

The Canadian Association of Public libraries CAPL/Brodart Outstanding Public Library Service Award 2009

A very well-deserved honour for Judi Saltman---she has been named as the 2009 recipient of The Canadian Association of Public libraries CAPL/Brodart Outstanding Public Library Service Award. Sponsored by Brodart Canada, the award is presented annually for outstanding service in the field of Canadian public librarianship.

The press release reads:

"Judith is a strong advocate of services for children in public libraries, demonstrated in her career as a librarian, professor and author of scholarly works about children's literature. She brings dedication, commitment and creativity to her work, along with a deep understanding of the importance of children's services in libraries. Her teaching, writings and passion have inspired a generation of librarians. As a spokesperson to the media, she has admirably represented public libraries, librarians, the academic children's literature community and children's writers and illustrators."

Our congratulations to Judi on this recognition of her life-long dedication to children's literature and services!
