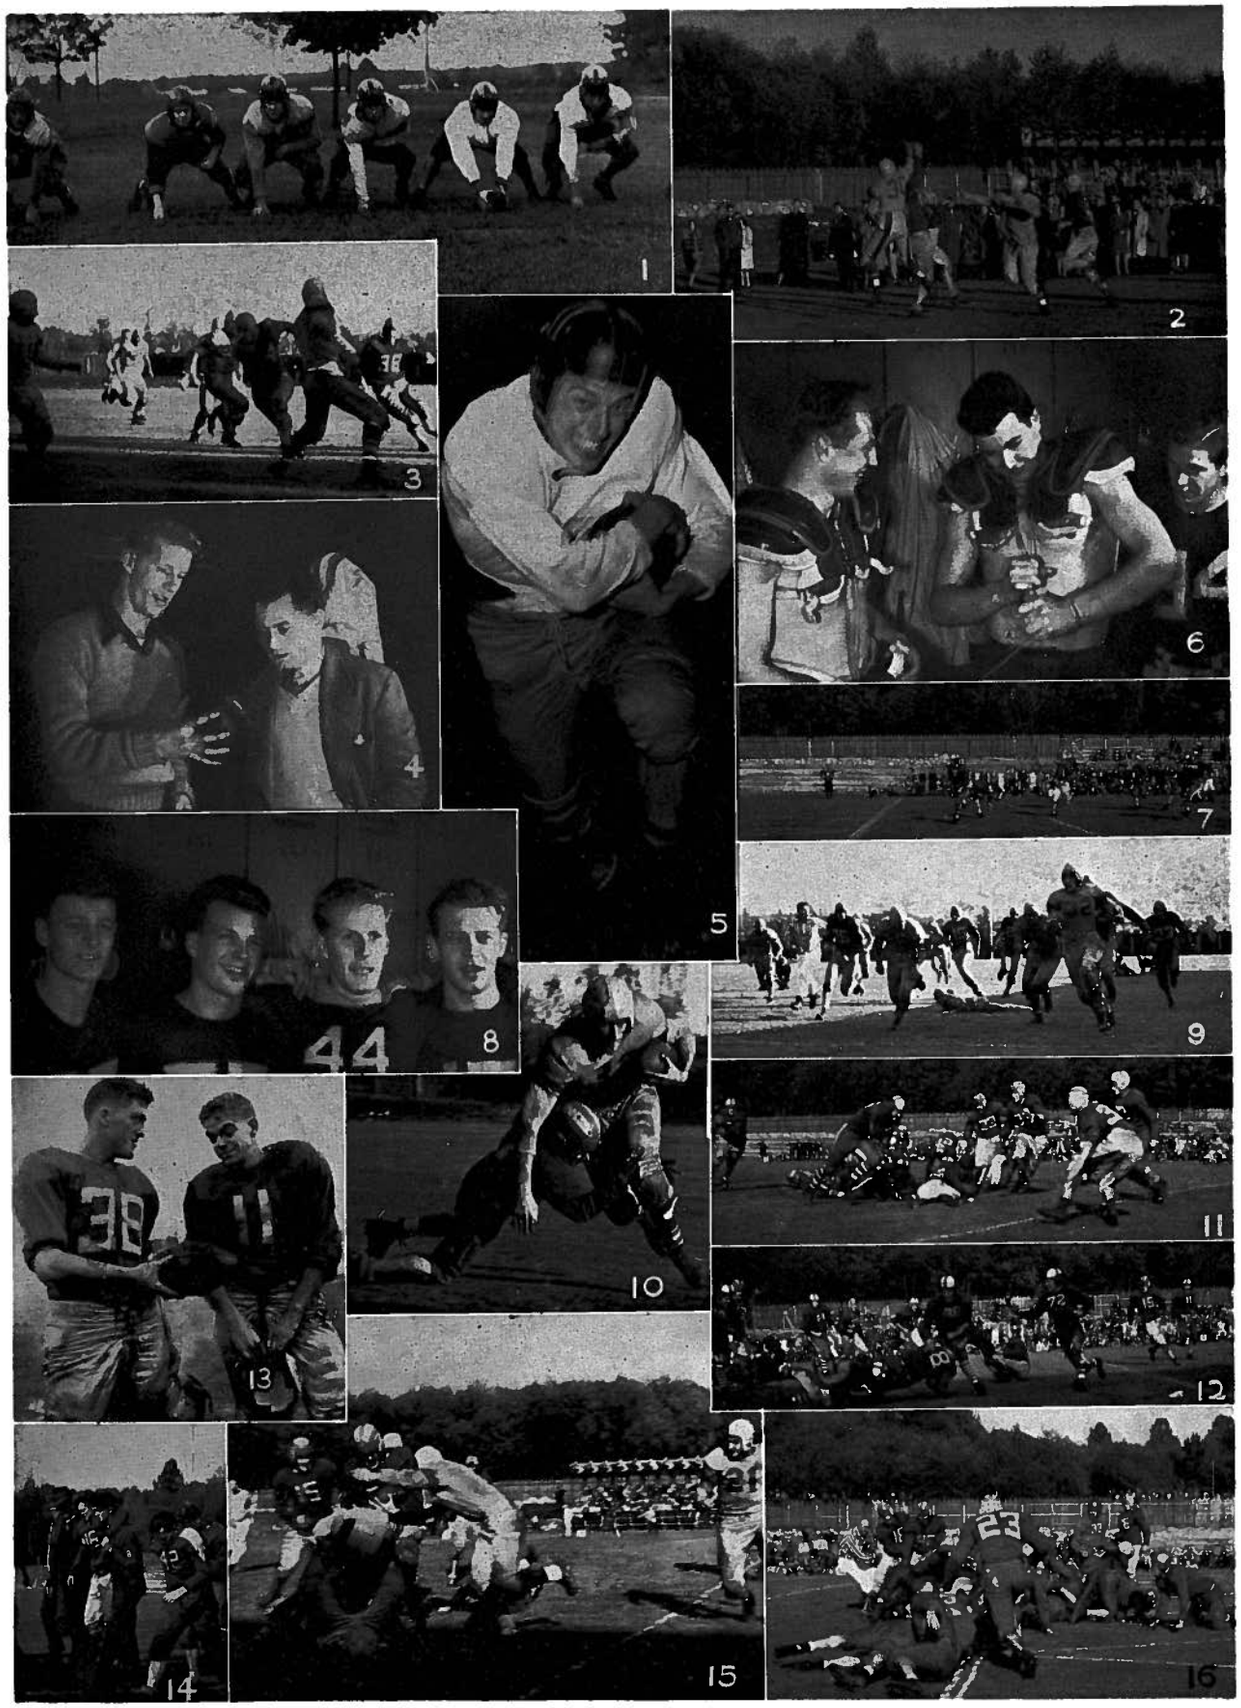

Spring training sessions were inaugurated this year, and began on Monday, February 24, lasting for four and one half weeks.

Coach Greg Kabat put his prospective candidates through a brisk conditioning, and spiced his chalk talks with movies. Towards the end of training period, the squad ran through some light scrimmages and some elementary plays.

Varsity's No. 2 basketball team, the U.B.C. Chiefs, won six and lost six games in regular season play in the Senior A Intercity League this year. They finished in third place behind the once-defeated Meralomas and the Adanacs, and bowed to the New Westminster aggregation in the semi-final series, two games to one.

Coaching the Chiefs was the Assistant Director of Athletics, Doug Whittle. The manager of the club was Sophomore Paul Plant. while Freddie Bossons was elected team captain.

Reid Mitchell was the high scorer for the squad, followed in order by Freddie Bossons, Herb Capozzi, and Len Letham.

Other Chief hoopsters were Jack Amm, Doug Bajus, Jim McKeachie, Dal Town, Gordie Broadhead, Harvey Cook, Cam McLeod, and Bob Boyes.

Capozzi (18) and Towne (4) go up for a rebound in the New Westminster-Adanac semi-final.

Senior B Basketball

Standing: John McKay (Coach), O'Brien, Jasper, Gabrielse, Mylrae, Baker, Robinson, Edwards, Anderson. Next: Edwards (16) and Robinson wait for a rebound in a game against the West Vancouver quintet.

Coach McKay engages in a little half-time discussion while Mylrae the Captain looks on.

A hot and cold team coached by John McKay spent a vigorous season on the maple floor. After an unpredictable career during the season the melon tossers lost by narrow margins to the top teams in the league.

Final league standing of a tie for fifth place with the lowly Victoria Athletes was no indication of the brand of ball played by the Senior B's.

The team was managed by Mike O'Brien. Coach McKay was the third coach to give the boys their workouts for the season, which might account for the erratic season of wins and losses.

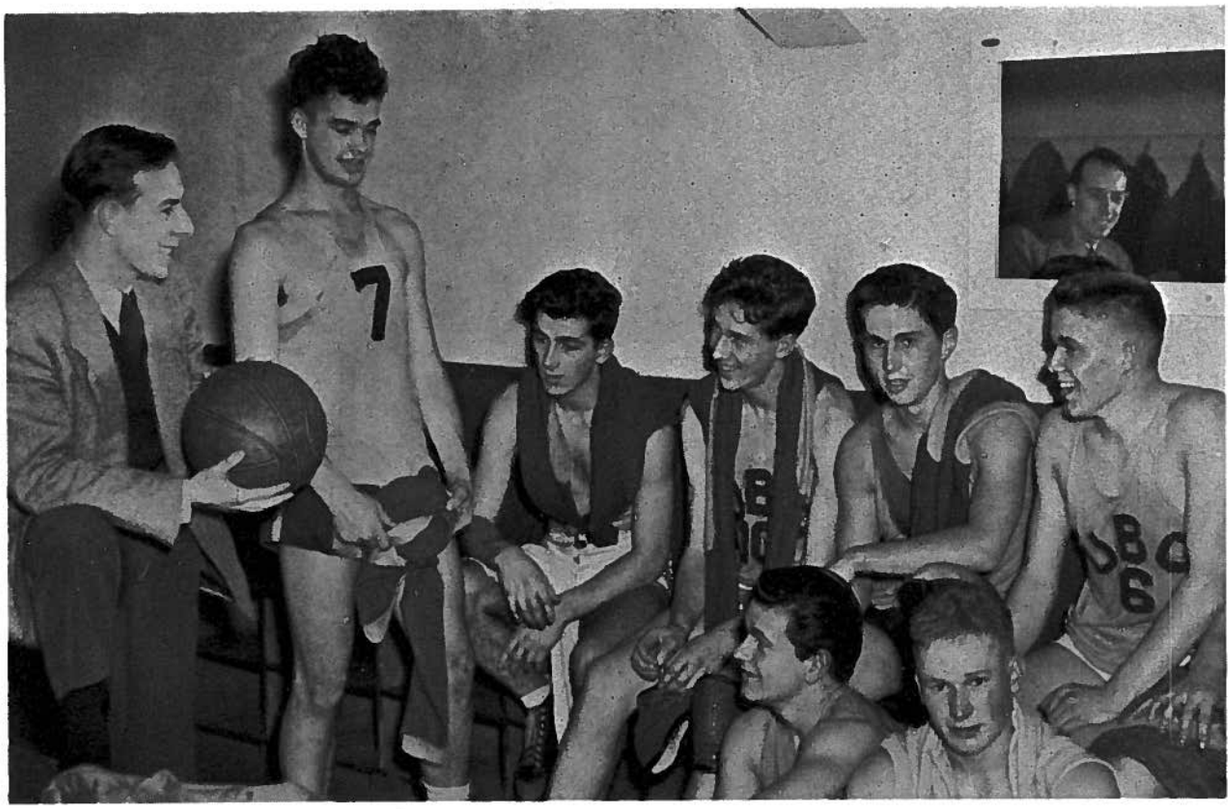

Leading the lineup was Captain Frank Mylrea who played a superb game all season and was chosen as representative of the minor league against the Harlem Globe Trotters. Dave Baker also starred for the B's.

Other members of the team were: M. O'Brien, C. Jasper, H. Gabrielse, J. Baker, D. Robinson, I. Edwards, An. Anderson, D. Hayward.

League standing was: R. C. Motors, 1st; Hodgson-Clark, 2nd; Ryerson, 3rd; Dowlings, 4th. Other teams were: P.M.B.A.'s, Fraser Billiards, Victoria Athletes and Varsity.

Varsity won six, lost eight games during the season.

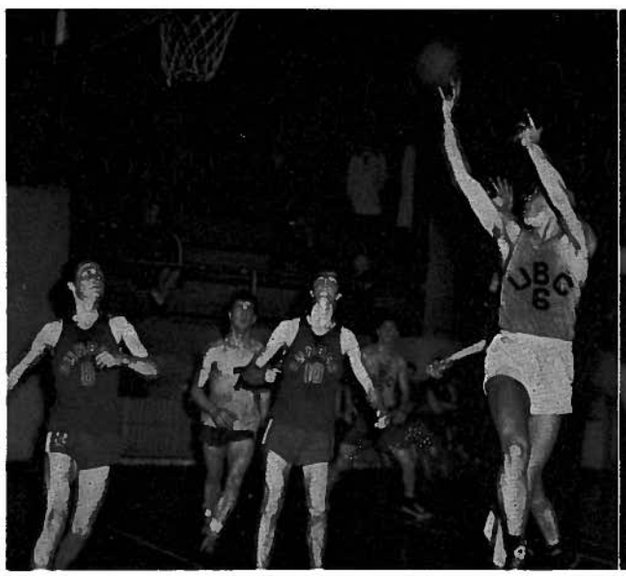

Inter B Basketball

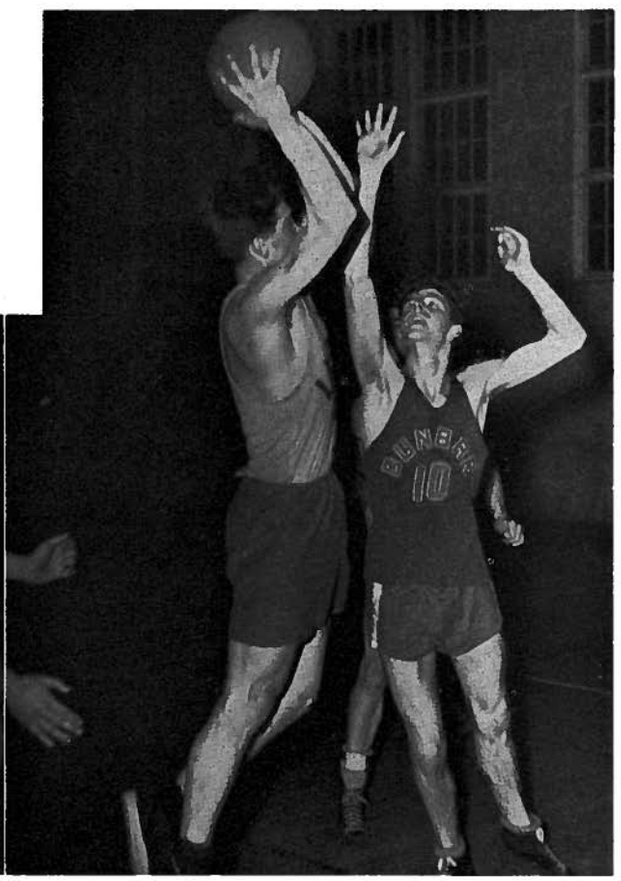

The boys gather in dressing room for pre-game conference.

Varsity's youngsters of basketball finished up the season in fifth place after passing through the hands of their coaches. Due to the efforts of Frank Turner, who took over late in the season, the Inter-B's provoked four overtime games, indicating even matching of the teams.

In the Memorial Cup series the B's were eliminated by Dunbar after knocking out the Chinese Dragons in the first round.

Promising material for future Thunderbirds was discovered in this year's edition of the UBC Frosh basketball team.

Although the team did not reach the Inter A league finals, Coach Ivor Wynne produced a well balanced and aggressive team, and considered the season successful.

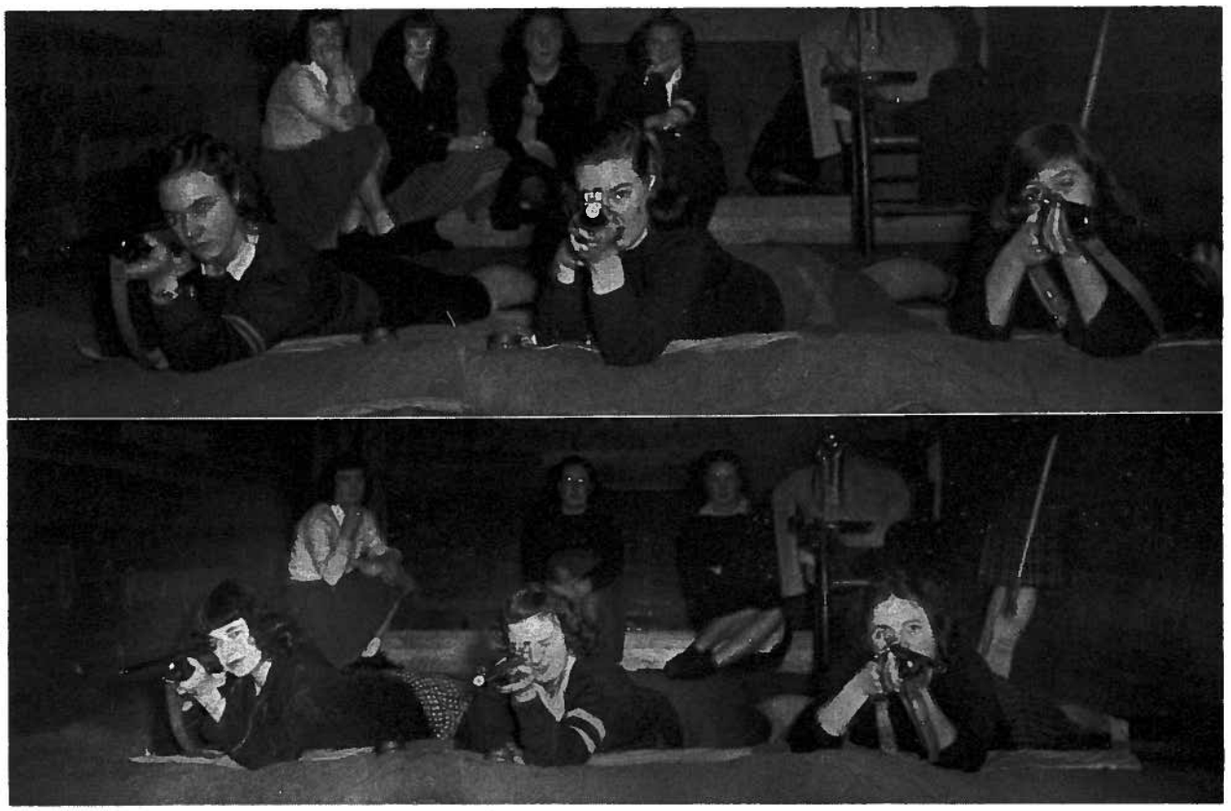

Captain of the team was Bob Sutherland, who played centre last year for Tookes Inter B championship team. Rod Owen and Hugh Gould proved an excellent combination as guards. First string forwards were Doug Bell and Pete Walker, both of whom maintained high scoring averages during the season.

John Pavelich from Eburne, B.C., will be remembered as an ex-high school track and rugger star. Bob Bartlett played capably as a reserve forward.

The Sophomore entry in the Inter A City League was under the coaching of Jack Pomfret, and managed by Len Cuthill. The Sophs scored upset after upset in the playoff series, after a mediocre season, and succeeded in capturing the City Title after subduing the Arrows A quintet three games to one.

The squad then went on to capture the Lower Mainland Title as they romped over a disorganized hoop squad from Abbotsford. At Totem Press time the team was in the running for the provincial title, with a Victoria entry next on their list.

One of the campus's most unique organizations, the Women's Rifle Club, added to their curricula during the year an increased number of practice hours and lectures in the theory of shooting.

After receiving detailed rifle training from some ex-serviceman, most of the 25 members of the club were able to qualify for their Tyro and Marksman badges.

The club challenged the women of the C.N.R. Rifle Club to a shooting meet in January and, although the university girls were beaten, the experience gained enabled the co-eds to win in the return match.

Even the men of the Varsity Fish and Game Club had to admire the girls when they engaged them in a turkey shoot. Using converted 303's, the female team gave the larger men's entry some stiff competition.

The club also took part in the Dominion Marksman Competition for the Canadian Team championship.

The girls spent their shooting time on their range in the Arts basement and supplemented these practices with noon-hour lectures on the theory of shooting.

Executive of the Women's Rifle Club during the year included: Helen Trethewey, president; Maxine Lindow, vice-president; and Kay Worsfold, secretary-treasurer.

Varsity Senior Girls' Basketball team, the Thunderettes, have had a season marked with success. Coached by Ruth Wilson, herself an ex-Varsity basketeer, the girls have let nothing stand in their way in their march to victory.

Although a Senior B team they participated in a Senior A league and ended up in second place. They were acclaimed City Senior B champions, and from there the Thunderettes went on to cop the Lower Mainland Championship by winning a two game series against an Abbotsford quintet. The next step is the B.C. championship which will be played against a Victoria team. Their coach and their supporters have high hopes and great confidence that they will succeed in defeating this next opposition and thus become the B.C. champions.

The team was ably managed this year by Nora McDermott who acted as playing-manager, contributed much to the success of her team.

This year the Intermediate "A" girls' basketball team had a successful season, finishing second in the Vancouver league with eight victories and four losses. In the semi-finals the girls lost the series to the Burrard Lions in two close tilts, 26-25 and 26-22.

Much credit is due to Ruth Wilson who coached the Intermediates, as well as the Seniors. The team was ably managed by Betty Crooks.

Climaxing the season the Intermediates travelled to Kamloops where the trounced the Interior Inter "A" champions 35-20.

The past year has proven to be very eventful in the annals of English rugby on the campus of the University of British Columbia. Play was highlighted by the undefeated streak of the Varsity fifteen, the taking of all trophies in the senior division, and the renewal of exchanges games with American universities.

Large turnouts for early fall practices led Coach Roy Haines to select two strong squads, Varsity and U.B.C.

In the Vancouver City senior rugby battles for the Miller Cup, the Varsity squad ran up an enviable record of ten straight wins and was awarded the trophy at Christmas time. Meralomas and U.B.C. battled for the second rung of the league ladder, but the Loma lads were able to nose out the students, who lost three games. Winter weather left the other three teams in the league, Rowing Club, Ex-South Burnaby, and North Shore All-Blacks, with uncompleted schedules.

Perhaps the most outstanding feature of the year was the introduction by U.B.C. to Vancouver rugger fans of the thirteen-man side. A select crew of Varsity All-Stars picked by Coach Haines and chosen from the two university squads went down to defeat in the first experiment to the tune of a 9-3 score at Brockton Point. But revenge proved to be sweet, for when the same two teams met again on Boxing Day at Capilano Stadium, the Blue and Gold men defeated a Vancouver representative squad by an 8-3 score.

Poor weather delayed competition for the Tisdal Cup until late in January, when the six local squads entered seven-man crews in the knockout contest in the stadium. The Varsity aggregation ran up the enviable record of winning three games in one afternoon. First, they polished off Ex-South Burnaby 13-3, then sweated out a close win over their brother team, U.B.C., and finally took the afternoon by earning a 12-5 victory over the Meraloma men.

The McKechnie Cup was again retained by the university All-Star rugger squad consisting of players from both the U.B.C. and Varsity squads. The first game saw the Vancouver Lions take a 34-3 drubbing at the hands of the University boys. The Victoria Crimson Tide didn't fare much better in the second tussle, when the biggest rugby crowd of the season saw the Blue and Gold all-star aggregation run up a 16-3 score. In an attempt to redeem themselves in the third game, the Lions fought hard, but were outclassed by the 'Birds to an 8-3 score, which gave the university men the privilege to keep the McKechnie silverware on the campus for another year.

Slightly overshadowed by the rugger play centered around the Tisdal and McKechnie Cup matches were the weekly performances of the second-division teams of the English rugby league. The league comprised six teams, four of which owe their allegiance to the University of British Columbia campus. The Varsity Sophs, Frosh, Kats (ex-Kits), and Engineers, cavorted on the gridiron during the past season in competition with Meralomas and Ex-Brittania squads. At the end of the season the Ex-Brit fifteen landed up in top spot in the standings, but the Varsity Sophs were a close second, having lost only one game.

In the round-robin tournament for the Carmichael Challenge Trophy, the Kats team managed to shut out the Ex-Brit outfit 6-0 and walk away with the silverware.

Rugby was well represented in the Marsh invasion of Victoria by U.B.C. students. The same Thunderbird all-star aggregation that had brought the McKechnie Cup to U.B.C. made the trip. As an added attraction, a seventeen-man all-star second division rugger team made the voyage across the water to the provincial capital.

Players for the U.B.C. squad included: Dave Braide, Dave Moon, Dave Kerr, Charlie Flavelle, Bob Kirby, Harry Kabush, Ron Edmonds, Bob Pegues, Gordie Lott, George Biddle, Jack Rowe, Doug Reid, Keith MacDonald, Jim McKeachie, Jack Armour, Bob Williams, and Hilary Wotherspoon.

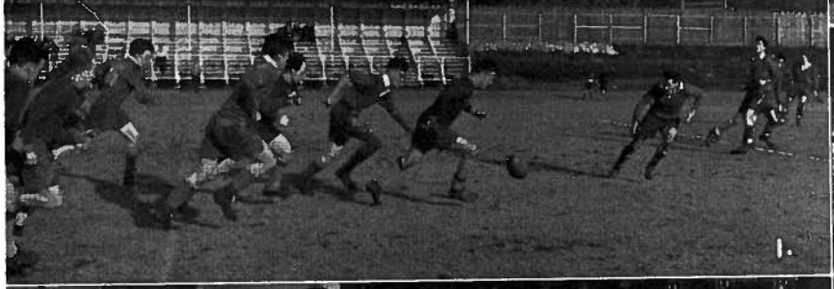

The undefeated Varsity fifteen included: Barrie Morris, Barney Curby, Gordie McKee, Russ Latham, Don Nesbit, Johnny Wheeler, Al Carlyle, Hartt Crosby, Don Gardner, Geof Corey, Marshall Smith, Don Kirby, Ron Grant, Bud Spiers, Andy Johnston, Ray Grant, and Bill Dunbar.

Chief manager Maury Physick was greatly aided by his assistant team managers, Dennis Crocket and Hal Pinchin.

Rugger matches with the University of California in the southern wonderland and in the U.B.C. stadium topped off the year's activity.

Soccer

The University of British Columbia entered two teams in the Vancouver and District Soccer League this year, Varsity, the senior team in Division 1, and U.B.C., the junior team in Division 2.

The Varsity team had only two former Big Block players on this year's team—Jack Cowan and Armand Temoin, both sophomores who starred on last year's team. Gordy Sheperd, Stu Wilson, and Bill Thomas moved up from the U.B.C. squad into the ranks of the Varsity team. The remainder of the Varsity aggregation was composed of ex-servicemen who joined the team this season or in the latter part of last year.

Coach, Miller McGill; Manager, Bud Harford; Dave Comparelli.

Captained by Bill McKay, the U.B.C. team enjoyed one of their better seasons. U.B.C., this year composed of many eager freshman soccer enthusiasts, had much talented material who have been catching the eye of Coach Millar McGill. Murdo McLeod, Jack Blackhall, and a pair of ex-Magee High School forwards, Hugh Ross and Bob Moulds, have been deserving special attention.

Much of the credit for the successful showings of the roundball crews this year goes to ex-Varsity and Coast League soccer star, Millar McGill. Coach McGill improved immeasurably the defensive tactics of the teams, and also developed the scoring power of the squads, which previously had been costing the squads close decisions, into a high scoring aggregation, as the statistics show in the "for" and "against" columns.

The Varsity team, captained by Angus MacSween, is one of the outstanding soccer teams in

B.C. this year. The great achievement so far this season is the impressive showing the team made in the Mainland Cup playdowns. After defeating Vancouver United 3-1 and dropping the strong Collingwood club 1-0 in a crowded playing schedule, the students drew the former Dominion Cup holders, North Shore Reds, for the semi-finals. The game was played on Christmas Day under poor conditions and saw the Blue and Gold team drop a close 3-2 decision. The well-drilled McGill-men led the Reds well into the second half before the champions' experience began to take its toll.

This Cup game was the last showing in Varsity colors for Henry Sager, who moved to California shortly after. Hank, an expert at ball control and checking, was one of the best players ever to enroll at U.B.C.

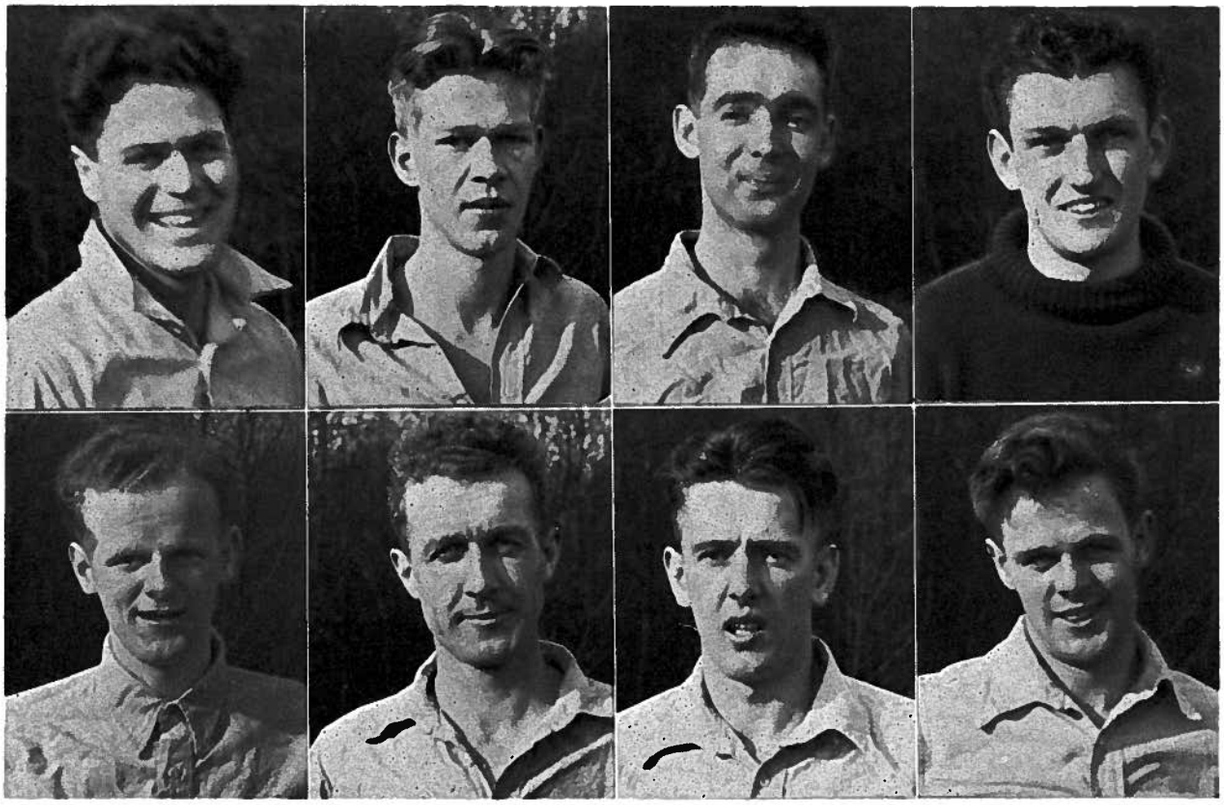

The Varsity squad is studded with potential stars. There is netkeeper Grant Moreton who has six shutouts to his credit in the twelve league games played and only eight goals scored against him. There are fullbacks Ken Myers and Jack Cowan. Cowan last year won the Ed Bayley Memorial Rookie Award and his Big Block.

The halfback positions are held down by three capable men. At left-half position there is Armand Temoin; in the centre-half slot there is captain Gus MacSween. Holding down the right-half hole is Stan Nicol, a former St. Andrew's player.

While most of the other sport teams have completed their schedules, the university soccer squads have at least seven more games to play. When the schedule is completed, the Imperial Cup playdowns come into the limelight.

Organization of the teams was in the hands of senior manager Bud Harford, Varsity mentor, and Ernie Hodge, who handled the U.B.C. outfit. Dr. O. J. Todd and Dave Comparelli were faculty representative and president respectively.

Here are the standings in Division 1 up to Totem deadline time:

Coach Lort outlines a little strategy.

Two teams from the University of British Columbia, Varsity and U.B.C., were among the four teams that constituted the Vancouver Men's Grass Hockey League.

In the battle for first position in the League it was mainly a struggle between the two university squads.

On the campus itself, a full year of intramural activity was run off in which teams representing Arts, Applied Science, Agriculture, Jokers, and Geology participated.

Players on the U.B.C. team included: Norm

Dave Pudney breaks through a rugged U.B.C. defence, while Captain Ned Larsen waits for the pass.

Bruce Benham and Fred Joplin fight it out during the Varsity - U.B.C. game.

Among the players on the Varsity squad were: Nigel Rothwell, Nick Herrick, Joe Augustus, Fred Joplin, Ned Larsen, Stan Tower, Bruce Benham, Don Curry, Dave Pudney, Stefan Arbeson, and Gus Decoque.

Following are the final Vancouver League standings:

Women's Grass Hockey

Standing: Peggy Bowe, Mary Sainas, Connie Liddell, Vivian Spicer, Isabel McKinnon, Sheila Hicks, Barb Coles, Anne Munro, Sheila Flight, Nonie Carruthers. Seated: Beth MacKay, Ev Walling, Barb Seymour.
Top: Yvonne French faces off with Peggy Bowe.
Bottom: Peggy Bowe, Shirley Ellison.

This season has been one of the most successful ever enjoyed by the girls' hockey teams, Varsity and U.B.C. Under the very able management of hard-working Yvonne French, the Varsity team never lost a game in the Women's Lower Mainland and District Grass Hockey League.

From the very fine collection of individual players, Pam Fish, captain of the team, stands out as the star of the year, being responsible for most of the goals scored. She was aggressively supported in the forward line by inners Isabel MacKinnon, and Audrey Thomson, and wings Peggy Bowe and Anne Munroe. The defense was excellent. Yvonne French, Sheila Stewart, and Barb Seymour composed the half-back line, while fullbacks Connie Liddell and Barb Coles, and goalie Shirley Ellison completed the team.

The U.B.C. must not be overlooked. Although short-fielded, they played very ably. Sheila Hicks, Ev Walling, Sheila Flight, Mary Sainas, Mary Anne Norton, Joan Robinson, and Gene McMynn all contributed their share.

The girls travelled to Victoria with the Invasion, and soundly trounced Victoria College, 3-1.

Ice Hockey

Mac Porteous, Dave Baker (Manager), Stu Johnston, Sid Macleod, Hugh Berry, Jim Rowledge, Walt Wilde, Bill Husband, Bus Alger (Assistant Coach); Terry Nelford, Bob Saunders, Bob Smith, Murray Wiggins, Fred Andrews, Lloyd Torfason, Owen Woodside.

Varsity's Ice Hockey squad branched out into stiff competition this season, joining the Pacific Coast Junior Hockey League. Acquiring the famed Frank Frederickson as coach, and the addition of several experienced ex-prairie players, the club had a promising future at the start of the season.

However, a determined bid for second place was grounded during the Christmas holidays when many players were absent. The resulting losing streak dropped the squad from playoff contention.

Punch line of the team was the trio of Stu Johnson, Hugh Berry, and Fred Andrews. Berry garnered 20 goals and 15 assists to lead the team's scoring.

Dave Baker was the manager of the team.

U.B.C.'s hard-working Boxing Club had two real chances to display their wares during the year. One was at the annual Vancouver Golden Gloves tournament, the other time at the first university intramural boxing and wrestling tournament.

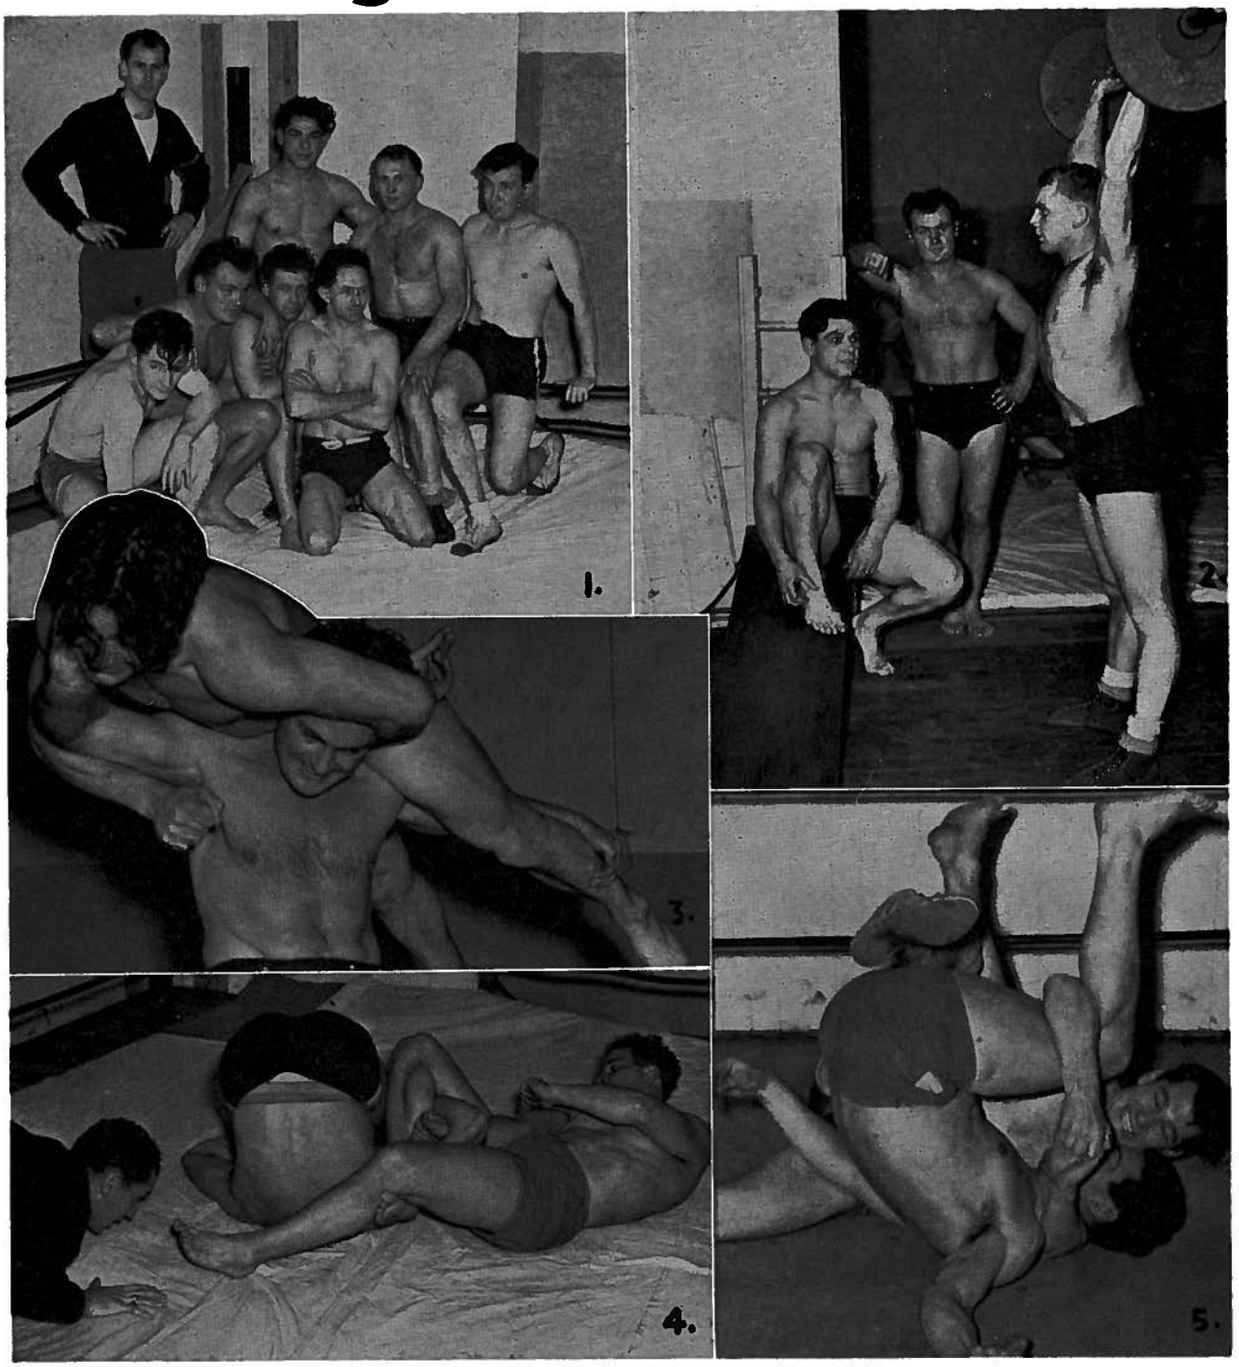

Among the Varsity pugilists that entered the Golden Gloves tournament were: Phil Olson, Bill Campbell, Pete Worthington, Johnny Granda, Jim Bryant, Art Beaumont, Malcolm Gillespie, George Wilkie, Walt Gray, Terry Field, and Jim Casey.

Phil Olson was eliminated from the Gloves affair by doctor's orders. Malcolm Gillespie won his first two fights by decisions, but was eliminated by technical difficulties. Terry Field lost his fight when knocked out by Golden Boy Eddie Haddad.

The biggest event on the club agenda was the intramural boxing and wrestling tournament held early in March.

During the year, the Club acquired a new and very able coach, Jim Gove, and a new ring for the stadium.

Although not officially recognized as a club, wrestlers on the campus of the University of British Columbia have enjoyed their best year of grunting and groaning in a long time.

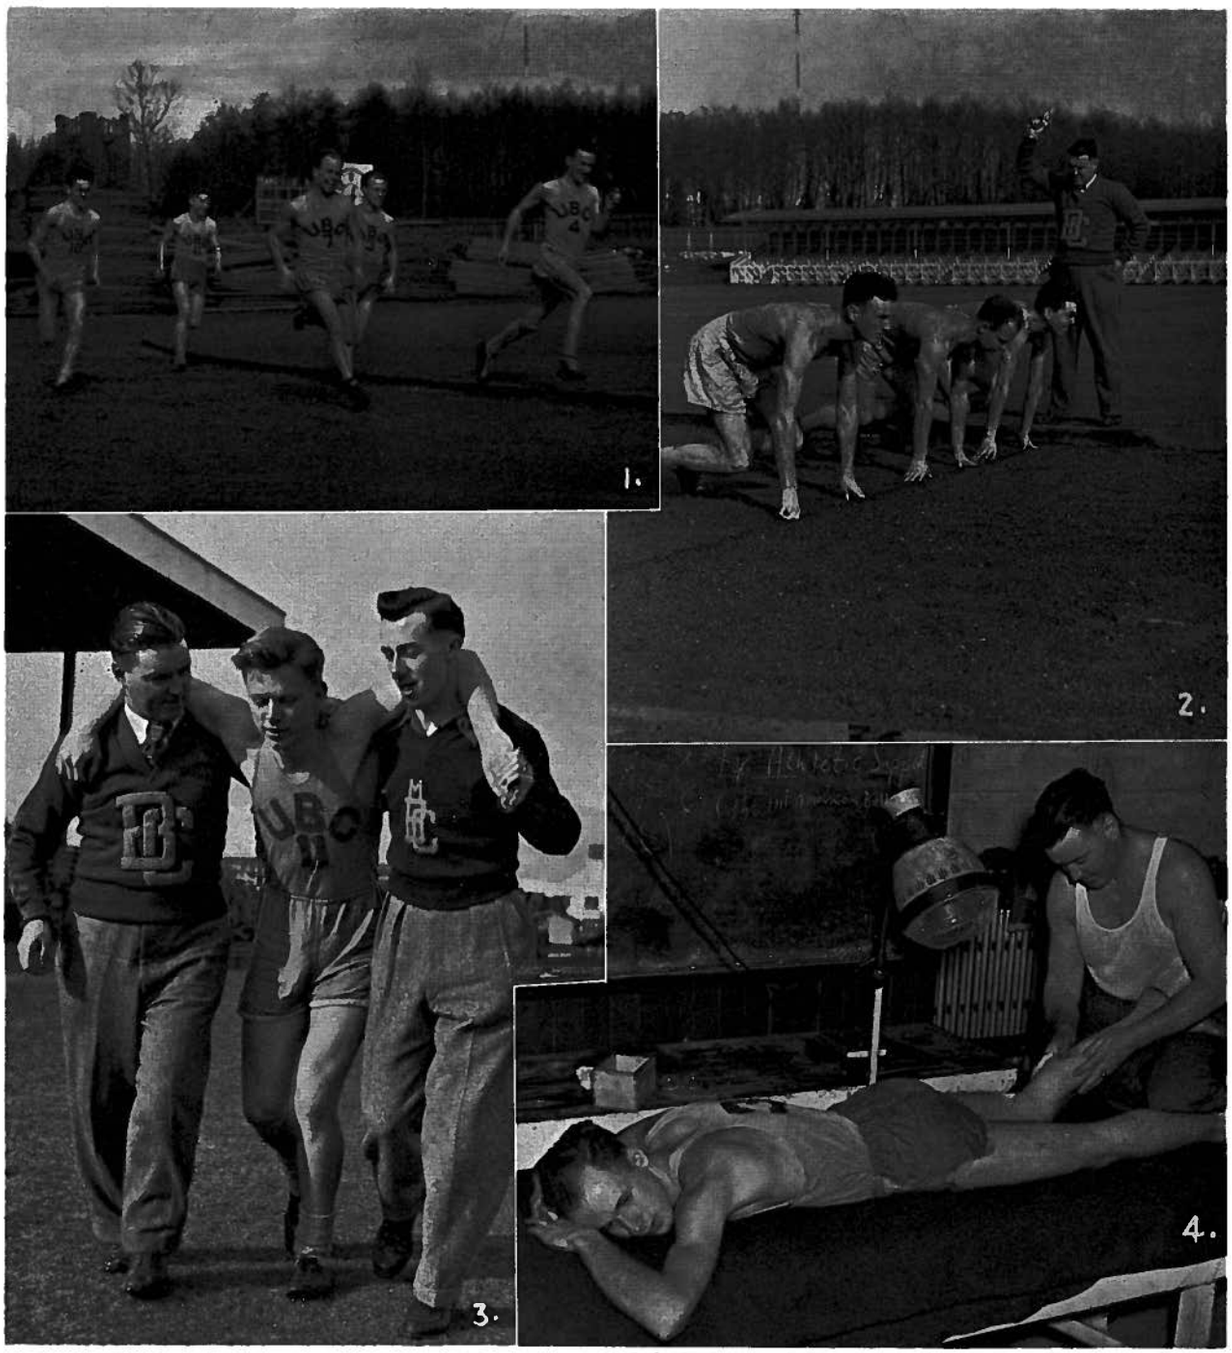

The biggest event of the year for the wrestlers was the intramural boxing and wrestling tournament held early in March. Four wrestling and nine boxing bouts were the feature attractions of the tournament.

In the lightweight class there was Floyd Eno, a former British Columbia champion. Howie Thurgood, runner-up in the Canadian finals of 1940 for the 145-pound class, was the university's welterweight mainstay.

In the light-heavyweight class, there are Pete Greer and Wally Walling. Contending for heavyweight honors were Herb Capozzi, Ian Sprinkling and Claude Simpson.

The wrestlers have been practicing three times a week. It is expected that Howie Thurgood, Floyd Eno, and Wally Walling will represent the university in the Olympic wrestling trials.

Varsity's track stars experienced their first season in the Pacific Northwest Conference, when they competed at the regular conference meet at Walla Walla, Washington, at the end of May, 1946.

The Blue and Gold striders placed second to the harriers from Whitman College, although they captured first place in every event they entered. Unfortunately for U.B.C. title chances, the summer interim had occasioned the absence of many of the university's top trackmen.

U.B.C. competed in the following events: 100 yards, 220 yards, 440 yards, 880 yards, 1 mile, 2 miles, broad jump, high jump, 120-yard hurdles, 1-mile relay.

The team was coached by the Director of Men's Athletics, Bob Osborne, and included Len Jenkins, Roy Aspinall, Ron Weber, Bill McCubbin, Tony Dare, Pat Minchin, Al Bain, Ken McPherson, Ray Grant, and Dave Blair.

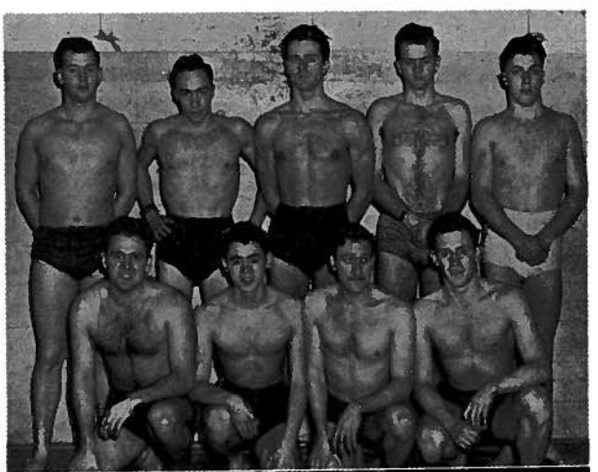

The Intramural Track Meet was held on March 29, and was captured again by the Jokers.

Swimming was given a big impetus on the campus during the 1946-47 season by the formation of the Varsity Swimming Team, and by the first meet in the Pacific Northwest Conference.

One of the highlights of the aquatic year was the Annual Intramural Swim Gala, sponsored by the Club. The Jokers captured the Seaweed Crown for the second straight year, gaining their margin through a well-balanced strength in the relays.

Doug Whittle again coached the U.B.C. natators, who included Hall Brodie, Lew Attwell, Don Morrison, Jim Hawthorne, Fred Oxenbury, Bob Stangroom, Bob Marshall, Bob Whitlam, and Dick Ellis. Heading the feminine bracket were Irene Strong, Kay Worsfold, Bev Beurly, Kay Eastwood, Peggy Winter, Gwen Avery, Lily Dunlop, Pat McIntosh, and Rosemary Bell-Irving.

Pre-season meets included the B.C. Championships at Victoria on November 9, and a dual affair with the Y.M.C.A. on January 18. In the latter swim fest, the Blue and Gold captured first place in every event entered and won an exhibition Aquabolo game, 4-1.

Cross Country emerged as one of the most successful sports on the campus during the year. Climaxing the fall training period, Bob Osborne's fleet-footed charges invaded the Washington Invitation Tourney and captured their fourth straight Pacific Coast Intercollegiate Cross Country Championship.

The season was inaugurated on November 6, when over 125 candidates for distance fame rounded the 2.6 mile course in the Annual Intramural Roadrace.

Freshman Bob Piercy led the pack over the grind in the sensational time of 13:44:8 to pace the Jokers to their second successive triumph. Trailing by 25 yards was Pat Minchin, and in third place, Al Bain.

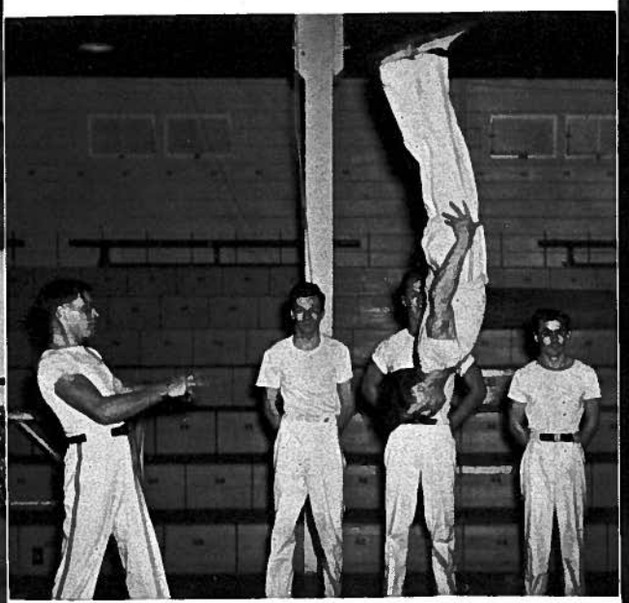

On Wednesday, November 20, Coach Osborne picked his squad for the Seattle Meet. This time, volatile Pat Minchin paced the Blue and Gold striders over a difficult four-mile course, outdistancing Piercy by 10 seconds in the time of 22:08.

The following team represented the university in the Pacific Coast meet: Pat Minchin, Bob Piercy, Doug Knott, Pete de Vooght, Al Bain, Gil Blair, and Ken McPherson. It was McPherson's fourth year on the Varsity which he has captained for the last three.

Under the direction of Coach Doug Whittle, the U.B.C. Gym Club indulged in its first real season of gymnastic activity during the past year.

Highlighting the year's activities was the Gym Club-sponsored Inter-Faculty Gymnastic Competition in which teams from the faculties of Arts, Applied Science, Agriculture, and the Physical Education participated.

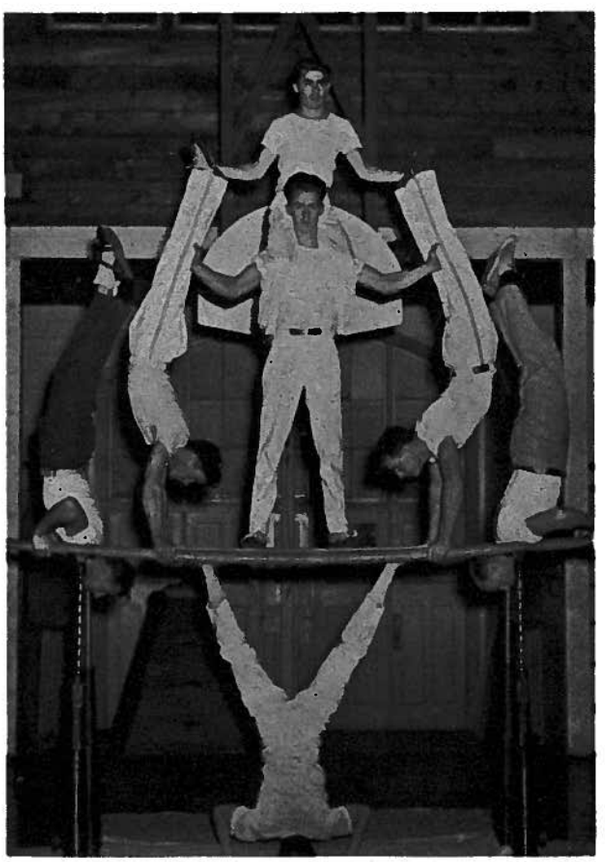

The club also did their share towards aiding the War Memorial Gymnasium fund drive. The U.B.C. gymnastic enthusiasts provided some displays on a float during the gym drive parade.

Three members of the U.B.C. Gym Club entered the Pacific Northwest Gymnastic Competition held at Vancouver's Exhibition Gardens.

At four different Northwest Conference basketball games, Gym Club members offered the hoop fans some half-time gymnastic displays.

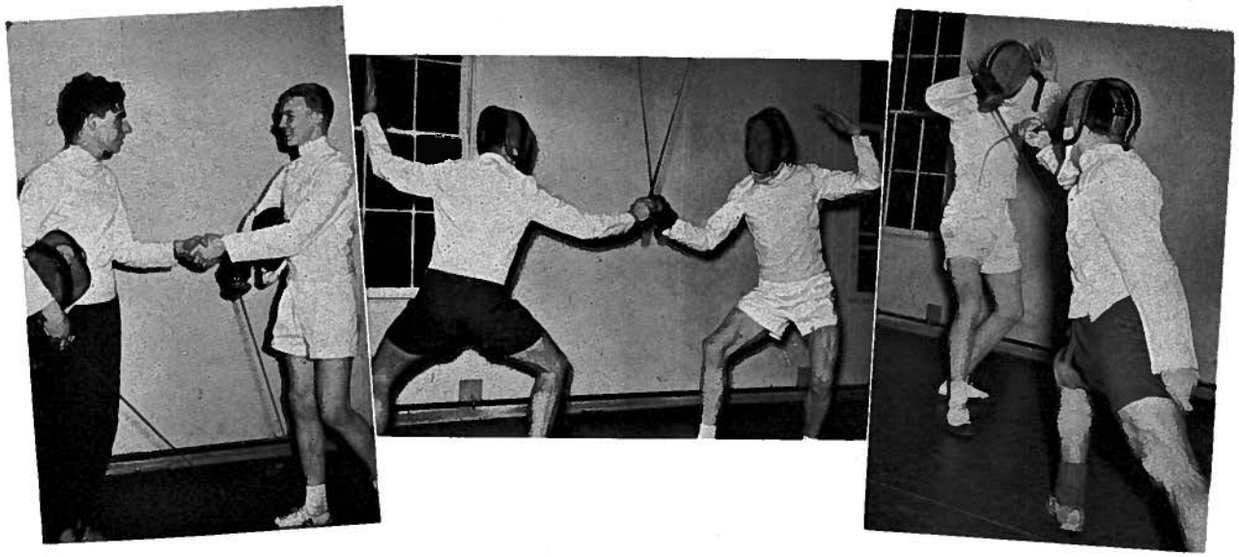

Other members of the Gym Club executive included: Jeff Heal, president; Don Moore, manager. Faculty representative again this year was Mr. Heslop of the civil engineering department.

Among the members of the Gym Club during the past year were: Joe Rioux, Gerry Heal, Don Moore, Wally Boyd, Joe Gilbert, Pete Wakefield, Norm Harrick, Ole Olafson, Al McMartin, Dave Roxbourgh, Tom Meagher, Gil Bancroft, Martin Edwards, George Hobson.

Most of the activity of the U.B.C. Fencing Club took place in the second term after a reorganizational meeting in the Christmas holidays put the club back on its feet.

Under the direction of Club President Rae Bates, the Varsity sword wielders engaged in competition with the Blades Club of Vancouver in a home-and-home tournament. Later they partook of some inter-collegiate fencing competition with a team from the University of Washington.

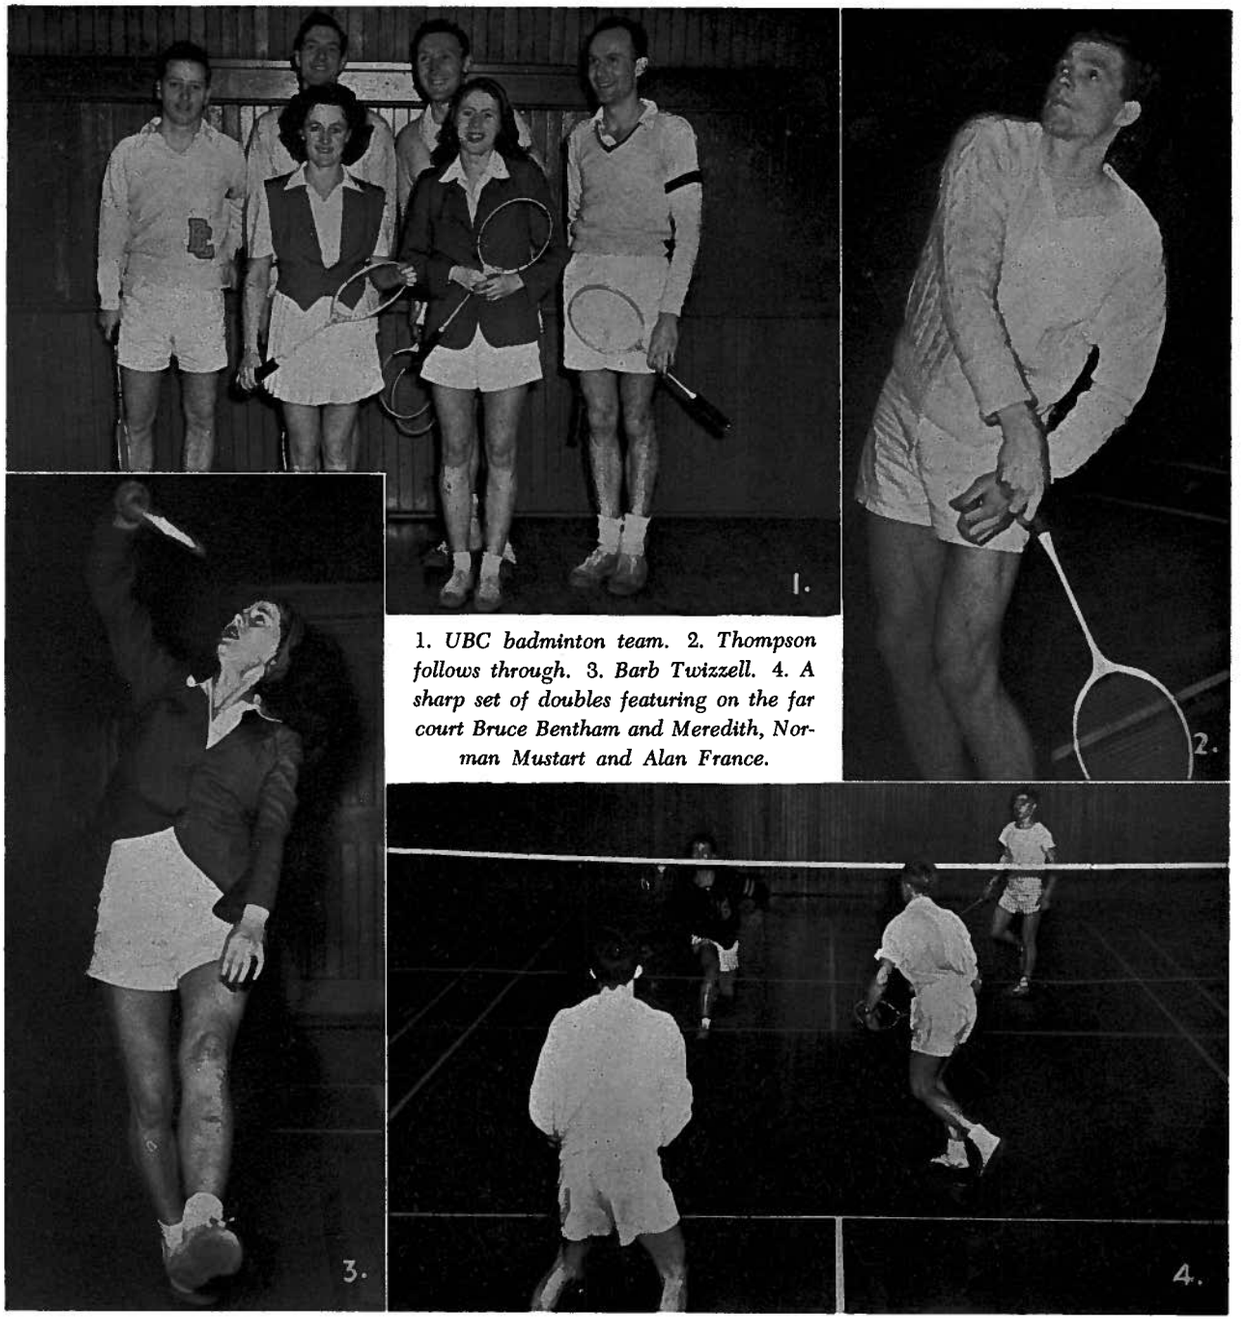

The university swordsmen also came to be known by fans at the Thunderbird basketball games. Sabre, epee and foil class displays were put on for hoop fans at half-time.

This year, club members had access to two huts on the campus. Regular club meetings were held on Wednesday afternoon, club tournaments on Tuesday and Friday afternoons, and the Physical Education fencing classes took place every Thursday.

Fencing Club executives for the year included: Rae Bates, president; Dan Lambert and Jim Warr, vice-presidents; and Rod Wilkes, secretary.

Maitre d'Armes Hale Atkenson again this year coached both the Fencing Club and the P.E. fencing classes. Mr. Atkenson lent his own equipment for club use and also donated a trophy which was to be presented to the high man of the year in club competition.

League matches with other Vancouver teams, participation in the Vancouver City, British Columbia and Washington State championships were the highlights of the year for the U.B.C. Badminton Club.

In the British Columbia championships, Darry Thompson demonstrated his usual fine calibre of play by reaching the men's singles finals. In the Washington State tournament, Ken Meredith and Jimm Watt retained their men's doubles championship. Nancy Raine, partnered with Jim Watt, brought a new title home to U.B.C. by taking the mixed doubles crown.

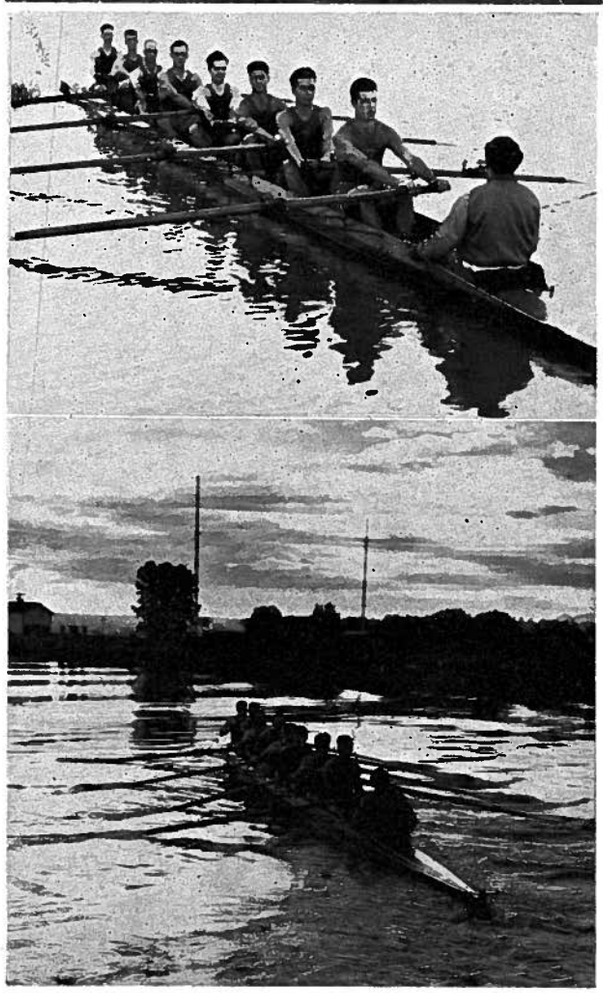

Regular players on U.B.C.'s first team in the Vancouver and District Badminton League were: Barb Twizzell, Nancy Raine, Noni Carruthers, Alan France, Mary Tucker, Jim Watt, Ken Meredith, Darry Thompson, and Murray Creighton. Players on the second team were: Joan List, Leslie White, Connie Liddell, Peggy Fullerton, Barbara Simpson, Howard DeBeck, Denny Thompson, Bruce Bentham, Bob Nilan, and Bill Taylor.

Executive of the U.B.C. Badminton Club this year included: Jim Watt, president; Nancy Raine, vice-president; Phyllis Travis, secretary-treasurer; and Dave Hansen, team manager.

U.B.C.'s Rowing Club paved the way for international competition last year by entering the Pacific Northwest International Rowing Conference at Seattle.

The Varsity scuttlers were up against teams from American universities on the Pacific coast, as well as teams from Harvard and Yale universities.

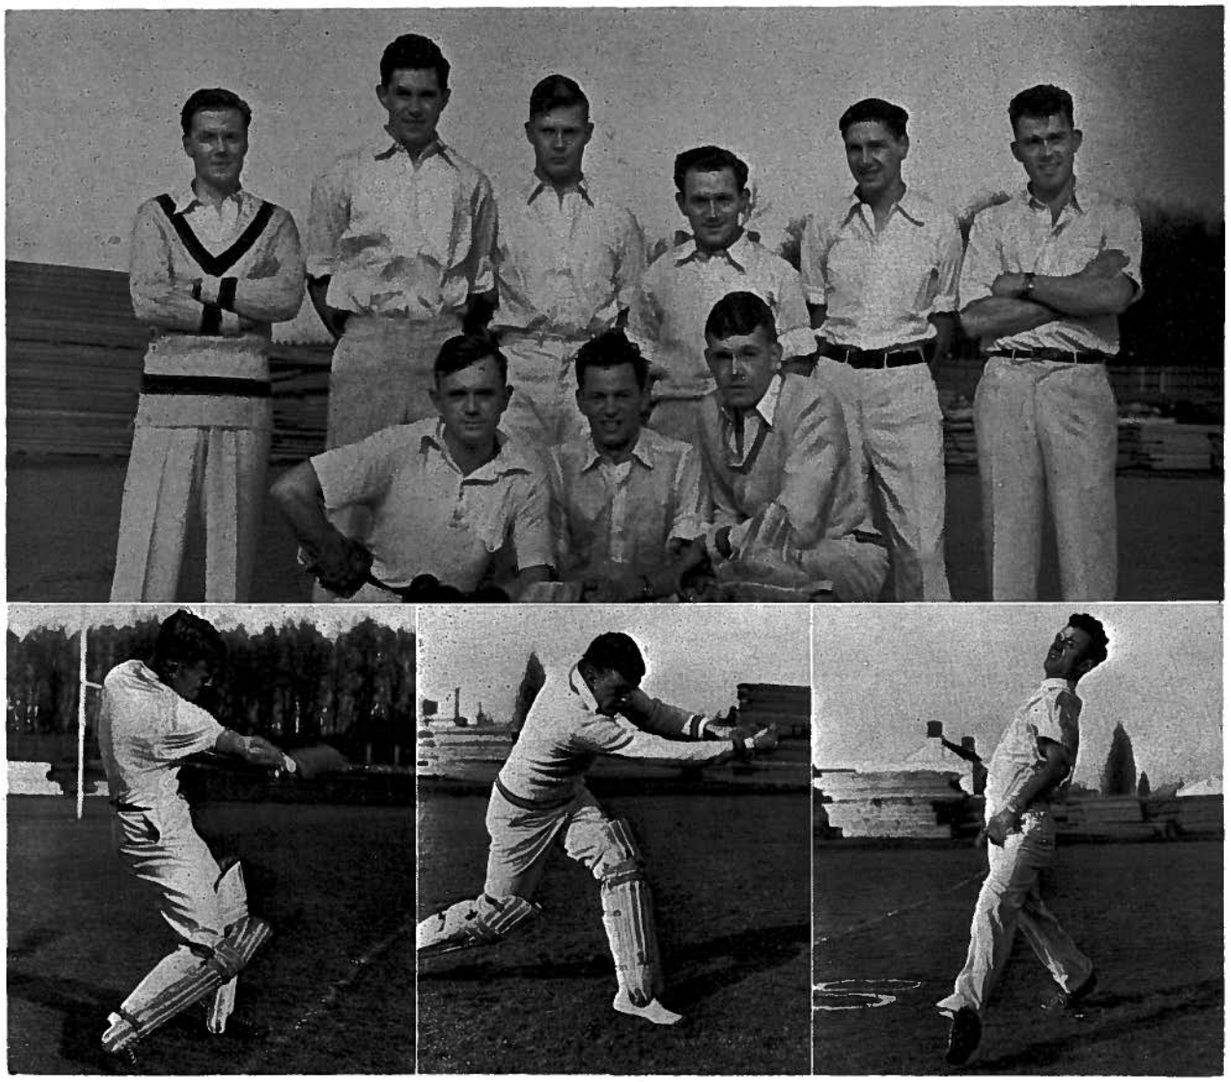

Hopes are that the university rowers will compete, after the exams are over, with teams from Victoria, Washington and California. There is also a possibility that the U.B.C. will have a team entered in the International Regatta at Seattle again this year.

Although they hold their regular rowing practices on the Fraser River, the U.B.C. scuttlers are still able to practice on the campus. There are two tanks containing one-quarter of a canoe. The bow and stroke oarsmen are able to practice in the miniature tank.

The Varsity rowers were coached by Harry Castillou, and Johnny MacDougall and George Lee acted as coxswains.

Skippered by Harry Castillou, members of the U.B.C. crew were: Dave Moon, stroke; Neve Smith, seven man; Norm Denkman, six man; Bill Ross, five man; Dyne Kayle, four man; Bob Hughes, three man; and Mike Fitzjames, two man.

Composed entirely of ex-servicemen, U.B.C.'s two cricket teams, A and B, boasted one of their best seasons of play during the past year. The teams landed up in third place in the A division, and in second slot in the B division.

After an early losing streak, the A team forged ahead to earn a victory over the Rowing Club squad, but went to defeat at their hands in the final match. The university lads were edged out of first position in the B section by the Vancouver Juniors.

The season was highlighted by an exhibition match with the Vancouver All Stars, and proceeds went to the War Memorial Gym Fund.

In a final exhibition match of the season's play, the B squad won out over the A team. Les Bullen captained the A team, and Dave Pudney led the B squad.

Games were played at Brockton Point against the President's team, captained by Mr. Stanley Remnant, and against the Vice-President's team, under Mr. G. O'Hara, to a capacity crowd of 2,000 spectators.

Outstanding players during the season were Jim Beard, Ned Larsen, Les and Deny Bullen, and Dave Pudney.

Prof. Warren was again sponsor of the U.B.C. Cricket Club. Les Bullen and Dave Massey held the respective positions of president and secretary-treasurer. Dave Pudney will be president of the Cricket Club for the coming year, and Joe Parker will hold the position of secretary.

Archery

Although practically unknown as a sport on the campus, the U.B.C. Archery Club has really spent a season of bustling activity.

Despite the fact that in the autumn there was little shooting activity because of lack of equipment, many prospective male and female Robin Hoods were taught the fundamentals of the game.

When the bows and arrows did arrive, a convenient time-table was worked out and practices were held in a hut made available by the university athletic authorities and in the area between the tennis courts and the gym building.

A competition shoot was arranged by the club executive with the Hiawatha Archery Club of Vancouver, who were able to edge out the university men and women by a small margin.

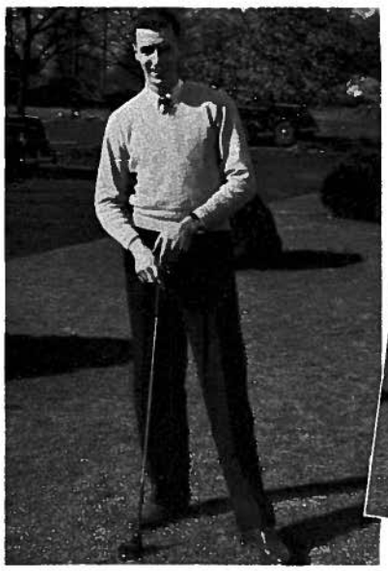

Because of the lack of funds, the club executive had to turn down invitations for competition with out of town teams.

The club has been active on the campus for the last two years and its growth is a general indication of its popularity with the students.

The club also provided social entertainment for their members after a club shooting competition and after the tournament with the Hiawatha Club.

The reshuffle of the executive because of the pressure of studies resulted in the members lecting the following executive: Owen Scudamore, president; Basil Thompson, vice-president; Nancy Harvey, secretary; and Don Chant, club manager.

Golf

Doug Bajus.

Ormy Hall.

Dave Dale.

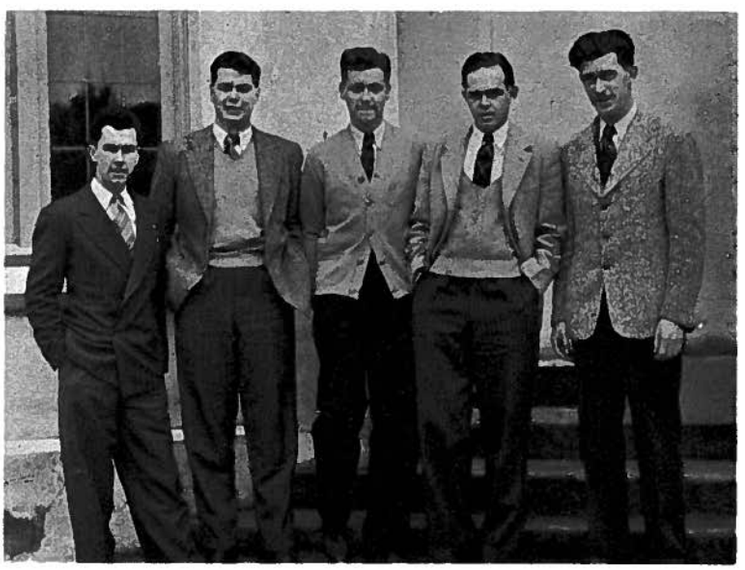

Five members of Varsity's famous six-man Golf Team which travelled to California last year—Bob Plommer, Ormy Hall, Hans Swinton, Dave Dale and Dick Hanley—were back at school this year forming the nucleus of what was reputed to be the best team in the history of the University. Newcomers bolstering the squad were Doug Bajus, Bill Esson, Bob Esplen and Ted Chambers.

Bob Plommer defeated Dick Hanley, 2 and 1, for the 1946-47 University Match Play Golf Championship in a 36-hole match over the university golf course.

Another tour of the west coast and probable participation in the United States Intercollegiate Golf Championships were being planned for the late spring, while a six-man team played the annual match against the Vancouver pros on March 17. Proceeds of the play went to the War Memorial Gym Fund.

Lessons in golf were given to classes of beginners organized under the Department of Physical Education by members of the Varsity team.

Big Blocks were awarded for the first time in the history of U.B.C. to members of the squad. The recipients of the coveted awards were Ormy Hall, Bob Plommer, Dave Dale, Hans Swinton, Dick Hanley, and Malcolm Tapp, a member of last year's team, who is now a professional golfer at Quilchena Golf Club.

Skiing and mountaineering became increasingly popular this year with the welcoming of 130 new members into the Varsity Outdoor Club.

After a busy summer on the local peaks and a week in Garibaldi Park in September, the Club, forced to look for increased accommodation, was fortunate in being able to obtain the use of the Vancouver Winter Sports Cabin, situated at the foot of the "Big Hill" on Grouse Mountain.

With the help of prospective members, a gigantic repair job was undertaken, and the entire club of 230 members was able to move in by the time the skiing season had begun.

The first major activity of the 1946-47 season was the Fall Trip during which 55 of the 167 climbers successfully scaled the West Head of the Lions.

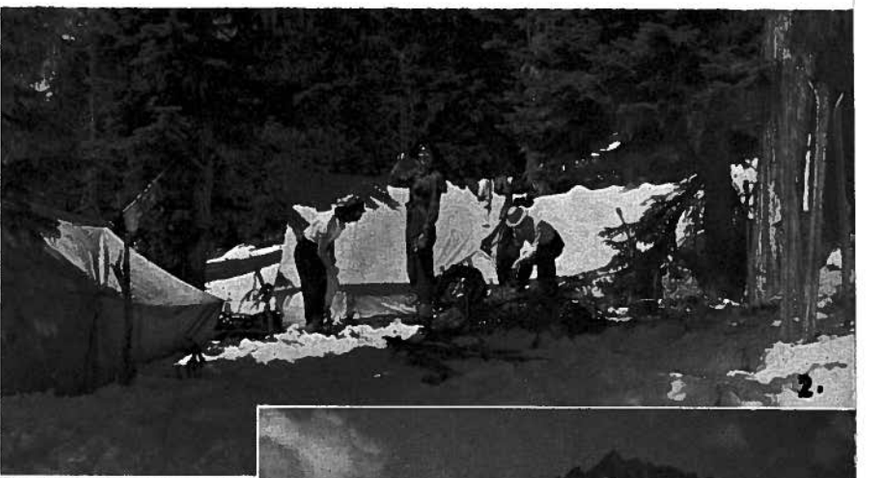

This was followed up by hikes up Crown and Goat Mountains, and rock climbing on Flint and Feather.

In addition to the competitive skiing under Coach Peter Vajda, members enjoyed the Christmas trips to Revelstoke and Garibaldi Park. Other activities included the Spring Hike and the annual Spring Camp at Garibaldi.

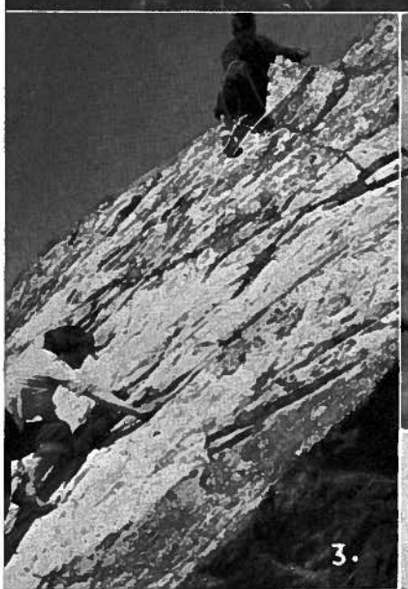

The executive for the year was: Honorary president, Fred Roots; honorary vice-president, Joan Stevens; president, Roy Hooley; vice-president, Ingrid Granberg; secretary, Jean Rennie; treasurer, Harry Smith; marshal, Bob Christie; archivist, Joyce Clearihue.

Competitive Skiing

Competitive skiing took on a new lease of life at U.B.C. this year, when, under their coach, Peter Vajda, the members of the ski team captured the Western Canadian Inter-collegiate ski crown at Banff, January 25 and 26, against teams from the Universities of Alberta, Manitoba, and Oregon State College, and several other individual winning spots in other tournaments.

The team was built around flashy Garvin Robinson, who managed to win the Western Canadian Downhill and Slalom titles at Revelstoke.

Other U.B.C. skiers who were on the No. 1 team at Banff were, Jerry Lockhart, Gordon Cowan, Gordy Hall, John Frazee, and Arnie Teasdale.

Down at Martin Pass, Wash., for the Northwestern Inter-collegiate tourney, the U.B.C. skiers were hard pressed by the Washington Huskie skiers, and both the No. 1 and No. 2 teams were forced into second place in the four way combined.

In this event, the No. 1 team was composed of Doug Fraser, John Frazee, Gordon Hall, Arnie Teasdale, Gerry Lockhart, and Gar Robinson. On the No. 2 team events, three new faces, Don Fernside, Gerry Reynolds and Harry Smith, supplemented the regulars, Gordon Martin, Jack Skinner and Don Anderson.

Feminine ski stars were also doing well last season with Jo Castillou, Bev Roberts, Molly Burt. Sara-Lee Tidball and Isabel McKinnon winning the B class inter-collegiate event against the U. of Washington.

Intramural

The Intramural program this year was handled by McMaster's gift to U.B.C., Ivor Wynn, a short, stocky fellow from Hamilton, Ontario. Wynn and his Intramural Council, comprising the representatives of all the intramural organizations, faculties, fraternities, etc., staged a very successful year.

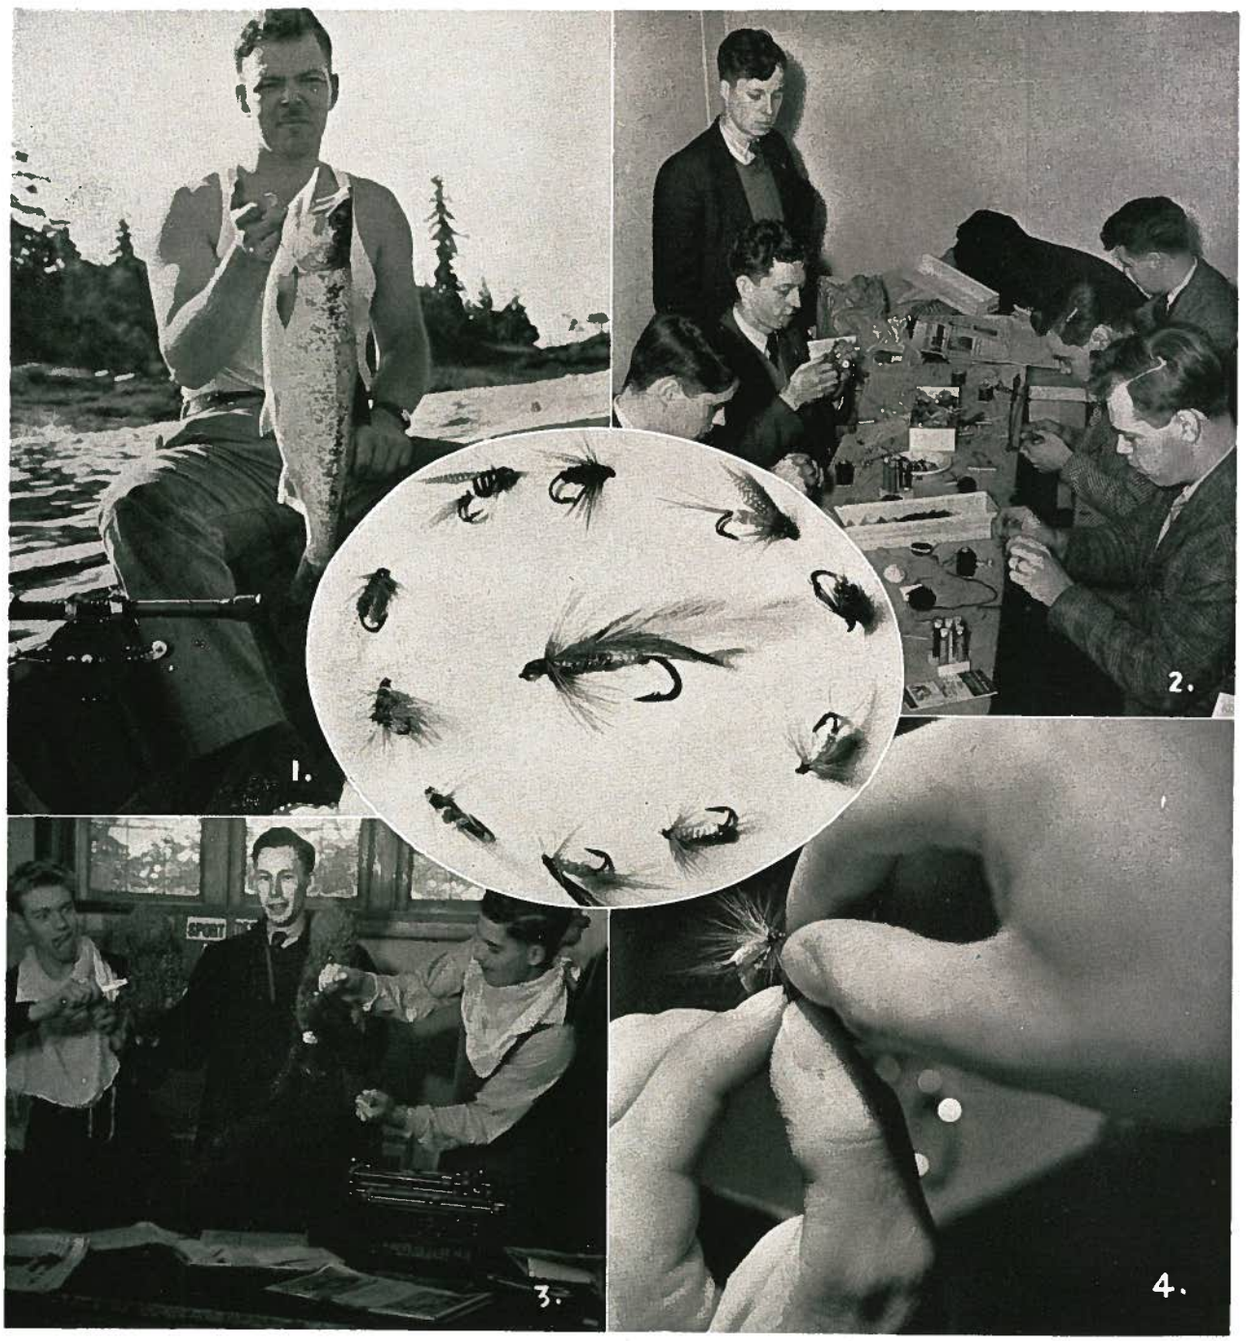

On March 1, the standings of the top ten were as follows: 1, Jokers, 627; 2, Beta Theta Pi, 596; 3, Phi Delta Theta, 556; 4, Phi Gamma Delta, 541; 5, Alpha Delta Phi, 523; 6, Kappa Sigma, 432; 7, Mu Phi, 418; 8, Commerce, 403; 9, Science, 396; 10, Delta Upsilon, 376.

Yet to be played when the Totem went to press were touch football, basketball, track and field, badminton, tennis, ping pong, skiing, boxing and wrestling, and softball.

1. A few Psi U's and Beta's after a touch football game. 2. No, it's not the stock exchange, but some of the participants at the annual swim gala. 3. Slim, Luke, and Dave at the Track Meet. 4. Cote at bat. 5. Jack Patterson, Chick Turner, Bob Kerr, and "Cut" Cunningham prep for the Meet. 6. Jokers Dunbar and Allan in their skit, "The Last Ride of Paul Revere. 7. Track stars Pat Minchin, Al Bain, Al Pierce, Ken McPherson, and Bob Piercy warm up. 8. Pete de Vooght running 4th in Intramural Cross Country Race, followed by Doug Knott and Gil Blair.

The Fish and Game Club became another of the new athletic organizations embellishing U.B.C.'s widening campus. Established in the late fall, the Club welcomes any activities in the realm of forest and stream.

Weekly meetings were garnished by moving pictures and by talks by representatives of city sporting organizations.

President of the club, and largely instrumental in its inauguration on the campus, is Ralph Shaw. Assisting him on the executive are: Bill Bell, vice-president; Buzz Francis, treasurer; Glyn Edwards, secretary; Ernie Hannan, fish; Cy Crawford, big game; Bill Cook, skeet; Bob Harris, birds; Dave Rogers, .22 rifle; Clem Bulger, fly tying; Clarence Ostrum, publicity.

Turning now from the major activities of the campus we will present to you the more minor organizations which serve to round out the undergraduate life of the students of 1947.

Although attracting less publicity during the year, such features as Greek letter societies, minor clubs, and student residences, presented in this section of the Totem, will long be remembered in the campus lives of the students.

Friendships made in fraternities often endure the years to become constant reminders of happy college days. The same will apply to student residences.

In minor clubs, students meet to discuss and to practice the various chosen fields which will later become their careers.

Such minor organizations have always been an integral part of the history of the school and shall always continue to be.

Pan-Hellenic Council.

The Pan-Hellenic Council has spent a busy year in the furthering of their aims and in providing a maximum of inter-sorority activities.

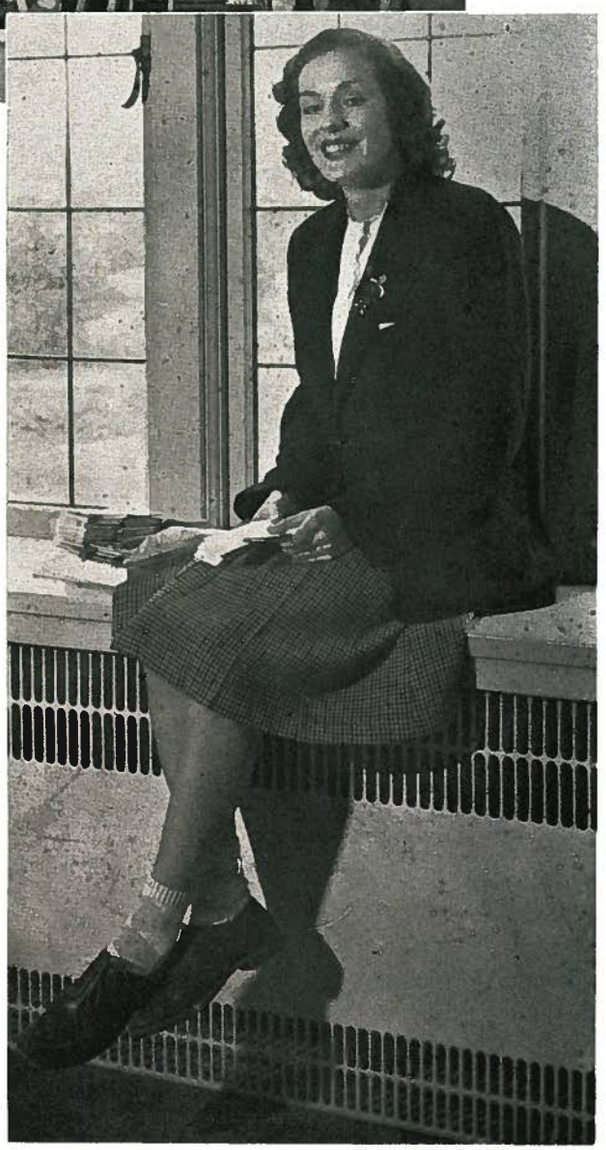

Under the capable guidance of Roma McDonald, the new system of rushing was inaugurated and the clash with opening of classes successfully avoided.

Under the new system of rushing used last fall, women are chosen in about half the time which the selection formerly occupied, with the difference that actual rushing begins earlier.

Diane Reid, vice-president; Nora McGarry, secretary; Peggy Lipson, treasurer; and Mary Chambers, as activities chairman, worked to promote the bowling tournament and the bridge competition, as well as to organize the Red Cross work for the year.

Casey King, as co-chairman with Hank Sweatman of the IFC, worked to produce a highly successful two nights at the Mardi Gras held in the Commodore.

This spring, as in former years, the Annual Workshop discussion group was held, with the executive giving some aspects of work done during the year in the organization.

Inter-Fraternity Council Active

Inter Fraternity Council.

Doug Yates, I.F.C. President.

This year's Inter-Fraternity Council activities have been mainly centred on the revival of many of the pre-war period functions.

Early in October, Doug Yates, president, and Jack Cunningham, vice-president, went to Seattle for the Western Regional Inter-Fraternity Conference, which included almost the entire West Coast.

The traditional Smoker was replaced this year by an Inter-Fraternity Banquet at which Alumnus were given an opportunity to see the expanding membership. Two hundred and sixty men were added to the lists, and a new organization formed, Tau Omega.

Mardi Gras activity this year was in the hands of Hank Sweatman, secretary of IFC, in co-operation with the executive of the Pan-Hellenic Society. An Oriental motif was emphasized, and the high attendance to this affair enabled the committee to donate a large sum to Shaughnessy Military Hospital.

Faculty representative for this year was Dr. L. E. Ranta.

Scholarship prizes were awarded at the annual Song-Fest which was held in the late spring.

Tau Omega

Tau Omega, a new local fraternity, was officially recognized on the U.B.C. campus during the 1946-47 session. The present membership of over 25 intends to follow a policy of sound expansion and hopes for international affiliation next year.

The Phrateres' Over-all Executive.

Phrateres, Friends To All

Audrey Jutte, President.

To the harassed Freshette, the word Phrateres means friendship and FUN. The club motto—"Famous For Friendliness"—was carried on this year to the fullest possible extent.

This year the club, larger than ever, spent an active year, giving support to any campus organization or drive that needed help.

Twelve sub-chapters ushered a large new membership into their ranks following the pledge term last fall. The ceremony for each chapter took place at the home of some member with Phrateres executive and sponsors as guests.

On February 24, the Candlelight Formal was held and new members initiated into the organization as active members. Beta sub-chapter was represented from Seattle, and the pledge pins of many were exchanged for the symbolic pin of active Phrateres.

This year's executive and council was comprised of Dean D. Mawdsley, Honorary President; Dr. J. Hallamore, Honorary Vice-President; Audrey Jutte, President; Ann Lowes, First Vice-President; Mary Clarke, Second Vice-President; Jean MacKinnon, Recording Secretary; Marnie McLellan, Corresponding Secretary; Flora Norris, Treasurer; Helen Burd, Publicity; Nonie McGregor, Sub-Chapter Chairman; Evelyn Walling, Social Service; Betty Scott, Membership and Initiation; Marg Gamey, Historian; Pat Mayne, Advisor.

Activities

Jokers Operate Silently

Jokers Give Strong Support to the Gym Drive.

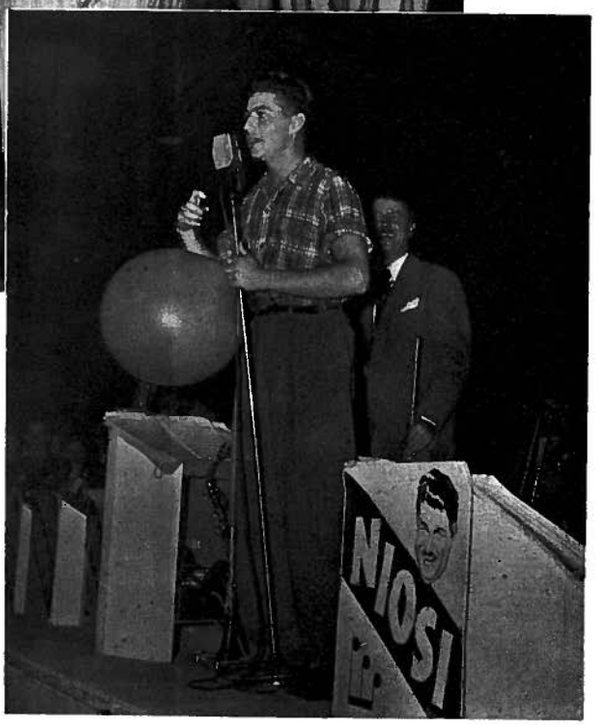

Contrary to public opinion, the Jokers Club has taken a very active interest in campus activities this past year. In order to co-operate fully in War Memorial Gym fund drives, the members of the club had to work silently so as not to bring adverse publicity to University students.

Joker members proved they could work silently and still accomplish as much as, if not more than, that which they did in their first highly-publicized year.

Following the more mature trend exhibited on the campus, the Jokers avoided crazy stunts and antics which might unfavourably influence down-town citizens.

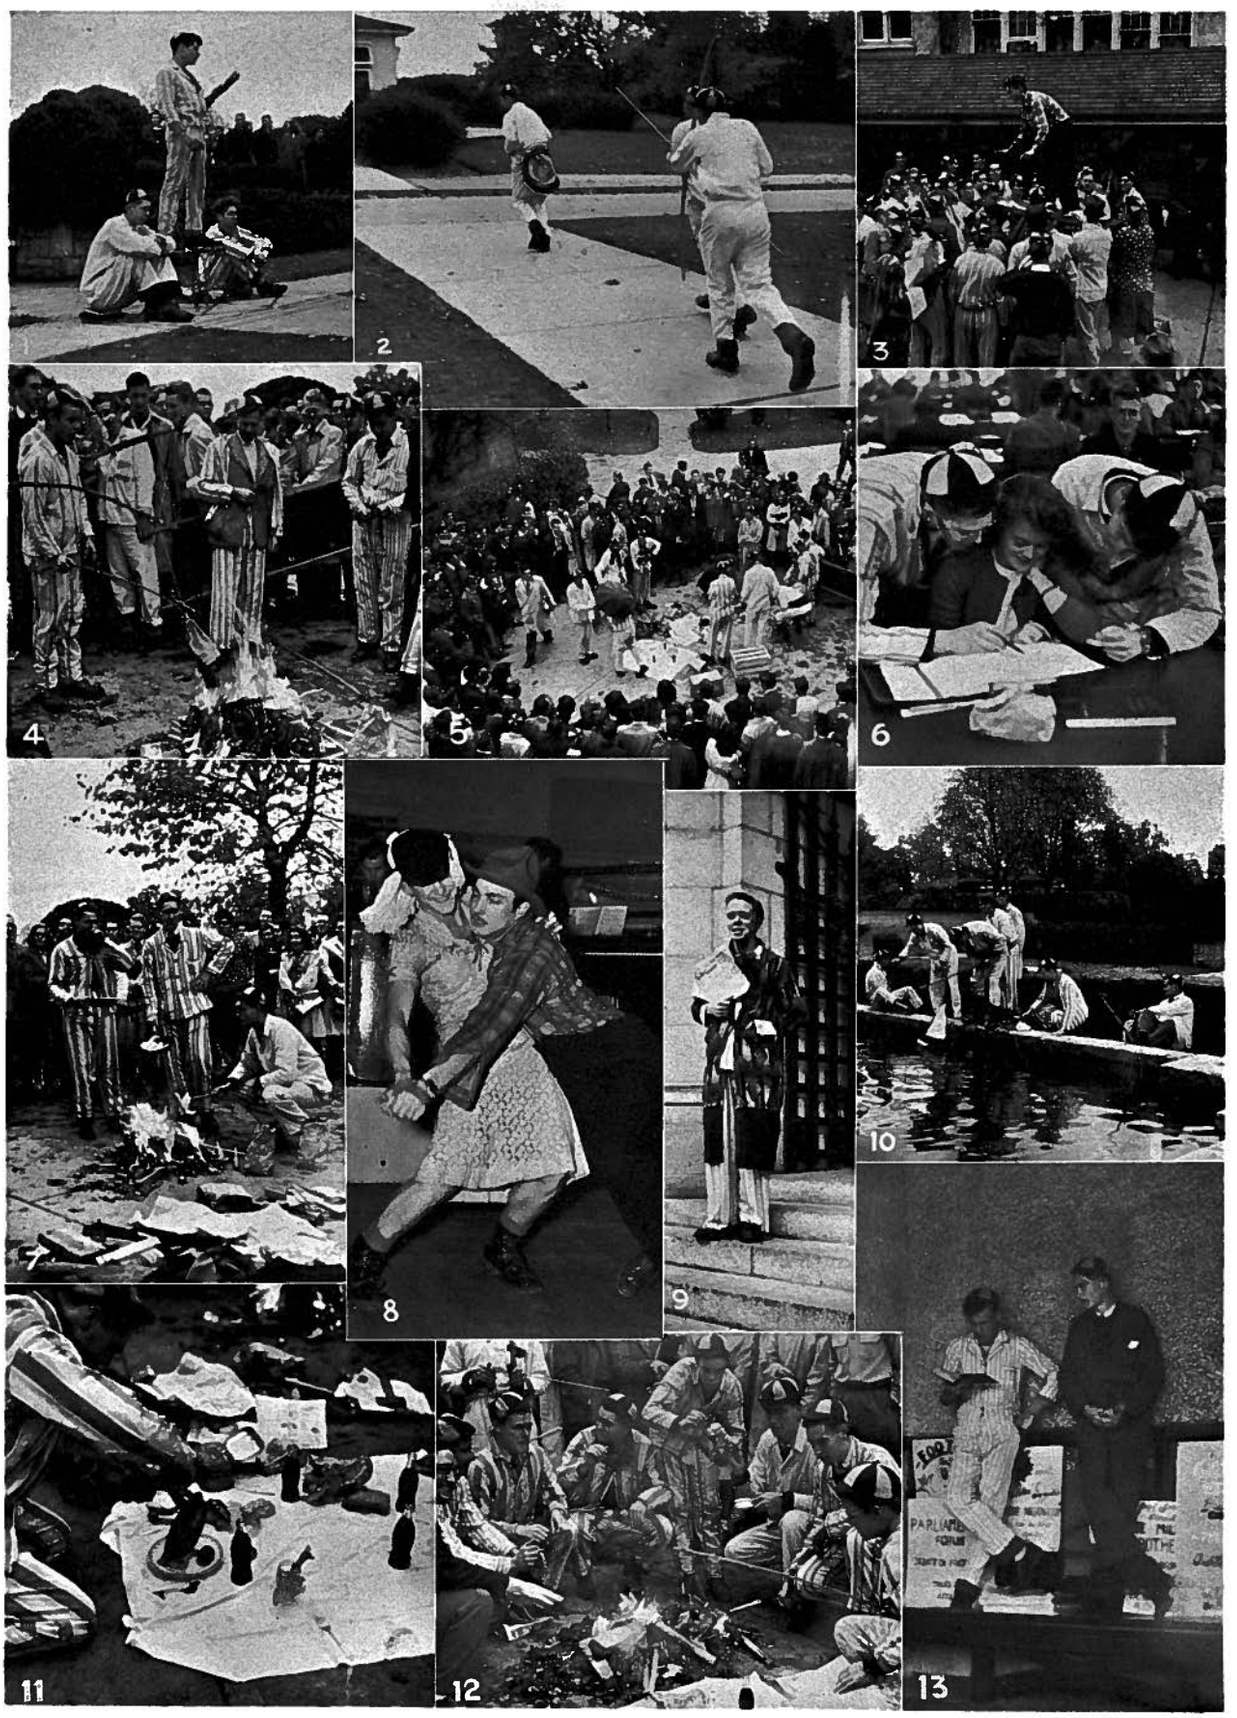

The Jokers Club also presented a large car parade down to Portland, Oregon, in support of our football team who ventured down to engage the Portland team in a strenuous game of football.

In addition, the Jokers boosted the T.B. X-ray drive by demonstrating the efficacy of modern X-ray techniques in comparison with old and more torturous methods.

During the fall term, the Jokers staged a free dance at Tenth and Sasamat. The dance was presented not only to raise varsity spirit but also to advertise the Gym drive. Later in the year the club held a spectacular initiation day, when Joker initiates parade the campus in pyjamas and dressing gowns. Throughout the day, new Jokers could be found toasting hot dogs and fishing in the pond in front of the Library.

Personnel included: Saxes: Bob Harlow, Cecil Lewid, George Kyle, Bob Reeves, and Ron MacCaully. Trumpets: Ron Cockroft, Hal Tenant, and Warren Marshal. Trombones: Bob Hetherington and Roy MacDonald. Rhythm: Al MacMillan at the piano, Don Cunliffe on bass, Don Baird on the drums, and Gordy Bell and his guitar.

Formed to promote the understanding of jazz, and the appreciation of that type of music, the Jazz Society has had a widely varied program during the last year. In addition to their weekly meetings, which were held in the Stage Room of Brock Hall, this Society gave a number of shows. Two of these productions were in aid of the War Memorial Gym fund.

The Jazz Society featured Norman Granz and many of the top musicians of the jazz at the Philharmonic show held in Brock Hall Main Lounge during the fall term. This show was sponsored in aid of the Gym drive. Also in support of this drive was the pepmeet featuring the famous Mills Brothers. The Jazz Society brought the brothers out to the campus one noon hour.

Jazz Society selections were played weekly on CKWX during the year. The Society also sponsored programs over CKMO and the University Society's network.

The Society, during the year, gave its members the opportunity of obtaining records through its record loan service.

The Jazz Society's weekly meetings consisted of the playing of recordings of all types of jazz in order to make the members more familiar with this type of music.

Programs were given in a "present to past" order, starting with the music of contemporary musicians and working back to the compositions of those of earlier times.

Jazz music had its origin in the folk music of the United States, with the bringing of negro spiritual over from Africa. These songs were blended into the music already existing in America to develop what is now called "jazz."

Instrumental jazz began early in the 20th Century. Instrumentation was originally founded on the blues mood and developed through its various schools from there. Among these new schools of jazz are the New Orleans school, the Kansas City school, and the Chicago school. Modern schools are very definitely coming into existence. New York trends are characteristically different from those of Vancouver.

The executive this year consisted of John Crofton, president; John Wormsbecker, vice-president; Ross Stroud, secretary; Wilma Moffat, program director; Phil Ashton, publicity manager; Sylvia Crofton, librarian; and Art Pearl, treasurer.

Architecture Club

Harold Charlesworth, Stewart Wilson, Rex Raymer, Frank Bankes, Walter Scott.

Formed this year around the nucleus provided by last year's Pre-Architecture Club, the Architecture Club's primary objective is to gather together students of the new Department of Architecture and to correspond with their fellows at other universities. Another important purpose is to stimulate at U.B.C., and throughout the province, interest in town planning.

Through the medium of films, lectures and exhibits, the Club presented contemporary community planning ideas in the hope that, given evidence of what the people can have, they will actively support planning in their own towns.

Membership was open to all Architecture and Pre-Architecture students, and the invitation was extended to everyone interested to attend club events and functions.

This year's executive consisted of Rex Raymer, president; Harold Charlesworth, vice-president; F. L. Bankes, secretary; Stewart Wilson, treasurer.

El Circulo Latino Americano

Jim McDonald, Mr. A. Mattos, Ron Webster, Carlos Castro.

El Circulo Latino Americano or Latin American Club, was formed to give students interested in our South American neighbours a better understanding of their lives and customs. Guided by their capable president who has spent many years both in Chile and Bolivia, the members held monthly meetings. At these meetings, which were held in the evenings at the home of one of the members, the club encouraged its members to develop a proficiency in Spanish. This aim was furthered by means of Spanish films and group discussions.

A weekly conversational meeting was also started this year with very successful results, as these meetings enabled club members to practice speaking in Spanish and also furthered the club's purpose of fostering interest in Latin American countries.

The executive consisted of: Ron Webster, president; Jim McDonald, vice-president; Carlos Castro, secretary; and Pamela Butcher, treasurer.

Psychology Club

The purpose of the Psychology Club is to give the members a clearer understanding of the growing field of psychology through addresses given by outstanding psychologists and psychiatrists. The experts speaking to the club during the year included Dr. Hutton, Dr. Gundy, Prof. Belyea, Prof. Black and Mr. Fleury.

The club also hoped to promote research into some specialized fields of psychology by having graduates and fourth year honors students give papers, which were then followed by open discussion and criticism.

Of additional assistance to the students were the field trips taken to such institutions as the mental hospital at Essondale. These excursions provided interesting and practical studies in the application of psychology.

The executive was: Tom Mallinson, president; Jim McGregor, vice-president; and Evelyn Anderson, Ruth Martin and Gwen Roberts, members.

Physics Society

Bob Codrington, Bill Paulin, Bert Brockhouse.

The Physics Society of the University of B.C. is a club devoted to the presentation of scientific papers. At the fortnightly meetings, faculty members and students presented papers pertaining to some problem of interest to physicists.

Membership in the club consisted of the faculty of the Department of Physics, graduate students in the Department, and fourth year honor students. Membership in the society was compulsory for all these fourth year honor students. Each student was expected to present a paper during his second term. The papers formed a basis for later discussion.

The executive for the 1946-47 session was made up of Bob Codrington, president; Bill Paulin, vice-president; and Bert Brockhouse, secretary-treasurer. These members, in spite of the many great difficulties occasioned by the extreme and rapid growth of the university, filled their positions capably.

American Institute of Chemical Engineers

Margaret Stokkeland, Bert Shore, Bruce Levelton, Mike Allen.

The object of the U.B.C. chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers is to provide interest on the campus in Chemical Engineering, and to this end all third and fourth year students of chemical engineering are chapter members.

During the year the members presented technical papers to the chapter at the weekly meetings. In addition, monthly meetings were held, when a prominent graduate Chemical Engineer spoke on his particular field. Numerous field trips to local chemical plants were sponsored by the Institute.

The social side was not neglected. The chapter sponsored a dance held during the fall term, and another function after the spring exams. In addition, fourth year students were guests of Dr. E. E. Seyer at the annual "smoker."

Michael Allen was this year's president, with Bert Shore as vice-president. John Simpson, Bruce Levelton and Margaret Stokkeland were members of the executive, and Dr. Seyer was counsellor.

G. M. Dawson Club

A. McGinn, John Wheeler, Don Sutton.

The G. M. Dawson Club of U.B.C. includes students in Geological, Mining and Metallurgical Engineering, and Arts students majoring in Geology. The Club is a students' branch of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, and attends its Western Annual meeting.

Weekly meetings were held throughout the year, at which members presented papers. The reports on subjects dealing with engineering problems contributed to the furthering of interest in geological, mining and metallurgical engineering. At monthly evening gatherings, talks were given by outside speakers and faculty members. Following these talks, discussions were held, and then members participated in social gatherings.

Executive of the year consisted of Mr. H. M. Wright, honorary president; John Wheeler, president; Andre Beguin, vice-president; Alex McGinn, secretary-treasurer; Ken Warner, third year representative.

Mathematics Club

Gordon Latta, Lorraine Ourom, Dick Gritten.

The Mathematics Club is open to all students who are interested in mathematics, although most of the members are in third and fourth years. In the previous years of the club's existence, it has had a membership of about 25 students, but this year membership has reached the 50 mark. Formerly, meetings were held at the homes of the individual members, but increased membership this year forced the club members to hold their meetings in Brock Hall. Meetings were held every other week, the topic being chosen by the speaker.

Conforming to precedent, the speakers were chosen from the faculty for the first term, and from the club members for the second term. Prizes of books were awarded to those students giving the best addresses of the year.

Executive was: Gordon Latta, president; Dean Buchanan, honorary president; Richard Gritten, vice-president; and Lorraine Ourom, secretary-treasurer. Faculty members were honorary members.

Gliding and Soaring Club

Frank Woodward, Betty Booth, Chuck Webb.

A newcomer on the campus, the Thunderbird Gliding and Soaring Club was formed last year to further the interest of students in the building and flying of gliders. All members, including veteran pilots with thousands of hours in the air, and raw beginners, take part in this interesting sport. They build and fly the gliders themselves.

In order to keep expenses down to a minimum, most of the work is done by the members themselves. They must maintain an active interest in club activities to keep their flying privileges.

Membership this year had to be limited to fifty students to permit each member to share in the regular week-end flying trips to Lulu Island.

Executive for this year consisted of: President, Frank Woodward; secretary, Betty Booth; treasurer, Chuck Webb. These students had the task of organizing the various club activities.

American Institute of Electrical Engineers

Bob Lister, John Hannan, Chris McGregor, Bob Dundas.

The object of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers Student Branch is to enable the students to gain experience in the presentation of technical papers and to introduce to them some of the subjects not included in the curriculum. To further this end, the group featured a number of informal talks by members themselves and arranged addresses by notable guest speakers.

Among the field trips made this year were a trip to the B.C. Electric repair shops, one to the Vogue theatre to study its equipment, and a week-end trip to the pulp mill at Powell River.

Guest speakers this year have included Mr. W. Lind, who spoke on germicidal lighting, and M. T. Ingledow, chief engineer of the B.C. Electric, who dealt with the type of work an engineer may expect on graduation.

This year's executive consisted of: Prof. W. Coulthard, faculty counsellor; J. Hannan, president; and Bob Lister, secretary-treasurer.

Pharmaceutical Society

Ches Milles, Leonore Smith, Roy Mank.

The Pharmaceutical Society is open to students in the Pharmacy Department and to those first year students planning to enter the department in their second year. Membership in this past year reached the 68 mark.

Meetings were held once every two weeks. At these gatherings, guest speakers or members of the faculty spoke on a phase of pharmaceutical practice. These talks supplemented lectures and gave the students some idea of what the pharmaceutical field would offer them after graduation. All the club's activities, however, were not consisted of the meetings. The members held a dance and a banquet during the year, one in each term.

The Pharmaceutical Society's executive for the year included Prof. Wood, honorary president; Roy Mank, president; Leonore Smith, secretary; Allan McArthur, treasurer; Ches Milles, vice-president; and Catherine Brown, publicity manager. Mrs. P. Brewer was an honorary member.

Chess Club

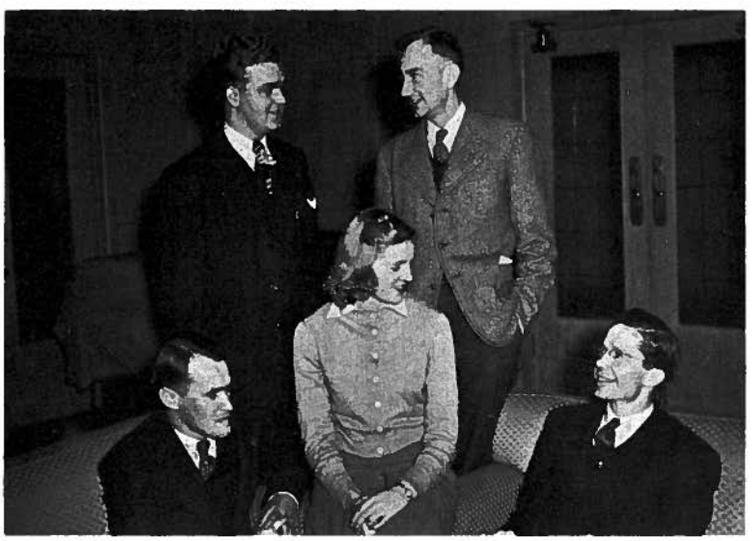

Frank Phillips, Gordon Sanborn, John Lahti, Andy Malysheff.

Recognizing that the university, as a major centre of learning, should also be one of the main centres of chess in the province, U.B.C.'s Chess Club increased its membership and planned new and interesting activities to promote the popularity of chess among the students.

These activities included the organization of a mass chess meet of all lower mainland players, radio matches with other universities, a continual tournament among club members, instruction for the newcomers, and lectures by local chess experts.

One of the main chess highlights for the past two years has been the tournaments between State of Washington players and U.B.C. Another event of ranking importance was the visit of George Koltanowski to the campus. The blindfold champion gave lectures on chess and engaged in exhibition games.

This year's executive includes Frank Phillips, president; Andrew Malysheff, vice-president; John Lahti, secretary-treasurer; and Gordon Sanborn.

B.C. Teacher's Federation

H. MacKirdy, Fred Shirley, Jean Pridham, Hugh Herbison, Walt Thumm.

The University Branch of the B.C. Teachers' Federation was formed in 1938 to interest students of the education class in the B.C. Teachers' Federation. For the past three years the organization experienced a slump and was not active until its revival this year.

During the year the students of the education class held bi-monthly meetings at noon hours. To these sessions they invited guest speakers to talk on subjects of interest to future teachers. These talks were then subjected to discussion. A purely social evening was held during the spring term.

The B.C. Teachers' Federation is composed of two types of members, active members or those who have had previous teaching experience, and many associate student teachers.

Executive for the 1946-47 session was: Harvey McKirby, president; Hugh Herbison, vice-president: Jean Pridham, secretary-treasurer; Walter Trumm, and Fred Shirley, executive members.

Forestry Club

Alan Webster, Trevor Charles, Bruce Low, Sam Parnum, Dave Ritchie.

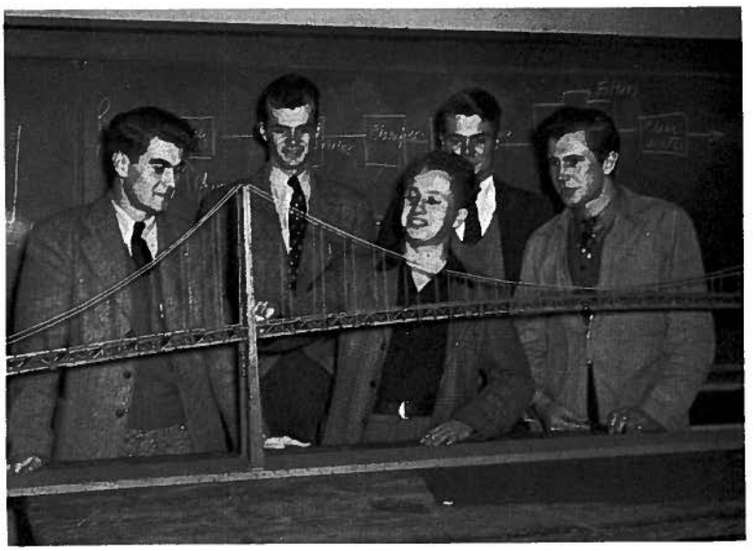

The Forestry Club was organized to promote interest in forestry among students by establishing a closer contact between students and operators in the lumber industry.

During the year, bi-monthly lectures were held at which prominent members of the forestry industry spoke to the students. In the spring the club published the annual "Forestry Club News Letter," outlining the year's activities of the club and containing addresses of members, and excerpts from letters written by recent graduates in forestry.

During the first term the club sponsored the "Foresters' Fall Frolic" in the Stanley Park Pavilion. A banquet for all club members and guest speakers of the year was the main social function of the second term.

Members of this year's executive were: Alan Webster, Sam Parnum, Jack Roff, Bruce Low, Trevor Charles and Dave Ritchie. Dr. R. G. Griffith was honorary president of the club.

Civil Engineering Club

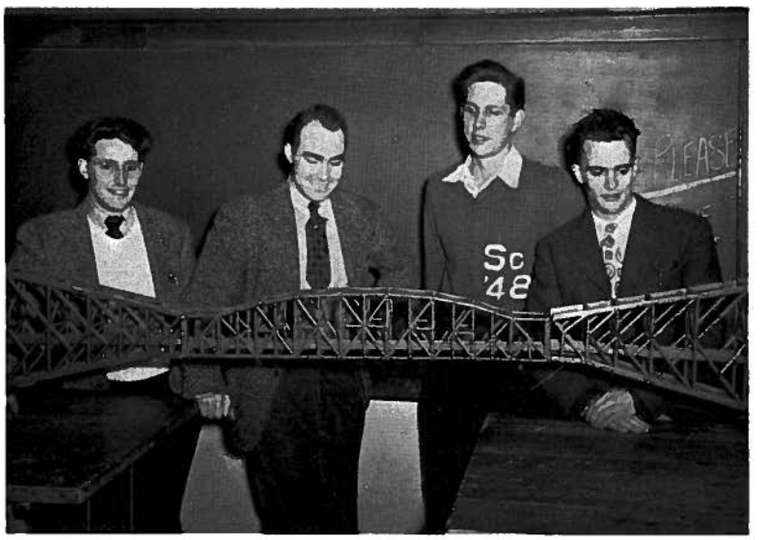

Bill Robinson, Ted Greenaway, Roy Tinney, Peter Jones, Eric Jones.

The Civil Engineering Club was formed at the beginning of the 1946-47 term by third and fourth year Civil Engineering students. Its main purpose was to arouse interest in civil engineering among students on the campus and to further professional knowledge of club members through field trips and talks given by practising engineers.

This year the club planned to take a long trip outside Vancouver and several short field trips in the city. The meetings were held once every two weeks, at which members heard addresses given by practising engineers, and discussed topics concerning engineering problems.

In addition, the club sponsored several social events such as dances and smokers. Athletics were also included in the club's activities.

The executive of the club for 1946-47 included: Mr. Heslop, honorary president; Ted Greenaway, president; Peter Jones, vice-president; and Roy Tinney, secretary-treasurer.

Engineering Institute of Canada

Bill Bateman, Al Fletcher, Ray Pillman, Phil Herring.

The Engineering Institute of Canada, student branch, is composed of students from all branches of engineering. Its object is to foster interest in the activities of the E.I.C. at the University and to enable the students to become acquainted with the members of the senior branch of the Institute.

During the year, the club sponsored addresses by speakers on various engineering topics. Club members were invited to attend the regular meetings of the Vancouver chapter of the E.I.C. In the spring the Vancouver chapter held a student night at which the student members were invited to present papers on engineering subjects. These papers usually dealt with engineering problems and formed the basis for discussion.

The executive for this year consisted of: Phil Herring, president; Bill Bateman, secretary-treasurer; Al Fletcher, vice-president; and Ray Pillman, recording secretary. Prof. A. Peebles was the Institute's honorary president.

Le Cercle Francaise

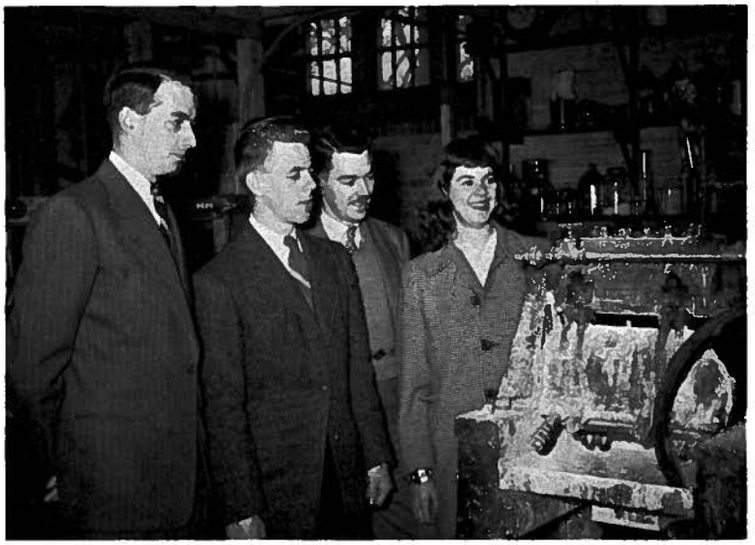

Iva Lisicka, Aline Ralston, Richard Cooper.

The aims of Le Cercle Francais are to further knowledge of the French language and culture and to encourage students to take an interest in the every-day life of the French people by learning to speak the French language conversationally.

At the monthly meetings held at the homes of members, guest speakers gave addresses on aspects of French life and culture. Topics covered such subjects as Art, Music, History, Poetry, and work done at the French summer camps at Shawnigan Lake, Trois Pistoles and Banff. French music, games, films and songs were introduced informally, all of which enabled students to improve their French. In addition, conversation groups were held once a week for those who were interested, and there was also a music group for those musically inclined.

The executive consisted of: Dr. D. Aish Metford, honorary president; Aline Roulston, president; Richard Cooper, vice-president; and Iva Lisicka, secretary-treasurer.

American Institute of Chemical Engineers

Margaret Stokkeland, Bert Shore, Bruce Levelton, Mike Allen.

The local chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers purports, through its weekly meetings, to give its members experience in presenting and discussing technical papers and to foster interest in the development of the profession of chemical engineering.

Comprised of all students in fourth and fifth year chemical engineering as well as chemistry students in arts, the group offers prizes for outstanding papers presented at the meetings.

Social events, instructional films and field trips serve to round out the year's activities.

Because the Institute awards charters only to universities with high standards, the members are justly proud of their organization. It is the only student branch in Canada.

The executive for the year 1946-47 was comprised of: President, Neil Henderson; vice-president, Frank Black; and recording secretary-treasurer, Dave Downs. The honorary president was Dr. J. Allan Harris.

Letters Club

Grahame Thomson, Neil Wilson.

The Letters Club, the oldest discussion group on the campus, formed to encourage the study of literature as a joy, extended its scope this year to include other allied arts. Papers presented during this last season covered a wide field and included the following topics: "The Two Great Mysteries of Wilkie Collins" by Sherwood Anderson; G. K. Chesterton's "Modern Art"; A. E. (G. W. Russel) Hendrik Willem Van Loon; A. E. Housman, "The Hollow Men" and "The Two Solitudes"; "Canadian Poetry and Words on Words"; and the "Critics Criticized".

According to club tradition, papers were given at each of the bi-monthly meetings by fourth year members. After the reading of the subject matter, the topic was open for general discussion. Highlighting the year was the Original Contribution Night. Executive: Dr. Edmund Morrison, honorary president; Neil Wilson, president; and Grahame Thomson, secretary-treasurer.

Varsity Christian Fellowship

The Varsity Christian Fellowship having as its motto "To know Christ and to make Him known" has sought to witness the reality and power of Jesus Christ in every sphere of life. In keeping with this purpose, the group presented a well-balanced program including meetings, discussions, firesides and conferences. Through the year, meetings were held at which guests were invited to speak about topics pertaining to the group's motto. Besides Bible discussions, devotionals, and other serious events, the members of the fellowship participated in intra-mural sports.

However, constant emphasis was placed on the personal relationship of God through Christ as a Saviour.

Executive members were Bob Hampton, president; Jean Oben, vice-president; Lenore Matheson, secretary; Bob Cox, treasurer; Joy Curran, membership secretary; Bill Taylor, publicity manager; Jim Westman, missionary secretary; John Hindle, junior member; and Les Babb, engineers' representative.

Chinese Club

Mun Lum, Vivian Wong, Wah Wong, Gertrude Lee, Lily Chung, Gilbert Thom.

The Chinese Students' Club was organized to promote friendly relations among the Chinese students. All Chinese students on entering U.B.C. automatically become members.

This year's program consisted of social gatherings, discussion meetings and projects for service and charity. A Frosh reception to initiate Freshmen was held at the beginning of the year. During the winter months, very successful nights of bowling, a campaign to sell Christmas cards for China Student Relief, and a matric social to acquaint the high school students with the university and its life, occupied the time and efforts of the members. A final grad banquet which alumni, under-graduates, ex-students attended, completed the term.

Members of the executive were: Wah Wong, president; Gertrude Lee, vice-president; Lillian Chung, secretary; Mun Lum, treasurer; Vivian Wong, literary director; and Gilbert Thom, social convenor.

The Economics Society

Paul Sultan, Helen Foster, Bill McKay.

The Economics Society was organized for the purpose of discussing current economic problems of local or world-wide interest. This year, several members of the Faculty, as well as outside speakers, gave talks which formed the basis of the meetings' discussion.

Dr. R. M. Clark spoke at the first meeting on "The Municipal and Provincial Income Tax in Canada," and Prof. DuVall of the Sociology Department, and Prof. E. H. Soward of the History Department spoke to this group during the year. It was the usual practice to have a paper presented by some senior student on the subject of his thesis.

This year, to allow for greater participation with an expanded membership, the club utilized the panel procedure. Three students presented different aspects of the topic "The Economics of Overhead Costs."

The executive for 1946-47 was as follows: Honorary president, Prof. H. F. Angus; president, Paul Sultan; vice-president, Bill McKay; secretary-treasurer, Helen Foster.

The Historical Society

Don Holms, Ken Meredith, Don Oliver.

The Historical Society this year was composed of thirty honor students. The Club aimed not only to provide an interesting series of discussions, but also to stimulate the study of topics that would prove useful to history grads in the future.

This year the Society chose as its topic "The Study of Historical Writing." Interesting papers were presented by both members of the faculty and students. Each reading was followed by vigorous discussion and argument among club members. It was felt that this concentration upon one specific topic was of value to all students as it provided a very necessary background for all students interested in historical study.

Activities closed with a banquet at which members of the Historical Department were guests of the Society.

Executive for the past year consisted of: Don Oliver, president; Don Holms, vice-president; and Ken Meredith, secretary.

Newman Club

Fred Hoad, Vivian Verrall, Bernard Beesley.

The Newman Club is composed of Roman Catholic students interested in promoting fellowship among the Catholic students. The purpose of the club is to forward the development of Catholic culture, a deeper understanding of the Catholic faith, and the application of the faith to pertinent problems in world affairs.

This year the Newman Club had a membership of one hundred and fifty active members. The size of the club demanded centralization of all activities. This was achieved by forming a set of discussion groups small enough to hold bi-monthly meetings in private homes. General meetings were held once a month at Our Lady of Perpetual Help Hall after communion and communion breakfast.

Executive for the past year were Marguerite Byrnes, president; Jerry McGuigan, vice-president; Fred Hoad, treasurer; Bernard Beesley, corresponding secretary; and Vivian Varrall, recording secretary.

Christian Science Club

Doug Leiterman, Merle Davidson, Eric Hopkins, Norma Dillabough, John Barltrop, Ben Gibson, Bob Young.

The Christian Science Organization at U.B.C. was formed this year under the provisions of the Manual of "The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ," by Mary Baker Eddy. The organization is similar to others of its kind which are found at most major universities, both in Canada and the United States, and in countries abroad.

The U.B.C. Organization was formed so that every student might have some opportunity of learning more about Christian Science and also to benefit students of this faith on the campus. Activities of the organization this year have included bi-monthly religious meetings and an annual Christian Science Lecture. A number of social evenings were also held during the year.

Officers of the Organization elected for this year were: Robert M. Young, president; Douglas S. Leiterman, vice-president; Merle Davidson, secretary; John Barltrop, treasurer; Ben Gibson, and Norma Dillabough.

Women's Public Speaking Club

Doreen White, May Johnston, Hazel Greenwood.

Enthusiastic interest was shown in the Women's Public Speaking Club this year, with a membership tripled over that of last year. Members were kept busy with meetings held weekly in the Stage Room of Brock Hall. During the fall term, Mrs. Elsie Graham gave the class instruction in the methods and the technique of public speaking. A short speech was made by each member of the class and criticized by the class and instructor.

In the spring, discussions and debates were held, some being open to outsiders. Several guests also addressed the club, speaking about the relation of public speaking to various professions such as law, teaching, and radio-announcing. Public speaking as an aid to leaders of clubs and organizations was also emphasized.

Executive for the past year consisted of May Johnston, president; Doreen White, vice-president; and Hazel Greenwood, secretary. Mrs. Creighton was honorary president of the club.

Men's Public Speaking Club

Douglas Strong, John Archer, Frank Phillips.

Promotion of self-confidence and self-assurance through experience in public speaking and debating is the chief function of the Men's Public Speaking Club. It was felt by the members that the club had proven helpful and beneficial to them by forcing them to get up and speak before their fellow students and the instructor at the club meetings. Subjects ranged from "Public Ownership of Canadian Railroads" to the "Practicability of Women's Hats."

The experienced, constructive criticism offered by the club's mentor, Mr. T. J. Baynes, was invaluable in improving the platform manner and speech delivery of speakers. Many students, by entering such organizations as the Parliamentary Forum, have already fulfilled the club's aim that those who participate will leave U.B.C. fully qualified to express themselves before large meetings and assemblies in a creditable fashion.

Executive was as follows: Frank Phillipps, president; John Archer, vice-president; and Douglas Strong, secretary.

B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation

Bud Gurevitch, Ruth Becker, Audrey Goldberg, Marcia Steiman.

Jewish students on entering the University of British Columbia automatically become members of B'nai B'rith Hillel Foundation. The society's aims are educational and cultural. Throughout the year, general meetings were held every second week, where guests were invited to speak to the society on topics of interest pertaining to the various phases of Jewish education, problems affecting college students, and current events.

Plans to form informal discussion groups and groups consisting of those members particularly interested in Jewish music were conceived by the executive. In addition, sports and social events were held.

Executive members were Bud Gurevitch, president; Audrey Goldberg, vice-president; Len Hyman, treasurer; Ruth Becker, secretary; Marcia Steiman, educational chairman; Lil Archeck, social activities; Will Becker, sports; Kelly Cohen, publicity; and Molly Levison, circulation manager.

University Band

Gordon Baum, Harvey Anderson, Mr. Arthur Delamont, Wallace Robson.

Much of the pep and spirit at the University's athletic functions could be attributed to the University Band.

The band, which consisted of about forty musicians, has played at the football and basketball games throughout the year and has participated in downtown parades sponsored by U.B.C.

In past years, John Bayfield has been the very capable and enthusiastic leader of the band. The University Band of today is largely the result of his devoted labor.

It was regretted that this year Bayfield had found his course too heavy to carry on his former position, which was, however, in the hands of the able president, Gordon Baum, who was also president of the freshmen class.

The members of the band felt they were extremely fortunate in having such an excellent director as Mr. Arthur Delamont, who has been with the band for the last ten years.

Camps Are Cosy . . .

U.B.C., as well as providing university education for a student body three times her pre-war enrollment, has succeeded in housing comfortably more than 1,000 students. This has been accomplished by speedy conversion of army huts into living quarters. Fort and Acadia camp, within a short distance of the campus, accommodate the greater proportion of the students, while camps for married students on Little Mountain and at Lulu Island house 70 and 37 families respectively. Although a far cry from the ivy-covered stone structures usually associated with a university residence, a steam heated modern hut, students enthusiastically agree, "be it ever so humble" to the exterior view, makes a cosy home.

In consideration of the fact that the University, prior to the war, took no hand in the housing of students, this step is not a small one. Before the war, students were expected to make their own arrangements for board and lodging with outside householders or co-operative residences.

When such facilities proved inadequate, owing to the tremendous veteran influx, the university administration realized that unless accommodation was found or created for the surplus of some 2,000 persons, these people simply would not be able to attend the University. They realized at the same time that they were undertaking a project considered by most to be utterly impossible. There is today no record of any student having been turned away because he could not find a place to live. A magnificent tribute.

Moving spirit behind organization of the units is Dr. Shrum, in charge of temporary buildings. Placement of the huts has been carefully supervised so that the scenic beauty of the campus is not marred. Dr. Shrum sees in Fort and Acadia camp the first step toward establishment of residences on the campus. Both camps are models of co-operative community living.

Acadia, the larger of the two, has grown from the nucleus of a former provincial government forestry camp. It is situated just off university Boulevard, a 15-minute walk from the campus. Army huts at Acadia, and neighbouring Westbrook Crescent, house approximately 400 single men, 90 single women, and 117 families. Many staff members, including Dr. MacKenzie, live at Acadia, and Westbrook. A nursery school for 100 children under five has been established.

Students and staff mingle together in dinner line-ups, and many animated discussions are had, lingering over after-dinner cups of coffee. Students are from all parts of Canada, and many come from other countries. Centre for community activity is the large recreation hall. It is the scene of weekly dances, and Sunday it is used for Sunday school and an evening non-denominational church service conducted by the resident padre, the Reverend John Stewart.

Co-ops Carry On . . .

Acadia kitchen is under the administration of the Home Economics Department. "Lab work" in Acadia kitchens gives student dieticians an opportunity to gain practical experience.

Unique feature of Acadia are two trailer camps with approximately 45 trailers. The university provides trailer residents with water, electricity, and washing facilities.

Both Fort and Acadia have established self-government, and hold camp meetings where students may voice opinions or grievances. February 12, Acadia was constituted with a formal government. Prior to this, a student camp committee had been in charge. Bob Currie heads the Acadia camp executive, with Anne Galloway vice-president, and Betty Brown secretary-treasurer. Grant Dow and Tommy Harris are liaison officers for the camp proctor and university respectively. Dave Witchell, Jack Stone, and Bill Crowe are respective chairmen of entertainment, sports, and messing committees.

Acadia camp council, as well as executive members, consists of a representative from each hut, from each of the two trailer camps, and from student householders.

Since the camp is not constituted under the Alma Mater Society, much responsibility for the operation of the camp is in the hands of this governing body. All matters of discipline and rules governing behavior in the camp are handled entirely by the organization. The laws of camp procedure are not severe, and enforcement is left largely to the honor of the residents. The fact that the system actually works is alone a tribute to the communal spirit of settlement.

In a less sober vein, the Acadia Council has also been responsible for a full year of on-camp dances and other social functions. The nightly discussions of God, American beer, the afterlife, women, and methods of cooking chem labs were usually of a more impromptu nature.

Fort camp, nestling on a point overlooking Howe Sound, has one of the best views in the area. Arrangements at Fort are similar to Acadia, but it is for men students only. The kitchen is under the administration of Mr. Frank Underhill. Three hundred and fifty men students live at Fort. A student-run non-profit canteen provides funds for camp improvement.

As is the case with Acadia camp, a student governing body has been set up at Fort camp. This group holds the responsibility of enforcing a degree of discipline among the resident students. Elected from the enrollment by popular vote, the council dictates laws of behavior for the settlement. Boasting a full social year, the council also convened a series of parties, dances, and stag affairs which became uniquely popular among the exam-tired males.

Competitive games of basketball, badminton and table tennis took place during the year between Fort and Acadia. Dr. Shrum hopes for further development of sports and debates between the two camps next year.

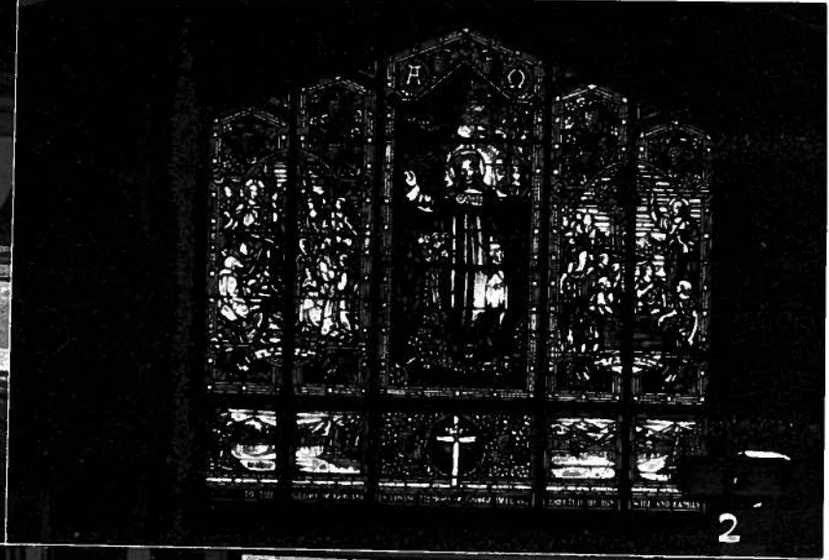

Although probably unknown to many students but warm in the hearts of the seventy-odd people who commute daily along Broadway and up Oak, U.B.C. also claims a third student residence. It is the Little Mountain family residence encampment. Here, in a number of hutments abandoned by the Canadian Army, dwell more than seventy married couples and their children. In most but not all cases it is the male members of the household that makes the daily pilgrimage to Point Grey while the wives stay home and vie with their neighbors in inventing new and different ways to make a four-room army hut liveable.

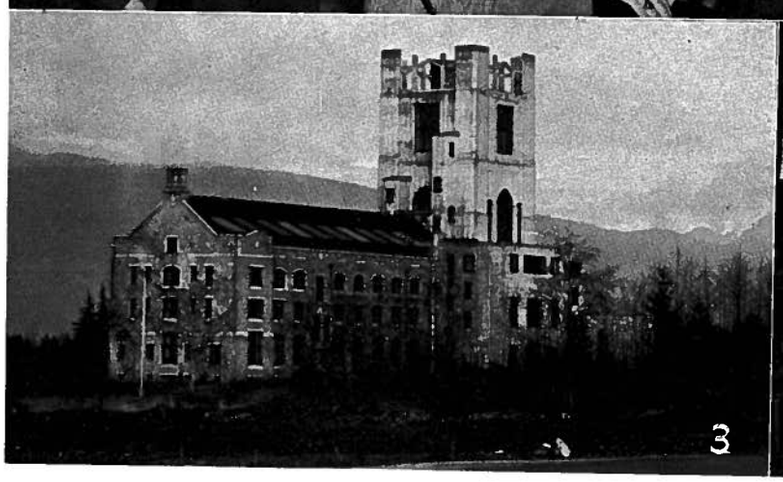

A similar establishment is located on Lulu Island, the sandy delta at the mouth of the Fraser. Here, students say, the chief difficulty is that of transportation because the camp is situated at about the centre of the Island and requires a ninety-minute trip by streetcar and tram which, for 8:30's, is "rough". An abandoned anti-aircraft gun emplacement, the group of drab huts now form cosy homes for almost forty married couples and their children.

Oldest student residences, the first to be organized on the U.B.C. campus, are the boarding houses operated by the Students' Co-operative Association. Financed entirely by the subscriptions of the student residents, who become members of the Association rather than simply pay rent, the organization operated five large rooming houses before the war. Now, because of high real estate prices and the difficulty of obtaining buildings in the Point Grey area, the Association owns only one men's house and rents a second for women.

Applications far outnumber the accommodation capacity available, and the Association hopes, some day, to own a number of their own buildings. Each of the two houses are supervised by house mothers who prepare the evening meal. Housekeeping, laundry, and the balance of the cooking is done by the students themselves.

Absorb Extra Students

Friendly relations exist between the men and women of the two houses. Each Thursday night several of the girls dine at the men's house, while a number of the men fill the vacant seats at the girls' table. These exchanges are rotated each week so that the students may become better acquainted. The social program is carried further by a series of dances and parties attended by the members of the two houses.

To further supplement the sorely pressed housing facilities on the campus, four of the Greek Letter Societies now operate Fraternity houses. Phi Delta Theta has had a house situated at the corner of Tenth Avenue and Wallace Crescent for a number of years, as has Phi Kappa Pi on Cedar Crescent. During the summer of 1946, Beta Theta Pi purchased a house on Twelfth Avenue near Granville Street. The local chapter of Zeta Psi also moved into a house on Sixth and Blanca in the fall of this year. These houses, while serving as meeting places and social function accommodation, also house a number of the members of the respective groups.

Union and Anglican theological colleges have taken in other students to ease the emergency housing situation.

Of these two affiliates of U.B.C., Union College is the larger, being of the Gothic style. Its stately spire is seen rising behind Brock Hall. Anglican College is the stuccoed Tudor building that nestles amid shrubbery behind Union College. Both schools offer courses leading to the degrees of B.D. and D.D. and work in close conjunction with the University.

One generation ago, U.B.C. was founded in the huts now nostalgically referred to as the "Fairview Shacks". This was in the unsettled era following the first Great War. Today, in the equally troubled era following the second Great War, the cycle has repeated, and U.B.C. again turns to huts in time of emergency. This time it was the emergency of student housing, doubtless the greatest single problem presented.

Now that the peak enrollment has passed and the University is beginning to settle back to a regular strength of an estimated 4,000, the administration can justly look back on a monumental task well done.

At some universities the undergraduate bodies represent simply the enrollment of students attending the school and proceeding to degree. At the University of British Columbia, however, the undergraduate body is actually an integral part of the school. As is so well exemplified in our history, it has always been the students of the time who have contributed to the wealth of tradition which has made British Columbia's only university what it is today.

It has been through the industry of student drives and campaigns that U.B.C. has gained the Stadium, Brock Memorial Hall, the old Gymnasium, and is soon to gain the new War Memorial Gymnasium and a Medical Faculty. It is with pride that we introduce you now to the new graduates of 1947 and to the current classes of undergraduates. May they continue to fulfill the heritage set for them.

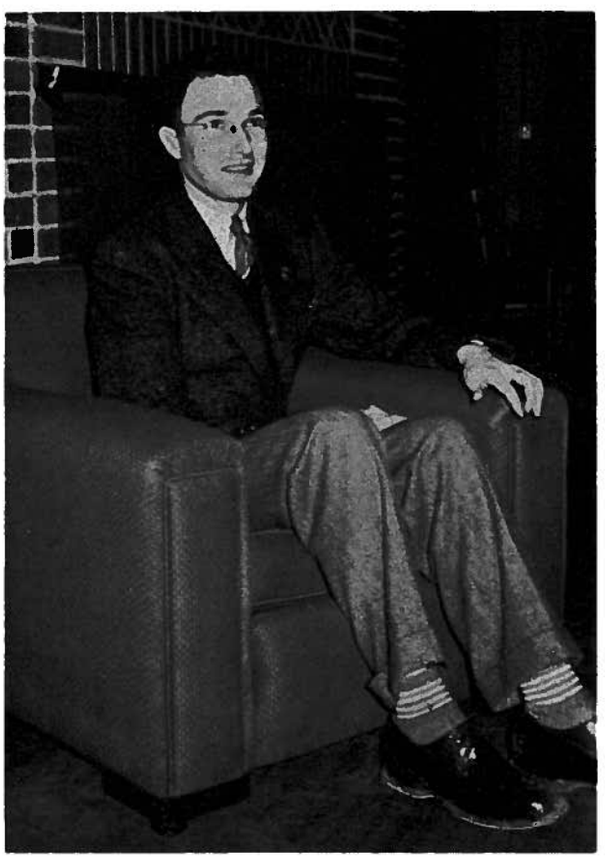

CLASSES

Ralph Huene, Heather Blundell, Robert Cail.

'47 Grads Gain B. A. Reward

Robert Cail, President.

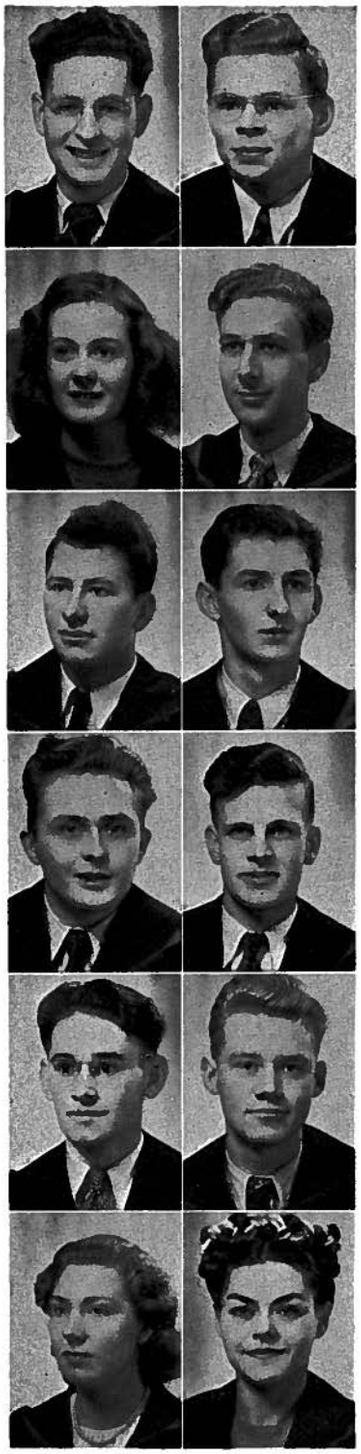

This year, as in every other faculty, the graduating class in Arts and Science is the largest the University has ever seen. Most of the responsibility of running the expanded post-war campus fell, as usual, to the graduating class, and the Arts '47 did not shirk its duty.

Typical of the hard-working senior was Joy Donegani, who acted as secretary of the Students' Council. Barbara Kelsberg headed all women's activities as president of the Women's Undergraduate Society, and Mary Clark served as fourth year representative. The position of secretary of the U.S.C. was filled by Heather Blundell.

On the Publications Board, Jack Ferry, editor-in-chief, managed to put out three papers a week with amazing dexterity, and placed the Ubyssey high in the ranks of college newspapers. The editing of the Totem fell to Jean MacFarlane, pubster of long standing, and Nancy MacDonald held the important position of News Manager.

Pat Fowler, a Pre-Med student, has probably done more than anyone else on the campus towards making a medical school at the University of British Columbia a reality in the near future.

The executive was elected at the close of the fall term and consisted of Bob Cail, president; Ralph Huene, vice-president; and Heather Blundell, secretary.

Juniors Support Activities

The Juniors of today—the graduates of tomorrow—the class of '48. This is the class whose arrival coincided with the announcement that the University was to have a new president, Dr. Norman MacKenzie.

Bob Harwood was Junior member on Student Council, and Pat MacIntosh was president of WAD. Phil Ashton was an associate editor on the Totem. Norm Klenman held the position of features editor of the Ubyssey and also acted as publicity chairman of the Gym campaign. Don Ferguson and Don Stansby filled the positions of Thursday editors, and Thursday respectively.

Beverley Wilson was this year's president of the Players Club. Ned Larsen appeared as Pierre Patelin in the fall play of that name.

In the sports section, Pat McGeer and Bob Haas starred as members of the Thunderbird basketball team.

Nora Clarke was vice-president of WUS.

Rosemary Hodgins, secretary of the Literary and Scientific Executive, was a McGoun Cup debater this year, and also edited the Tillicum.

The executive of Arts '48 this year included petite Eva Chernov, as president; Dorothy Moore as vice-president, and Teno Genis as secretary-treasurer.

Sophs Carry On Traditions

With all traces of green erased, the unsure, impressionable freshman of last year has emerged as the poised, sophisticated sophomore of this year.

This year's second year class, Arts '49, is a test case. It is the first homogeneous mixture of post-war high school graduates and older ex-service men. The complete ease with which these two apparently divergent groups have assimilated each other to take their places in, at best, an abnormal post-war campus proves them well worthy of the fine traditions of U.B.C.

In both studies and extra-curricular activities this class has proved conclusively that the veterans and younger students can unite and work together for the betterment of the university.

In all campus activities the soph class may boast leading members. Within the consecrated confines of the Publications Board, Pubsters Laura Haahti, Helen-Mary Gowans, Joan Grimmett, Val Sears and Phyliss Reid have held positions as associates on both the Totem and The Ubyssey. Soph Chick Turner has gloried as associate sports editor, and Tommy Hatcher has held the key position of photography director.

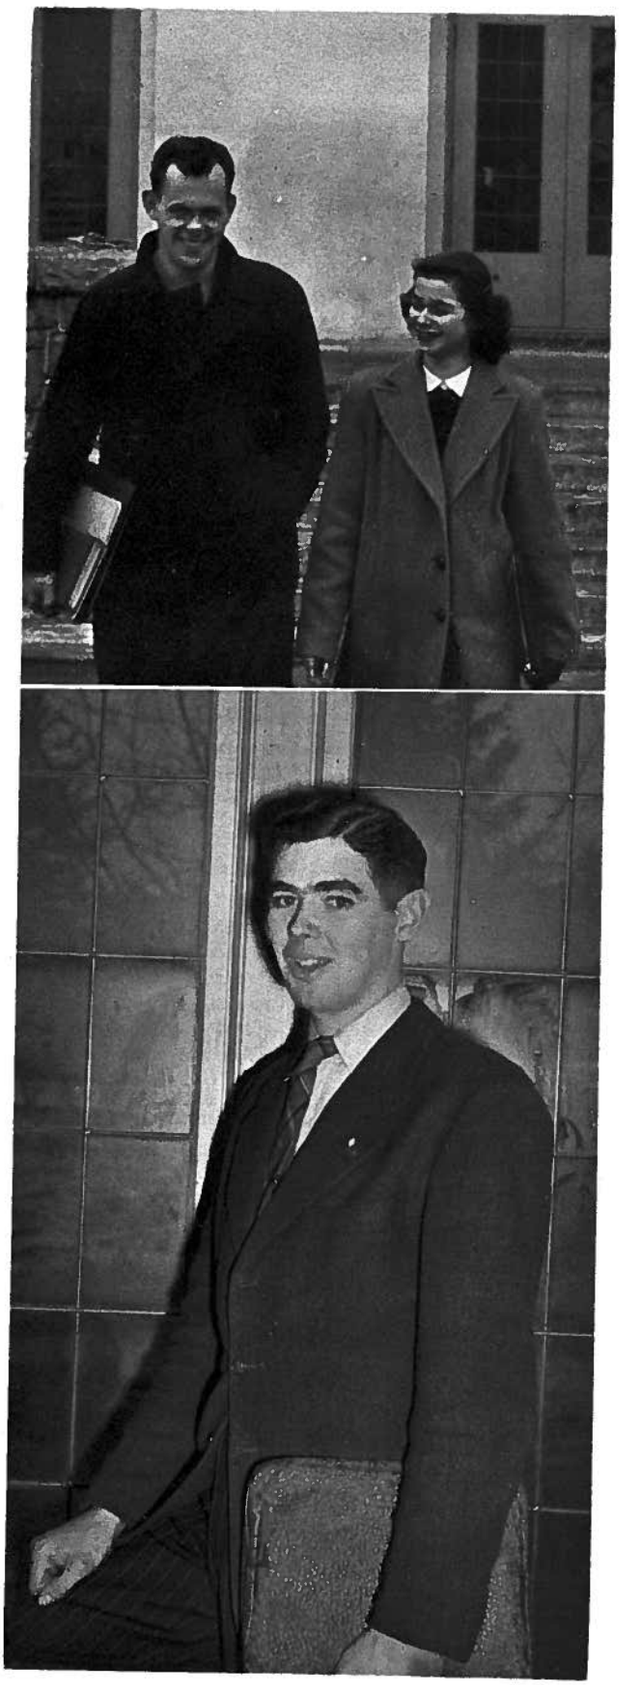

Nancy Davidson, Norma Bloom, Vivian Latsoudes, Birnie Reid and Dick Newman are a few of the sophs who represented their class in the Players' Club.

The Mussoc acknowledge soph talent by awarding lead roles to Betty Purvis and Doug Whitmore.

There are, in fact, few aspects of campus life left untouched by members of the soph class.

In administrative positions were WUS member Rosemary Byrn and soph council member Phil Evans.

The class executive was comprised of president John Kelman assisted by commerce man Bill Dunbar and Irma Koch.

Frosh Invade U.B.C. Campus

This year the largest Freshman class in the history of the University of British Columbia invaded the campus.

Initiation week found ex-service students and younger high-school grads enjoying a whirl of social activities and joining forces to fend off the assaults of upperclassmen.

This year's Frosh took their part in the social and extra-curricular life of the campus. As soon as clubs, sport and other activities got under way, it was evident that the freshmen were out to make a name for themselves.

In the sports world, swimmers Irene Strong and Freddie Oxenbury chalked up points for the Blue and Gold. Bob Piercy outpaced the favourites in the cross-country event, coming in for an easy win.

Willowy Marion Albert brought fame to the Freshman class when she was chosen as one of the two most beautiful co-eds on the campus, and carried off the laurels in the widely-publicized Western Inter-Collegiate Beauty Contest to be chosen Western Campus Queen.

On the Ubyssey, Charles Marshall, George Robertson, Jackie Hart and Carol Dent attained prominence on their respective issues.

Mamooks Gloria Newell, Sara Lee Tidball, Lois Whimster ably represented the Freshman Class as Majorettes, while Enid Sinclair, Maureen Auterson and Gordon Stephenson produced outstanding posters, for the campus service club.

Radio Society newcomers Esme MacDonald, George Flaggs and Blake Sratton gave invaluable service to the campus network.

Early in November, Freshman elections were held, and the class executive consisted of Gordon Baum, president; Mack Stone, vice-president; Margaret Stevens, secretary-treasurer; and Bob Piercy, athletic representative.

Commercemen Learn Business

The Commerce Undergraduate Society this year has achieved several goals under its president, Frank Phillips. Frank, with his quiet, executive touch, lifted the fledgling undergraduate society to a position of stature on the U.B.C. campus. The present enrollment of seven hundred and eight students has encouraged the hopes of Commerce of becoming a recognized faculty within a short time.

Besides being active in canvassing for the Gym Drive, Com students found time to organize and attend three Pep Meets, form a Commerce Alumnae Association, and take part in Intramural Sports.

Commerce is also distinguished by many prominent campus figures among its ranks.

Commerceman Don McRae was treasurer of the Students' Council, Bob Harwood served as Junior member, and Buzz Walker as social co-ordinator.

Blonde Tina Howard was chosen as one of the two most beautiful coeds on the campus as a candidate for the Western Campus Beauty Queen.

Bill McKay took over the reins of the Undergraduate Societies Committee when he was elected president in November.

Engineers Finish Long Grind

About to embark on their way to fame and fortune in the cruel world, the hardy souls of Science '47 have spent a good deal of time this year in the completion of the last steps of their long and difficult course. Studies, however, have not been the hardworking redshirts' only contribution to campus life.

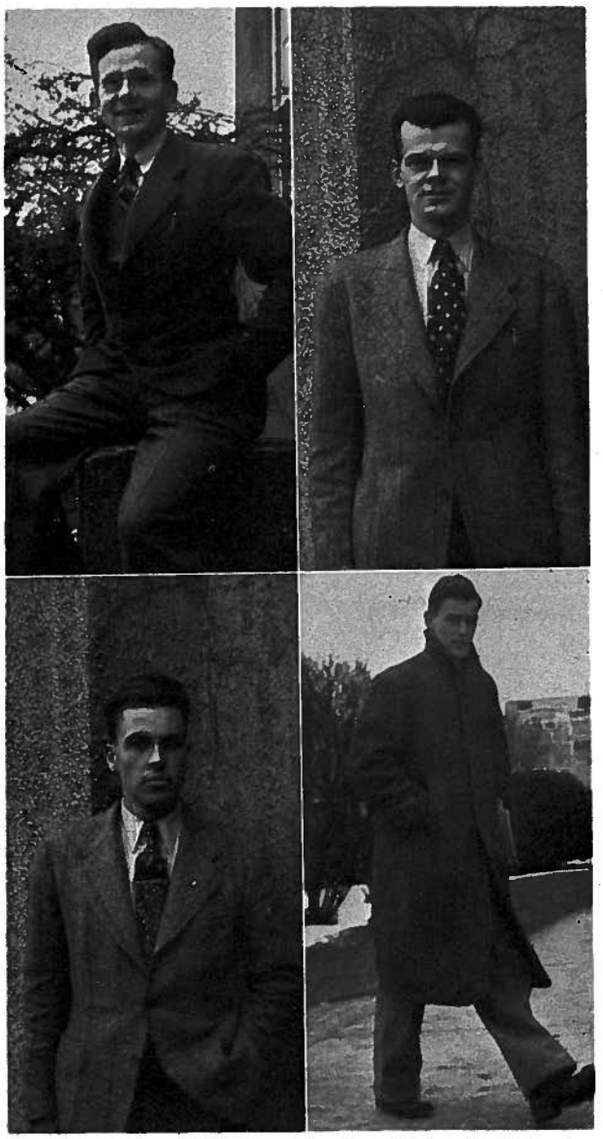

Naturally, the most famous contribution of Science '47 to Student Government is in the person of Ted Kirkpatrick, president of the AMS.

Another of the busy men has been Gordy Genge, who, along with his multifoliate duties as president of the Engineers' Undergraduate Society, has found time to be in the starting line-up of the American Football team. Also helping out in the line was Gus Sainus, one of Gordy's electrical classmates.

Stepping out from the ranks of the Geological Engineers this year, John Wheeler won the George Pringle Memorial Bursary for his brilliant scholastic abilities. He also figured among athletes on the campus as a member of the English Rugby team.

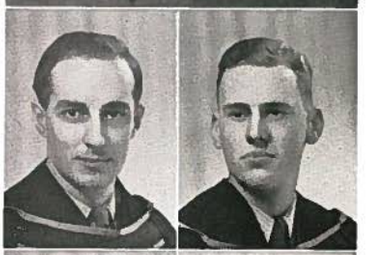

Roy Hooley has done a splendid job as president of the Varsity Outdoor Club. Another notable man of the outdoors is Jerry Lockhart, who is known for his fine endeavours in the ski meets.

The enthusiastic executive of Science '47 this year was composed of Jack Hannan, American Institute of Electrical Engineers; John Allen, American Society of Mechanical Engineers Mike Allan, American Institute of Chemical Engineers; John Wheeler, Dawson Club; Ted Greenaway, Civil Club; and Al Webster, Forestry Club, who worked together to co-ordinate class activities.

Upper: Jack Hannon, Ted Greenaway.
Lower: Al Webster, John Wheeler.

Third Year Engineers Active

Bill Baron.

Bob Dundas.

Nearing the end of the journey toward the degree of Bachelor of Applied Science, the members of Science '48 admit that it feels good to be getting in sight of the much-desired object.

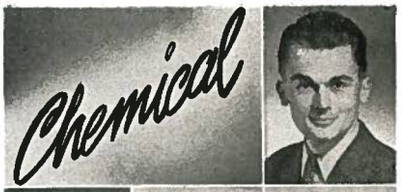

The class has now divided itself into the various sections of engineering, and the range of subjects has been narrowed to the requisites for the chosen course.

Mining Engineering this year boasts an enrollment of twelve, which, surprisingly enough, seems to be a record. Metallurgical Engineering has a similarly large enrollment.

An increase in mining activity in Canada during the past few years has doubled the demand for trained field and mine geologists, and as a direct result, more and more students are taking advantage of the fine courses offered to students in Geology.

Despite the numerous labs and exacting timetables of the redshirts, many of them have had time for participation in campus affairs and activities.

Various executives in Science '48 included Gerry Burch, Class Representative of Forestry Engineering; Ken Warner, third year representative of the Dawson Club; Hubert Gabrielse, Athletic Representative on E.U.S.; Mal Robinson, class representative of Geological Engineering.

Science '49 Expands Course

With the addition of a forestry section to the second year Applied Science class, the faculty now consists of twelve sections. This prodigious number of Redshirts on the campus makes a great deal of personal friendship among students in the faculty impossible, so that most of its members are still only on nodding terms with classmates in the other sections. However, in spite of this handicap, the class has no lack of spirit and, under versatile Rex Merrit, all class functions and undertakings have been fully supported.

In spite of the incorporation of surveying in the timetable this year, many of the classes have spent a great deal of time and energy in outside activities. Members of the faculty of Applied Science hold prominent positions on many of the executives of the University organizations.

Don Laskail figures as an executive member of the Campus Branch of the Canadian Legion, while Don Dewar ably directs the affairs of 350 students as President of the Fort Camp Committee.

Officers for this year were: President, Rex Merritt; vice-president, Doug Tuland; secretary-treasurer, Hugh Buckley; and sports representative, Daynard Welsh.

First Year Science Crowded

John Rome, Ken Noble.

Of the record that Science '50 may leave behind it when it graduates, the one it is most likely to be remembered by is that it is the largest Applied Science class in the history of the University of British Columbia. Numbering over eleven hundred, the class is exactly double last year's class.

Although the members of the class are not yet segregated into the various branches of engineering they will eventually follow, the preference among students seems to be greatest for mechanical and electrical engineering. Interest in chemical and civil engineering follows a close second, and geological engineering is not without its adherents.

But Science '50 had other interests apart from the scholastic. They were among the gayest of the celebrants at the Science Ball and the Science Banquet, and thoroughly proved their belief in the old adage about work and play.

Nor were sports and clubs neglected. Science '50 claims members on several intramural teams as well as members in nearly every campus organization from the Players' Club to the Radio Society and players on rugby and football teams.

The executive this year consisted of two general representatives, Ken Noble and John Rome, and two sports representatives, Norm Kirkpatrick and Peter Townsend.

Scientific Farmers Spirited

With the second highest enrollment of Agriculture in any Canadian university, the Faculty of Agriculture continued this year to take its usual prominent position on the campus.. Students working under crowded conditions have once more fulfilled the traditional Aggie spirit of friendliness. The increased enrollment, together with the retaining of this tradition, have made this year one to be remembered in the history of the faculty.

Owing to the enlargement of the faculty, it was decided early in the session that a more comprehensive social program be put before the undergraduate body. This new policy resulted in an extremely successful dance in the Commodore Cabaret following the Informal Fall Banquet.

November brought forth a skating party, and with Spring came the traditional banquet and dance in the Brock Hall.

The Fall Field Day had an enthusiastic reception by the students, thanks to the efficient organization by Flora Norris and Ian Greenwood.

Early in the Spring, a dance, sponsored and planned by the Freshmen Class, was held in the Brock Hall.

Highlight of the Aggie social calendar was the Aggie Barn Dance, famous throughout the years for its highly informal atmosphere. Arrangements for this affair were in charge of Ken Davidson, fourth year president.

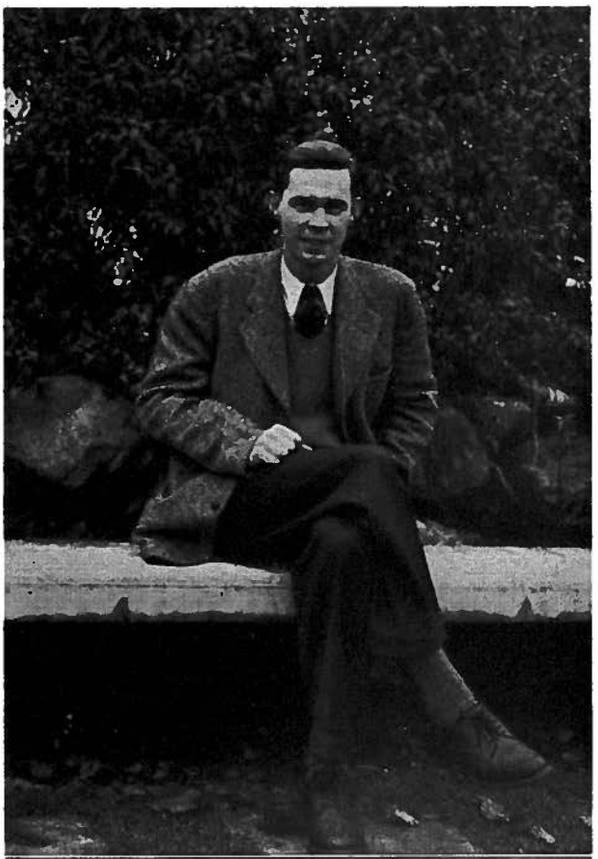

Under the direction of Bill Taylor, Norm Tupper and Doug Knott, Aggie men's Intramural teams have had a success year. In the cross-country race, a speedy Aggie team placed second, losing to the Jokers.

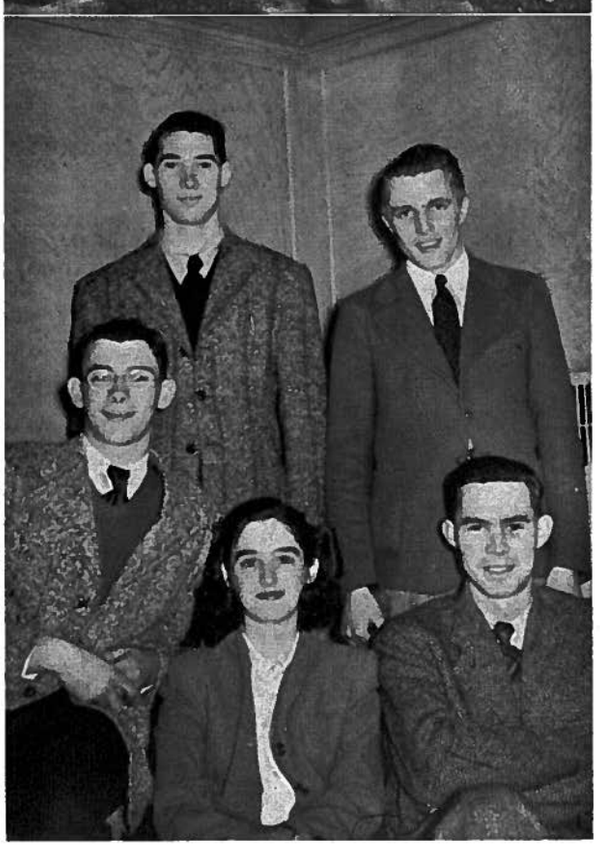

Under the capable and enthusiastic leadership of Sheila Hicks, the Aggie women's teams have participated in a large variety of intramural sports.

With a view to stimulating interfaculty competition, the students of Agriculture donated a trophy to be called the "Agriculture Soccer Cup," and awarded annually to a winning soccer team.

The executive of Agriculture included Neil MacKinnon, president; Grant Larkin, vice-president; Joyce King, secretary; John Day, treasurer; Doug Knott, athletic representative, and Bodie Baxter, women's representative.

Assisting this executive were the executives of each class, which consisted of fourth year president, Ken Davidson; secretary, Marg MacKay; third year president, Ian Greenwood; secretary, Flora Norris; second year president, Gerry Somers; secretary, Marg Norris; and first year president, Norm Galloway; secretary, Nan Hardy.

Home Economics Active Group

Pat Boyes, Dorothy Pearson, Sheila Wolstencroft, Joan Park, Gloria Norton.

Joan Park, President.

For the second time in the history of the University of British Columbia, Bachelor of Home Economics degrees this year are awarded to graduates at the 1947 spring congregation. The graduating class was double that of the 1945-46 session.

Athletic representative Peggy Bowe supervised a wide variety of sports, including volley ball, basketball, grass hockey, tennis, table tennis, bowling, golf, and swimming, and the girls of Home Ec were enthusiastic in their support and participation in these games.

A tea for the new Home Economics students was held in the Mildred Brock Room in the middle of October, which gave the new girls a chance to get acquainted with their upperclassmates and instructors. Another tea was held in April for the Home Economics graduates.

During the year, the girls in Home Economics gave practical demonstrations of their courses. These demonstrations were usually in the form of fashion shows.

Highlight of the year's social activities was the Home Economics Dance, held in Brock Hall early in February. Decorations for this dance, made by the girls themselves, proved that they were taking full advantage of their course.

Activities Keep Nurses Busy

Although hidden away in a quiet corner of the campus, the Nurses' Undergraduate Society has not passed without notice this year. Serving not only to direct the numerous activities of the Nursing undergraduates on the university campus and to provide them with a varied social program, but also to keep them in touch with their sisters down at the Vancouver General Hospital, it has led its members in a very complete social and scholastic life.

A large membership, including seventy-six in public health, teaching, and supervision; forty-one Degree students in training at the General Hospital; twenty in second year, and nine in nursing D, has been largely responsible for the success of the year's activities by its enthusiastic participation in them.

As future nurses, the girls realize that continual mental work and serious studies can be very detrimental to health and happiness, and insist on a suitable balance between study and relaxation. They also realize that much benefit and good experience can be gained from membership and participation in clubs and societies, and have certainly lived up to their beliefs by showing keen interest in both major and minor clubs on the campus and taking active parts in club affairs.

Lawyers Have Successful Year

Lloyd G. MacKenzie, President.

U.B.C.'s Law School, under the able leadership of Dean G. F. Curtis, in its second year on the campus has a total enrollment of two hundred and thirty-eight students. To accommodate these increased numbers, the school was moved to a new site on the East Mall, north of Brock Hall, at a point on the campus overlooking Howe Sound. The two converted Army huts, which contain lecture hall, library, common rooms and offices, house a comprehensive legal library of reported cases, text books, digests, and periodicals.

During the academic year, in order to acquire the skill of arguing a case, the students take part in moot trials. At this time, students become counsels before the Supreme Moot Court, and senior students are elevated to judges.

All students are required to be articled to lawyers in the province, and during the summer months they act as apprentices in law offices, thereby gaining useful experience in the practice of law.

Besides excelling in studies, Harry Franklin and Gus Carmichael have been recognized by Big Block awards for athletic achievement. Prominent in Legion affairs are such law students as Perry Miller, Stu Chambers, and human dynamo and housing authority, John McKenzie.

Social Service Class Active

Upper: Joe Francis, President.
Lower: Dorothy Boond, J. M. Putnam, Joe Francis, Jack Kirkpatrick, Joyce Moll.

Today a new conception of social work is being realized, not only by authorities on the subject, but also by everyone connected with the profession. The social worker is no longer a mere giver of charity. On the contrary, he is, instead, a professional person whose contribution is no less important to society than the contribution of the doctor or the scientist. The meaningful words of Miss Marjorie J. Smith, head of the department of Social Work at the University of British Columbia, are indicative of this important new understanding. "The basic attitude in all social work is a respect for people as human beings and the deep consideration for the personality of every man, woman, and child." Here lies the foundation stone of democracy. It is upon a belief in these words that the social worker bases his program for betterment and aid of the unfortunate people in modern society.

Through carefully planned courses which include academic training, field work in some social work agencies in greater Vancouver, and field trips to other centres in the province, Miss Smith and her staff are carrying out a progressive plan of training. The social worker of today is well prepared to take his place in society as an intelligent, understanding person who has as his goal the furthering of the democratic process and the abolition of age old prejudices and ignorance.

Social work has attracted an increasing amount of attention in the past few years and promises an excellent future and endless opportunities for its graduates, who may enter into a great number of different occupations in which social work can be applied.

The enrollment in social work reached a new high this year. Ninety-five graduates, twenty-five men and seventy women, will receive their Social Work degree in May, 1947. Of this number, twelve will receive their Master of Social Work degree. As well as these graduating students, there are forty-seven undergraduates enrolled in social work classes.

Several social gatherings were held during the year. At a class party in November a hilarious preview of Social Case Work in 1995 was presented by members of the group work class, and in December a banquet was planned for the students by the Alumni group.

The executive, elected in the fall term, consisted of Joe Francis, president; J. M. Putnam, vice-president; Joyce Moll, secretary-treasurer; Dorothy Boond, and Jack Kirkpatrick, members ex-officio.

Future Teachers Work Hard

Education '47, popularly known as Teacher Training, with an enrollment of twenty-three men and twenty-three women, offered an extremely varied curricular and social program this year.

Newly numbered courses consisted mainly of lectures in the philosophy and psychology of education, school administration, tests and measurement of intelligence and ability to learn, and modern methods of teaching. To supplement this theoretical work, periods of practise teaching were arranged for students in several of the junior and senior high schools in greater Vancouver. This affords an opportunity to apply the theory learned at university to an actual teaching situation, and these trips, one of the most interesting features of training, were eagerly anticipated by all the prospective teachers.

Besides these visits to Vancouver Secondary schools, many other field trips were planned for the student teachers during the year. Among these were visits to schools in Bellingham, to the Deaf and Blind School in Vancouver, and to the Essondale Clinic for Mental Health, where they carefully studied any conditions applicable to the profession.

GREATER opportunities are needed here for those who have trained and equipped themselves.

The B.C. Electric is actively sponsoring, as a public service, the "Business Is Moving to B.C." campaign so that more young men and women will find in this province increased scope for their talents.

Business executives all over the world again this year will be reading in such magazines as "Fortune" and "Time" advertisements of the B.C. Electric calling attention to the advantages of locating their industrial plants here.

Our Industrial Development Department will help them with market data, statistics and information on suitable plant locations.

Already, this department has assisted in locating here, industries with an annual payroll of $5,000,000.

A MESSAGE TO THE CLASS OF '47

There was a time when secondary and university education was generally viewed as existing solely for the personal advancement of the person who received it. This concept justified the claim that a very large measure of the cost of such education should be borne by the student and his family.

Gradually society came to realize that its progress in all fields of human thought and endeavour was dependent upon an adequate supply of highly trained young people. Further, that this supply could be assured only if the State were willing to contribute to the support of institutions of higher learning.

You have now been graduated from the University of British Columbia. Aside from your own ability and industry, this significant achievement represents a considerable investment of money by you and by the State.

May this joint investment yield both parties a rich return in satisfaction and service.

GEORGE M. WEIR,
Minister of Education.

ARCHITECTS . . and PRINTERS

Of course there are a great many printers in any city, but we at Ward & Phillips like to think ourselves ARCHITECTS . . . . where all printed production is PLANNED according to basic principles of good typography and geared to fit the needs of each individual customer.

The planning and designing of advertising in all its forms . . . . brochures, booklets, folders, catalogues, letterheads, has been of a specialized character with us for many years.

A telephone call will be the beginning of a service that will convince you of our ability to produce printed advertising that will create consumer demand.

ADVERTISING IS NOT AN EXPENSE, BUT A CAPITAL GAIN . . . TO BOTH PRODUCER AND CONSUMER

EVERY STUDENT

. . . should answer these questions:

"HOW SOON DO I NEED TO HAVE LIFE INSURANCE?"

In most cases the answer is: "Just as soon as you are earning, or earlier if there is a need. Your life insurance should provide savings for yourself, and protection for those dependent on you, now or in the future. Remember that the earlier you start your Mutual Life Insurance program, the easier it will be for you to carry . . .

"DOES IT MATTER WHICH LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY I CHOOSE?"

Life insurance companies are much alike as to policies and rates, but actual long-term results vary widely. We invite you to compare The Mutual Life of Canada's record with that of any other company. Evidence of the satisfaction of our policyholders is furnished by the fact that whole families and succeeding generations have entrusted their life insurance programs exclusively to The Mutual Life of Canada, and each year approximately 35% of its new business comes from our policyholders. Ask your Mutual Life representative to explain the special features of this Company.

MORE and MORE, it's

"BRITISH COLUMBIA"

"British Columbia offers an unlimited field of industrial and commercial opportunity. Nature has given it much; initiative has given it more."

—Leslie H. Eyres.

1947 is big with promise for British Columbia. Never in its history was there a keener interest than there is today in its opportunities and attractions. In all parts of the world there is an eagerness to know what it has to offer to the capitalist, industrialist, and homeseeker.

It is safe to say that British Columbia was never in healthier or more robust condition, that never has a keener or more soundly-based optimism prevailed.

We are entering a new era, in which new demands will be made upon us all. We face a future of splendid promise to the young men and women of today.

Business and industrial leaders are of one mind—that this is the day and age of specialized knowledge, that the key positions, the worth-while posts in the business and industrial world will go to those whose minds are trained and disciplined, whose perceptions have been quickened to grasp the intricacies of the new techniques.

BUSINESS IS MOVING TO BRITISH COLUMBIA. The tide of settlement is definitely flowing to the West. With its many advantages, British Columbia has become the Mecca for settlers from every part, the chosen field for industrial and commercial enterprise.

MORE AND MORE, IT'S "BRITISH COLUMBIA," to industrialists, investors, home-, health-, and pleasure-seekers.

. . . . . It's not what you wear but how you wear it!

. . . It's being spotless, crisp, and uncrumpled, keeping smart and up-to-date that counts. It's Sanitone, the modern drycleaning process that turns the trick. For Sanitone restores brilliance to colours, firmness of texture to materials of all kinds and makes clothes look like new.

Lenses must accurately interpret the findings of your optical prescription. The frames and mountings must position these lenses to hold them in the proper alignment to secure the fullest seeing comfort possible. Each step, from the lenses to the finished eyewear, must be taken with no tolerance for what is commonly known as a safe margin for error—Optically speaking there is none. Remember for your convenience — our two offices.
