THIS MAN GUIDES U.B.C....

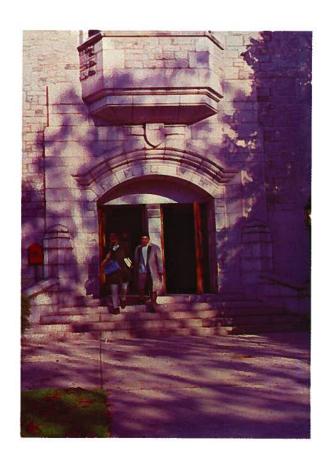

Installed in the fall of 1962 as UBC's new President, Dr. John Macdonald immediately established a reputation as a man who believes that quality, not quantity, is UBC's answer to the future.

WITH ITS BUILDINGS . . .

No more of the old stone buildings are being built, but these legacies from a young campus have a certain ivy-covered air about them that the more modern buildings seem to lack.

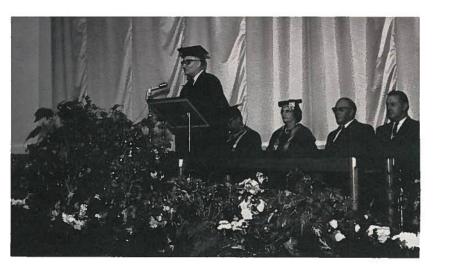

THE NEW EDUCATION BUILDING

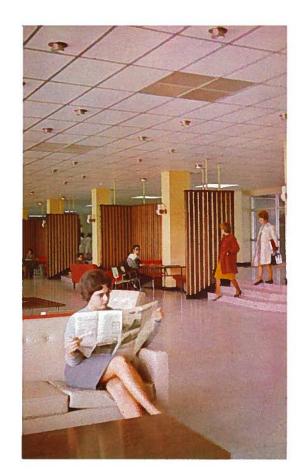

"Frills," charged the critics when the fancy new Education building was finished, with its expansive patio and artistic fountain. "A successful union of economy and design," retorted Dean Chant. Students and visitors, admiring the new structure, agreed with the Dean.

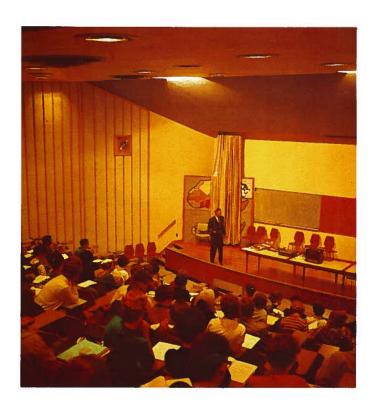

JUST OPEN . . .

Future teachers relax in the luxury of their comfortable new lounge.

Les Peterson, B.C. Education Minister, officially opened the new Education Building early in the first term. This addition to the campus cost $1.1 million to build, and provides 2600 students with such luxuries as bucket classroom seats, a 200 person common room, a basement cafeteria and classroom TV.

LIKE THE NEW FINE ARTS...

The Fredrick Lasserre Building, the new home of Fine Arts and Architecture, is another 1962 addition to UBC. This attractive structure looks as if it were meant as an inspiration to the students who use it. Built for $1 million, it contains studies, seminar rooms, classrooms and labs. Outside, it is complete with rockeries and landscaping.

WHICH DESERVES A LOOK INSIDE

The walls inside are decorated with the finest student work.

Working on Frescos in one of the studios.

Painting is just one of the cultural aspects that are practiced.

Architecture also is pursued by a select group.

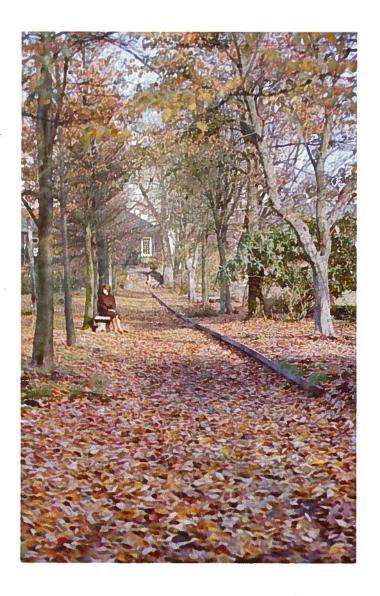

The new Chemistry wing looks almost out of place sticking out of the much older Main Chemistry Building.

Other structures however, are not quite so grandiose or handy.

BUILDINGS OLD AND NEW...

The Medical sciences also enjoy modern facilities; taking advantage of the new buildings erected for them across University Boulevard from the Memorial Gym.

LARGE AND SMALL . . .

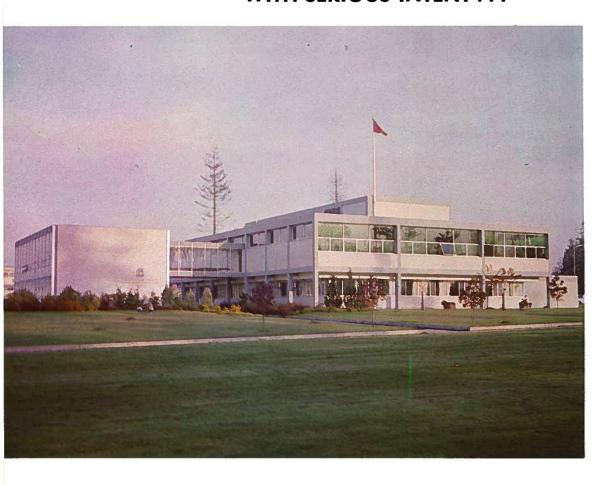

The sprawling Buchanan Building is the largest in UBC and is the center of the campus to many Arts students. Some of them have all their classes there and never leave except to go home.

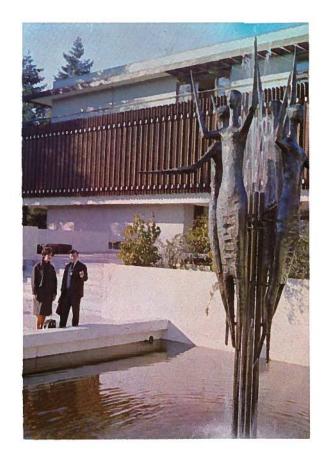

WITH SERIOUS INTENT . . .

The government research centers on campus are important additions to UBC facilities, and as well, add to the beauty of the scenery.

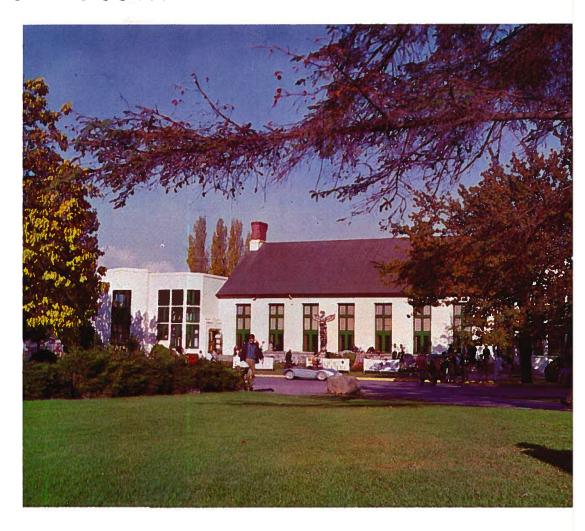

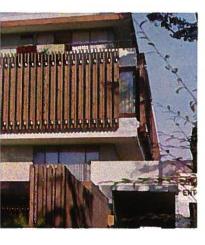

The Graduate Student Center stands out for its attractiveness even among the newer buildings. Located on the West Mall near Marine Drive, it is convenient to drivers and yet, being near the Main Mall, is handy to the rest of the campus.

BUILDINGS TO WHICH STUDENTS GO...

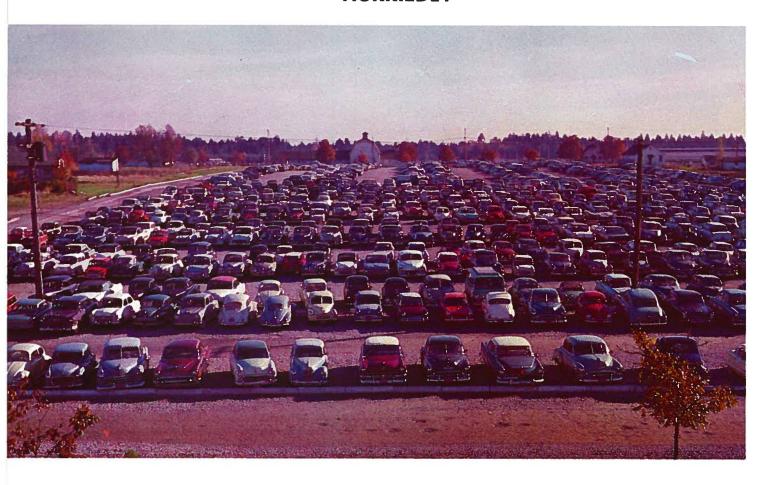

The famous Brock Hall is home to the kind of student known as the "Brock type". The recognized social center of the campus, Brock Hall is the scene of many activities, organized and otherwise.

... USUALLY FROM AFAR,

HURRIEDLY

UBC is well described as a "walking campus". Cars are routed to sprawling parking lots far away from the center of the campus. Students spend much of each day commuting on foot.

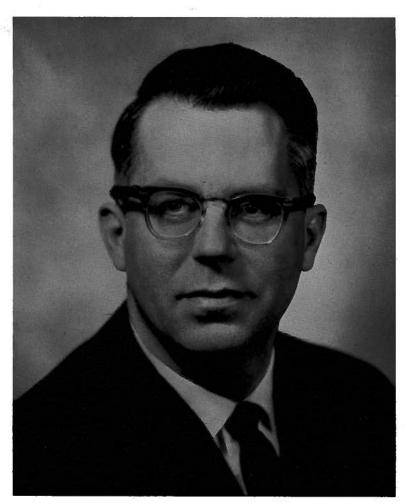

ADMINISTRATION

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Because the years any young person can give to formal training are of necessity limited, students should concentrate their efforts fully upon serious study and research. Yet, however dedicated he may be, no student is wise if he fails to participate in some form of social or recreational activity. Here at U.B.C., the Alma Mater Society provides opportunities and facilities for recreation which should have an appeal to every man and woman: amateur theatricals, musical groups, literary clubs, hobbies, art circles, sports, and so many others.

TOTEM is the record of those very popular activities which go to make up the calendar of extra-curricular events. In the years to come, it will recall, to each of you, good friends and happy occasions. For those of you who are graduating, it will remind you that this University, and the men and women who work within its halls, have played a special role in your lives—enriching, expanding, and deepening those pleasures of the mind and body which are associated with undergraduate days.

BOARD OF GOVERNOR

The government of U.B.C. is vested within the hands of the Board of Governors. Meeting once a month, the Board is closely connected to the Senate by the dual membership of the President and the Chancellor.

These men and women strive to improve facilities for higher learning and bring from their respective fields the knowledge and experience required to do so.

Of the eleven members, the Chancellor is elected by the convocation, the President is appointed by the Board of Governors, six members are appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, and three members are elected by the Senate.

Mr. R. R. Jeffels, Assistant to the President

Dean W. H. Gage, Dean of Interfaculty Affairs

ASSOCIATED WOMEN STUDENTS

Many events were sponsored by the A. W. S., headed this year by Joanne Atkinson, and composed of representatives from faculties and women's groups. These events included the Big and Little Sister Banquet, Sadie Hawkins' Day, and Woman's Week.

UNDERGRADUATE SOCIETIES COMMITTEE

The coordinating body for all undergrad societies, the U.S.C., consisting of two representatives from each undergrad society, was chaired by Peter Leask. As the most representative organ of student government on campus, the U.S.C. has a seat on the Student Council and informs the undergrad societies of the Council's plans.

A. M. S. OFFICE STAFF

Left to right: Mrs. E. Holliday, Mrs. B. Cruikshank, Mrs. S. Reid, Mrs. 1. Hyslop, Miss G. Barry.

The A.M.S. office, managed by Mr. R. E. Pearson, is the focal point of all student affairs. Maintaining a smoothly running Alma Mater Society, the staff helps co-ordinate clubs, undergrad societies, and other student activities. It also provides services such as mimeographing, selling of tickets, the booking of rooms, and the hearing of complaints.

U. B. C. ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

Anyone coming into the Alumni Association offices beside the College Shop in the Brock can usually see Tim Hollick-Kenyon sitting with a wall full of photographs of past presidents of the Alumni Association. Here in the picture Tim is talking to Peter Shepard of the Students' Council, who comes in often, and is pointing out this year's Association president, Franklin Walden.

Tim, the director, or Gordon Thom, the Assistant director, and the nine hardworking girls on the staff have back of them an executive committee of alumni, all volunteers, who set the policies and oversee the affairs of the Association.

The Alumni aids the students in Homecoming and Academic Symposia, plans class reunions, keeps graduate addresses up to date, appoints Senate representatives, arranges conferences and keeps an eye on University affairs.

GRADUATES AND FACULTIES

Don Hume Photo

The University of British Columbia is not one big unit — it is divided into many sections: faculties, schools and departments. Many give their own degrees. All have their own graduates. Here are all those graduates, as they appeared at their moment of triumph.

Rhodes Scholarship winner Brian Scarfe.

Photograph — Paul Clancy.

Awarded the Rhodes Scholarship for 1962 was Brian Scarfe, in fourth year Arts at UBC. He is in honours Economics, and intends to take his PhD at Oxford, specializing in the problems of underdeveloped areas. His ultimate ambition is to work as an economics planner in a rising country. A member of VOC, he enjoys climbing and skiing, and takes part in intramural basketball.

FACULTY OF AGRICULTURE

The Faculty of Agriculture is headed by Dean Eagles, shown here. It contains students who are intending to become specialists, as well as young farmers who wish to get a little background in agriculture without actually working towards a degree. Altogether there are about 200 students in the Faculty.

The Faculty occupies a number of barns and lecture buildings on the south-west side of the campus. In addition it shares facilities with other faculties.

Aggies are a fun-loving group. Here they take on the Engineers in the annual Chariot Race at the Teacup Game. Although defeated, they put up a gallant battle under heavy fire and in the face of an Engineering obstacle course.

Michigan .

Sometimes the Aggie spirit goes a bit too far. Last year the Moobyssey, the Agriculture newspaper, published an edition which earned official disapproval for its exuberance, and as a result the Aggies are without press privileges for the year.

A highlight of the '62-63 year was the crowning of the Agriculture Queen, redhaired Maureen Kent. Other Aggie activities include dances and outings.

AGRICULTURE

SCHOOL OF ARCHITECTURE

Director Henry Elder

The School of Architecture is a select organization, one of the most select on campus. The high standard of the school is reflected in the small total enrollment, 75 this year.

The school switched from a five to a three year program in 1959-60.

Professor Henry Elder was made the new director of the school in 1962. He came to UBC from Cornell University, and replaces the late Fredrick Lasserre in that post. The directorship was temporarily held by Professor Wolfgang Gerson until the arrival of Professor Elder.

The biggest news of the year for Architecture was the opening of the new Fredrick Lasserre building in the summer. Architecture students now share this beautiful structure with Fine Arts students. Previous to this anyone taking Architecture found himself in huts on the West Mall, so the new facilities were heartily welcomed by both students and staff.

ARCHITECTURE

FACULTY OF FORESTRY

One of the lesser known faculties, the Faculty of Forestry this year received a new dean, Dr. Thomas Wright.

The Foresters are an active group an campus, making up in energy what they lack in numbers. Traditionally in co-operation with Home Economics. They use a Home Ec. girl as Forestry Queen, and support the Home Ec. Homewreckers in the Teacup games. Part of this dependence may be explained by the fact that of the 180 members of the faculty, all are quite masculine.

The Forestry-Home Ec. Queen this year was Memorie Johnsrude.

A big event on campus is the publication of the spicy campus newspaper, the Plank. Another major activity this year was the Undercut, the big Forestry Dance.

ARTS

Dean Chant is head of Arts and Science.

The Faculty of Arts is part of the Faculty of Arts and Science, under the direction of Dean S. N. F. Chant, shown here engaged in some of his quantities of paperwork.

Planned is a formal division of Arts and Science into two faculties, that of Arts and of Science.

The Arts Undergraduate Society is active in promoting extra-curricular activities, among which the annual Harvest Ball is especially important. It also publishes the Artisan, the Arts newspaper.

A highlight of the Arts year was the crowning of Mary-Lee Magee as Arts Queen.

COLLEGE OF EDUCATION

Dean Neville V. Scarfe.

An Education student seems to enjoy his new surroundings.

The Faculty of Education is the second largest faculty on campus with 2500 students, 60% of whom are female. Students are engaged in programs which vary in length from one to five years. Dean is Neville V. Scarfe.

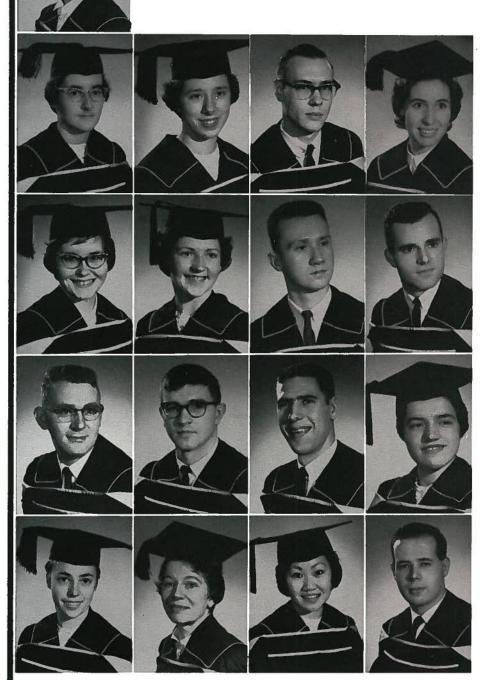

The Education Faculty received in the fall of 1962 a gift from the Provincial Government: a brand new building featuring such novelties as TV and classroom bucket seats.

The Education students organize dances and other activities throughout the year, and an Education newspaper appears periodically. The Education Queen this year was Maureen Owen.

ENGINEERING

Dean Meyers of Applied Science

Engineering is run by Dr. David M. Meyers, Dean of the Faculty of Applied Science. It contains almost a thousand students, who take one of ten Engineering options. Their courses are regarded as some of the most difficult in UBC.

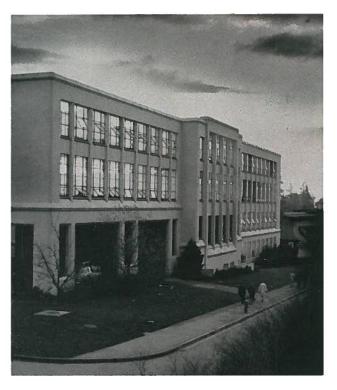

Extra-curricular activities of Engineers are legend, and 1962 was a singularly successful year. They kidnapped Doug Stewart, AMS president, won the chariot race at Homecoming, and saw their queen, Linda Gibson, win the title of Homecoming Queen 1962. In addition they won the "boat-race" beer-drinking contest at the Teacup game, and got first prize for the best float in the Homecoming parade. Other highlights for the Engineers during the year were the unveiling of the Monster Mache and their moon rocket attempt.

Engineering requires long hours spent over a drafting board.

A little help on a problem.

Concentration is the key to success.

SCHOOL OF HOME ECONOMICS

Director Charlotte S. Black

The School of Home Economics is a part of the Faculty of Arts and Science. The director is Miss Black.

The two-hundred-odd Home Economics girls take either a four or a five-year program for their degree.

The girls maintain an active social year, sponsoring functions and taking part in debates and other activities.

This year Home Economics triumphed over the nurses when the Homewreckers tromped the Panhandlers 13-0. They also emerged with a teacup record: the first touchdown convert.

Learning the intricasies of the sewing-machine.

Testing the fading of cloth.

Getting instruction in the culinary arts.

Home Economics girls aren't always this industrious. They take out time for other activities, such as teaming up with the Foresters to promote Miss Home-Ec-Forestry, Memorie Johnsrude, as the 1962 Homecoming Queen candidate for the two faculties.

Lunchhour is for work.

Home economics means workshops.

FACULTY OF LAW

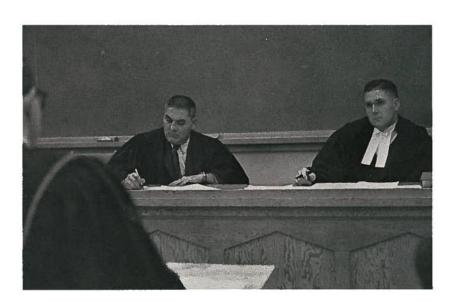

Dean George F. Curtis, Faculty of Law

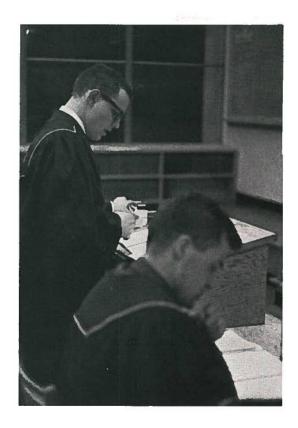

With typical reserve, the faculty of Law does not take part in such campus activities as Queen contests, boat races, or inter-faculty dunkings. It does, however, produce a steady supply of top lawyers. The reserved gentlemen of the campus, lawyers distinguish themselves in debating and student government. Easily recognized by their suits and umbrellas, their center is the posh Law Building, which sits just across the East Mall from the Buchanan Building. They have here the use of a huge library, and spacious study rooms.

The 230-odd law students, all but a dozen of which are male, take a standard three-year program which includes regular sessions with the Moot Court. Here, potential lawyers are grilled thoroughly on their argument for or against a case.

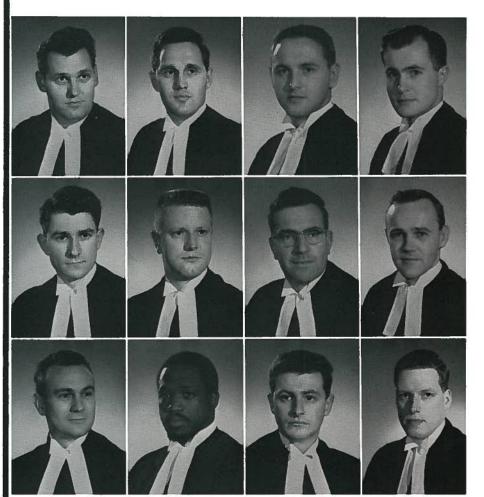

The head of the faculty is Dean George F. Curtis.

Moot Courts are a regular ordeal.

Arguments must be skillful.

New Director Dr. James Ranz

LIBRARIANSHIP

The School of Librarianship this year received a new head: Dr. James Ranz, who came to UBC from the University of Wyoming. He succeeds Dr. Samuel Rothstein in the post.

The School of Librarianship has had a long history and a brief existance. The subject of discussion since 1920 and of planning since 1950, it was only established in 1960. Since, it has had two directors, Dr. Samuel Rothstein and, after him, Dr. James Ranz.

The School offers a one-year course for graduates leading to a B.L.S. degree. About 40 students are enrolled.

The purpose of the School is to help increase the supply of trained librarians. To this important end the School offers courses in the selection of material, the organization of collections, means of stimulating and guiding reading, and techniques of gathering information.

FACULTY OF MEDICINE

Dean John F. McCreary, Dean of the Faculty of Medicine.

The faculty of Medicine, headed by Dean John F. McCreary, offers a four-year program leading to an M.D. degree. The first two years are academic courses. The second two years, the clinical years, are divided between training on the campus and practical training at Vancouver General Hospital, Shaughnessy Hospital, and St. Paul's Hospital.

The Faculty, which uses a complex of new buildings on the south-east corner of the campus, has a little over 200 students in the faculty. Registration is restricted to 60 students a year, and the drop-out rate is low.

Students of the faculty find time for social events such as this year's "Sawbones Shuffle," the fall dance. The Medicine Queen this year was Toni Burt.

The Wesbrook Building is the UBC home of the Faculty of Medicine; the other being the Vancouver General Hospital. Also included in this building is the UBC hospital, for the care of students residing on campus. This picture shows the main entrance of the building as seen from across the visitor's parking lot by University Boulevard.

DEPARTMENT OF MUSIC

Dr. D. G. Welton Marquis, Head of the Music Department.

The department of Music in UBC is unique among the departments of the Faculty of Arts: it gives its own degrees. Starting their four year Bachelor of Music program in 1959, they increased their enrollment from 27 in 1959 to about 160 in 1962. They use the old Forest Products Lab and various huts as facilities, but are expecting new quarters in the near future. Head of the department is D. G. Welton Marquis, who came to UBC in 1958 from his position as Dean of the College of Music at the Women's College in North Carolina.

Also under the sponsorship of the department is the University Orchestra, for the benefit of students who like to make and hear good music. They play at various functions throughout the year, including a series of regular free concerts at the University and elsewhere.

NURSING

With the cooperation of city hospitals and health agencies, the School of Nursing offers a four-year program for a B. Sc. in nursing. The school, whose head is Miss H. Evelyn Mallory, contains a little over a hundred nurses.

The nurses have a busy social year, cooperating with the Engineers in cheerleading in the Teacup Game and in providing a girl as the Engineering Queen. One of the main activities of the year is the annual Teacup Game, where the Nursing Panhandlers take on the Home Ec. Homewreckers in football. This year Nursing put up a valiant struggle against Home Ec. but lost by two touchdowns, 13-0.

The Faculty of Pharmacy, although one of the smaller facilities on campus, is also one of the fastest growing. The head is Dean A. W. Matthews. The faculty is housed in the George Cunningham Building behind Wesbrook. It offers a four-year course in Pharmacy with liberal education electives. Included among Pharmacy activities for the year were dances and the selection of Joan Turner as Pharmacy Queen.

Robert F. Osborne, Director

The School of Physical Education is part of the Faculty of Arts and Science. It offers a four-year program to a B.P.E., a program for Education P.E. majors, and a service program for students in first or second year.

The School has about 200 degree students, and is headed by Robert F. Osborne.

Physical Education students are active both on and off the field. They selected Chris Tisdale, a second year P.E. student, as Miss Physical Education, and arranged a number of social events for the year. In addition they took part in extramural sports events.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

This crane became a landmark as the new Chemistry wing rose.

The Faculty of science is part of the Faculty of Arts and Science, headed by Dean S. N. F. Chant. The Faculty achieved world-wide fame in October when Dr. Neil Bartlett, a U.B.C. research chemist, rocked the chemical world by forming compounds from the gas Xeron, which was previously thought inert.

The students of the Faculty of Science, through the Arts Undergraduate Society, have their own newspaper, and organize their own functions. Dances and Queen contests are included in their year. This year the Science Queen was Parsla Sturmans. Sciencemen provided the chariot for Agriculture in the Chariot race at the Teacup Game, and lent a hand in the pulling.

The main wing of the Chemistry Building is one of the oldest structures on campus.

FACULTY OF GRADUATE STUDIES

Dean F. H. Soward, Head of Graduate Studies

Graduate Studies is the senior Faculty on the campus, and attracts outstanding graduates from around the world to continue their studies in many fields. The faculty offers programs leading to Masters degrees in Arts, Science, Agriculture, Forestry, Pharmacy, Business Administration, Education, Architecture, Physical Education, and Law. They also offer PhD's in many fields and the degree of Ed. The head of the faculty is Dean F. H. Soward, who succeeded Professor Gordon Shrum recently in the post. About 700 students are taking advantage of the program offered by the faculty, and the number is rapidly expanding.

The Graduate Student's Association has its headquarters in the Thea Koerner House, and the faculty as a whole has use of the beautiful new Graduate Student's center.

UNION COLLEGE

The Union College of British Columbia is affiliated with UBC. It offers courses leading to the degrees of B.D., B.Th., and S.T.M., and also provides courses in religion for non-theology students. The head is Reverend Professor W. S. Taylor, who is Principal.

Union College students keep themselves active during the year. Included in their program is one of the more vigorous freshman hazing programs in UBC. They also arrange dances and other social functions, and participate in intramural sports.

The Anglican Theological College is located on the North-East part of the campus. The Principal is The Reverend J. Blewett. The college offers courses leading to the title of licentiate in Theology and to the degree of B.D.

Anglican College students are active in intramural sports. In addition, they have a busy social schedule including many varied activities.

WELCOME:

YOU are now a member of the UBC Alumni Association, and will receive the UBC Chronicle free for one year. You will also receive UBC Reports from the Alumni Office.

REMEMBER

the Alumni Association serves YOU, the University, and the community.

OUR AIMS . . .

- to represent and unify UBC grads.
- to inform the public of the needs of Higher Education.
- to formulate policy affecting UBC and Higher Education.
- to keep graduates informed through the UBC Chronicle.
- to model suitable projects for the promotion of Higher Education.
- to aid and support the student body.

IF YOU THINK EDUCATION IS IMPORTANT - BECOME AN ACTIVE MEMBER

Your Alumni Office maintains the only CURRENT ADDRESS PLATES of UBC graduates, so please KEEP US INFORMED of your whereabouts. With your help we can maintain up-to-date information for your friends when they write us. The importance of a good address can never be overlooked.

— It is good business too!!

When you want a friend's address - call us.

ORGANIZATIONS

UNIVERSITY CLUBS COMMITTEE

UCC Executive

There are over seventy clubs functioning on campus this year, all under the control of the University Clubs Committee. For any students interested in the cultural side of campus life, there are literary and musical associations. For the athletic types, there are sports clubs and intramural and extramural teams. Religious denominations, ethnic and political parties are all represented on campus. The UCC guides all these clubs, as well as planning and organizing booths for Clubs Day each fall.

If we're lucky, we'll be out of "C" lot in half an hour.

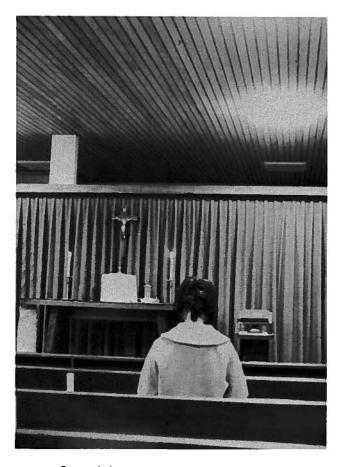

Juan Fangio rides again!

Doggone, I'll find those pistons yet.

SPORTS CAR CLUB

The Sports Car. Club was begun in 1956 to promote interest in motor sports on the campus. The club carries on discussion groups ranging from ordinary street driving to racing. Once a-month parties provide a good atmosphere for dancing and also "shoptalk". Several rallies are held every year, among the most important being the TOTEM rally in which club members find themselves trying to maneuver their cars over back roads and through pastures. The most important event is the Thunderbird Rally, which is strictly no-nonsense driving through a very tough course in the Interior. Survivors of this spree must then prepare for the annual Gymkhana, around an impossible course on the lot of some unsuspecting supermarket.

Contemplation

The Newman Centre is a club for Roman Catholic students on campus. The club's facilities are situated in St. Mark's College. Here, in the comfortable lounge, students can eat their lunch, talk, or just relax. The students can attend Mass in St. Mark's Chapel if they wish to. Throughout the year the club sponsors many activities. The annual five day campus mission and Communion Suppers are only some of these. The club's Intellectual Committee provides a series of lectures on various religious study-discussion groups. The club is a vigorous supporter and participant in intramural games. Free monthly talent nights are held, with entertainment from the sublime to the ridiculous. An annual ski-trip and formal, as well as a party for underprivileged children, are some of the main social events.

CARIBBEAN STUDENTS ASSOCIATION

This year there are over 250 Caribbean students on the UBC campus. Most of them take a very active part in student activities on the campus, with great emphasis on sports and entertainment. Every year the club sponsors a Carnival dance, which never fails to be a success. Other social events, films, and debates aid in promoting understanding and goodwill. Vitality and enthusiasm are the keynotes of this club, which is a vital part of our University life.

A very solemn business.

RADIO SOCIETY

UBC Radio operates over a closed circuit network which reaches all campus centres. During the broadcast day, listeners will hear tasteful music ranging from jazz to classical, as well as up-to-date news reports.

Besides campus programming, UBC Radio produces "Digest", a weekly fifteen minute recap of campus events. A series of programs called "Spotlight" were broadcast over CKLG this year. Everyone will remember the gigantic "Twist" party, where over one thousand students jammed Brock Hall to compete for prizes recognizing their 'twisting' ability.

CHINESE VARSITY

The Chinese Varsity Club began the fall term by winning the award for the best booth on Club's Day. This was only the first of many varied activities. The CVC acquainted the university with many cultural events by having speakers, films and discussions. The club also promoted friendship between the Chinese students through social functions, including the Frosh Mixer, Skating party, Bowling Night, and a dance sponsored with the Nisei Varsity group. The club's biggest project this year was the Chinese New Year's Dance. The annual banquet and dance ended another funfilled and highly successful year.

Both rider and horse in fine form!

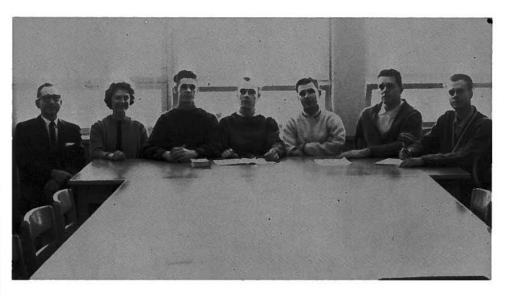

RIDING CLUB

The UBC Riding Club was formed in the spring term of 1962. It's purpose is to promote interest and enjoyment in riding and horses. The club meets every two weeks when films or lectures on riding and horses are presented. Members ride at low rates, and lessons are available if they wish them. The club sponsored a Ride and Dance at the Steelhead Ranch during the Christmas holidays. Members enjoyed the trail rides which were held at various points during the year. Club members have been competing in local horse shows, and are planning one of their own as soon as they have sufficient members.

Club members are presented with ribbons they well-deserved!

GAMMA DELTA

Gamma Delta Executive

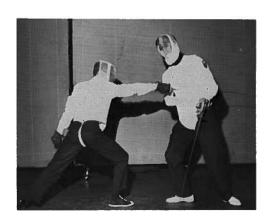

Interested in discussion? Then you will enjoy Gamma Delta. "What atheists fail to consider", "Campus Gods", "Predestination", and 'Bible Questions" are but a few of the topics on the club program. Gamma Delta is an international student organization of the Lutheran Church. This year the club has an active membership of about twenty-five. Every week there is a study meeting, and on Sundays a "fireside" is held. Discussion and Bible study bring much spiritual growth and faith strengthening, and club members get a lot of fun and Christian fellowship out of their activities.

FENCING CLUB

En garde! The sound of the combatants echoed throughout the gymnasium as they maneouvered for the fatal opening. Touche! — the battle is over. The membership practices once a week and is instructed in foil, sabre, and epee. The members also participate in the B.C. and the Pacific Northwest competitions.

FOLK SONG SOCIETY

The Folk Song Society brings together all students on campus who are interested in folklore and folk music. The recently acquired clubroom provides a small but intimate locale for the membership to gather for discussion and for impromptu performances. To promote folk music on campus, the society sponsors concerts by well-known folk singers such as Guy Carawan.

AQUATIC SOCIETY

The first skin-diving club at any university in North America, this club is now in its seventh year. Comprehensive skin and scuba training is offered to all members; the emphasis on safe procedures has resulted in an enviable accident-free record. The club has grown to be the most active diving club in Western Canada, with members engaging in almost all aspects of underwater activity: sightseeing, spearfishing, specimen collecting, light salvage, and underwater photography. Highlights among last year's activities included the fifth annual Thanksgiving trip to Pender Harbour, and the first annual Aqua Slosh.

VARSITY CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

An honest inquiry into religion is essential for the whole education of a student. It is for this reason that Varsity Christian Fellowship exists as an autonomous student organization. It strives to examine Christian faith in an academic setting by its program of lectures, discussions, and Bible studies. Weekend retreats at Thetis Island and Mount Baker provide an informal atmosphere of hiking, skiing, and folk-singing. Besides supporting their own club, VCF'ers contribute to affiliated student groups in lesser developed nations. Their interest here at UBC is shown by a series of informal suppers for, foreign students.

Group discussion provides pleasant relaxation.

INTERNATIONAL HOUSE

International House has the unique honour of being the only location on campus which has facilities for people of all interests. Besides a cafeteria and a congenial social atmosphere, the House offers a wide variety of recreations, of which chess, ping-pong, and a program of noonhour speakers are representative. Particularly colourful are Friday evenings where international students present the music and costumes of their native lands. One country is saluted each week, and refreshments are served. Other highlights for the year are the Fall Fair, held in Brock and the Spring Ball, held in the Bayshore Inn. This year International House became the headquarters for the campus UN Society, the Canadian University Students overseas and the World University Service Clubs.

HILLEL

Hillel is maintained by B'nai B'rith in order to provide a program of religious, cultural, and counselling services for Jewish students. The program is designed to aid Jewish students in deepening their understanding of the meaning and implications of their Jewish identity, and to help them discover something of what Judaism has to say to the Jewish person in our time. In February, Hillel presented a "Special Events Week", culminated by a Brotherhood Dinner. During this week, special guests of interest to the whole campus community were featured.

Choral Society Executive.

CHORAL SOCIETY

The UBC Choral Society is an entirely student operated group. Known for nearly thirty years as the University Glee Club, the choir changed its name in 1956 because of the implementation of an annual concert of varied choral works — sacred songs and opera as well as classical, Broadway, and spirituals. The society's director is Allan Wilkie, and the president is Bill Kirby. Activities this year have included a concert at UBC, a tour of Vancouver Island, and concerts in Stanley Park. Included in these programmes were works by Mozart, Beethoven, Rogers and Hammerstein.

Allan Wilkie, Director of Choral Society.

JAZZ SOCIETY

The University Jazz Society is an association of students interested in the enjoyment and promotion of jazz. While many active musicians are members, it is not a musician's club. The Society has a large clubroom decorated in an off-beat style, and a record player and a record library are at the disposal of members.

Starting in 1948 as an organization of 12 people interested in square dancing, the UBC Dance Club now offers instruction in any type of dancing to a membership of 450 people. The organization emphasises ballroom dancing, which it considers a social necessity. Through noon hour instruction, special classes, parties, and other larger social events, the club caters to everyone, from the inexperienced dancer, to those who are interested in performing on demonstration teams, choreographed by Mr. Vincent, and Mrs. Donaldson. Each year, in addition, the club instructs over 200 casual dancers. The club sponsors the annual Jack O' Hearts Ball in order to further the interest in ballroom dancing at UBC.

VARSITY OUTDOOR CLUB

The Varsity Outdoor Club is essentially a club to promote climbing and skiing at UBC. To help the uninitiated members it has a lecture series covering all phases of hiking, climbing, first aid, skiing, and ski-mountaineering, which is supplemented on the practical side with rock, ice, and ski schools. There are climbing trips each year to the Lions, Mount Baker, and other points of interest. The scope of skiing trips is varied, from Mount Baker, Steven's Pass, Seymour, and beautiful Garibaldi Park. The purpose of VOC is the enjoyment and appreciation of the great outdoors.

NEW DEMOCRATIC PARTY

The New Democratic Party Club presented a program of varied events throughout the year. The aim of the club has been to carry to the student body the platform of the New Democratic Party, and the democratic socialist movement in general. Recognizing the need for informed discussion of political matters, the club sponsored numerous seminars, films, and speakers. National leader Tommy Douglas began the year's political activities by speaking to a capacity audience in Brock Hall. Among other highlights was the court victory of M.L.A. Gordon Dowding in helping to win for resident Point Grey students the right to vote in the provincial by-election.

PROGRESSIVE CONSERVATIVE PARTY

Participating in political conferences, holding seminars, and sponsoring speakers were the principal activities of the UBC Conservative Club this year. In the first term, the club sponsored the visit of the Right Honorable Howard Green, Minister of External affairs, and Honorable Davie Fulton, then Minister of Public works. The group also took a leading role in the successful drive to draft Mr. Fulton for the leadership of the provincial party. In the second term the club executive planned and carried out a series of discussion groups, the general theme being "New Direction for Conservative Philosophy."

LIBERAL CLUB

The UBC Liberal Club has had an active year on campus. in an attempt to promote the liberal philosophy and programme among students at UBC, the club sponsored meetings with Ray Perrault M.L.A., Jack Nicholson M.P. and participated in the Pt. Grey by-election campaign that elected Pat McGeer to the provincial legislature. The club has also had an active social program with several cocktail parties.

SOCIAL CREDIT CLUB

The UBC Socreds started the year off well by winning first prize for the best decorated booth in its class on Club's Day, During the year they have presented speakers from local, provincial and federal political levels. They hold weekly discussion meetings and have published several editions of their campus periodical, the UBC SOCRED. This year they held several seminar-discussions, with economists and cabinet-ministers. They participated in the Burnaby-Coquitlam and Point Grey by-elections, the annual Social Credit Convention, and the model Parliament.

UNITED NATIONS CLUB

The establishment of new headquarters at International House was one of the activities of the U.N. Club this year. To increase Canada's contribution to Foreign Aid to one percent of the Gross National Product has been their objective. They hope that the climax of the project, a two-week, national campaign commencing February 15, 1963, will enlist support for the new Foreign Aid problem. Program highlights of our year include a delegate on U.S. Aggression in Cuba by a Model Security

Council, and a fall concert by the Jericho Hill Blind Band, the proceeds of which were donated to the Dag Hammerskjold Fund.

INDIA STUDENTS ASSOCIATION

The India Students Association of UBC has been functioning on the campus from 1953. It provides a forum for students attending this University from the various parts of India. Its primary aim is to promote social, cultural and educational contacts between Indian and Canadian students and also with those coming from other countries. The association celebrates India's national festivals, presents cultural shows, and arranges talks on the socio-economic progress in India. Many foreign students who are interested in India's way of life and thinking are active members of this organization.

The Nisei Varsity Club is a Japanese-Canadian organization intent on providing social, cultural and educational opportunities with a Japanese flavour for the students of UBC. Some of the activities which are prominent this year are the "Japan Week", the annual Valentines Dance and the year end banquet. Members have also participated in a wide range of activities such as discussion groups, intramural sports, and showing films and giving lectures on Japanese culture. The club hopes to strengthen cultural ties and understanding among the students of UBC by encouraging full participation in future events of the Nisei Varsity Club.

CAMERA CLUB

The UBC Camera Club boasts a membership of 110. Its purpose is to provide these members with facilities, ideas and instruction. The clubrooms are located in the Brock Extension and offer such equipment as four enlargers, and a stainless steel sink with water temperature control. The club's activities include guest speakers, field trips, group outings, demonstrations and slide shows. In addition there is an annual competition for black-and-white and coloured pictures. The club co-sponsors the Ben Hill-Tout Memorial Salon, an annual photography exhibition.

Standing: John Tyrrell, Mike Fairweather, Ken Lindsey. Sitting: Bob Flick, Leon Tuey, John Heally.

ARCHAELOGY CLUB

Activities of the Archaeology Club during this year include a series of noonhour movies and talks, monthly evening meetings at the homes of members, field trips to archaeological sites in the Lower Fraser Valley and systematic digging at Stselax Village. Topics this year emphasized North American prehistory. Each Saturday some members accompany the Anthropology 420 class on its Stselax Village dig. Here, under the direction of Dr. C. E. Borden, they participate in the excavation, learning techniques and procedure.

This year's executive includes, Don Mitchell, president; Adrian Hankey, vice-president and director of field work; Susan Whipps, secretary; and Donna Macpherson, treasurer.

NUCLEAR DISARMAMENT CLUB

Not really a political club but more of a philosophical action group, the Nuclear Disarmament Club is always busy on campus. To promote its end, the club distributes literature and petitions as well as invites guest speakers and sponsors demonstrations and debates. The club was instrumental in organizing the War Scare Rally in the Fall.

ROD AND GUN CLUB

The Varsity Rod and Gun Club seeks to encourage the protection and the restoration of waters, wildlife, forests and fields in British Columbia. Club members learn how to handle various types of guns, and how to improve their marksmanship. Club activities this year included organized hunting and fishing trips, a fishing derby, and rifle shooting on the campus range. Each year, several teams are entered in the B.C. postal shoot, and this year's teams were again a credit to the university.

JUDO CLUB

Judo is derived from the ancient art of attack and defense known as Jiujitsu. The purpose of the Judo club on campus is to further the interest in this art. The club members enter Grading Tournaments at the Vancouver Judo Club, where individual members are graded according to their standard of achievement, and are awarded the belts of their section. Each year the best members enter provincial tournaments, and this year, as in the past, were met with fair successes.

Girls are not the only ones with fine form!

SAILING CLUB

The UBC Sailing Club is active under the direction of Gus Whitmore. It uses a base at the R.V.Y.C. in Coal Harbour which provides easy access to the surrounding waters and winter sailing for the Club's six penguin class dinghies. This year's membership, the largest in the club's history, was divided into three groups according to ability to handle a boat. Written and practical exams must be passed before a member is eligible for promotion to a higher group. Saturdays are reserved for instruction of groups I and II by members of group III. Sundays include informal races and team practices. The Thunderbird Intercollegiate Sailing team is chosen and this year there is a women's team as well as a men's. These teams compete against others from such colleges as U. of Seattle, Puget Sound, Western Washington and also eligible to enter the North American Intercollegiate Championships.

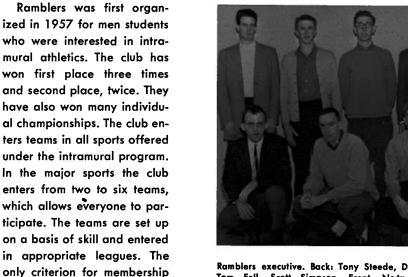

CIRCLE K CLUB

The Circle K Club carries out service projects on the campus and in surrounding areas. They operate a driver-rider booth on Registration Week, and during the year read for and assist blind students. This year, in addition, they provided work parties for building the Kiwanis Camp Potlatch, and entered a float in the Homecoming Parade urging an ambulance for UBC. Other activities include a banquet each term, dances, and speakers at weekly meetings. The club is sponsored by the Kiwanis.

This arrangement allows communication with the other Canadian Universities three times a week, in which news and personal messages are exchanged.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The UBC Christian Science Organization, originated in 1947, has its office in the Brock extension. Here, those interested can read Christian literature and listen to testimonials. The organization sponsors the Christian Science Monitor at UBC. Also included in its program are suppers and study sessions throughout the year.

MAMOOKS

Advertising around the campus often is a product of Mamooks, an organization devoted to making available inexpensive artistic publicity. Mamooks paints posters and banners, and silk-screens bulk material. It also rents its clubroom, complete with paint, and brushes, to campus organizations. In addition, it sells poster and banner materials and orders art supplies.

Operated by a manager, Mike Kimball, and supervised by two assistants, Gail Carlson and Peter Pratt, Mamooks employs a number of specialized painters and artists.

ALLIANCE FRANCAISE

Alliance Francaise is a university group interested in French language and culture. This year, as in the past, the club presented a series of weekly noon-hour films on various aspects of French life. Two house parties were held each term. A designated room in the Buchanan Building was open to members during the lunch hour. Here, and at other club functions, the members spoke only French.

Mrs. Dore, PUBS Secretary, and the Coordinator, Bill McDonald.

The office of the Co-ordinator of Publications is responsible for all A.M.S. publications. Its funds come from the Society's general funds, amounting to about 30% of the total. The staff consists of the Co-ordinator, his assistant, an Advertising Director and Manager, two salesmen, a full time secretary, and a part time student who prepares the Ubyssey for mailing to its subscribers and other colleges.

The Co-ordinator is responsible for matters such as formulating general policy, drawing up a budget, and negotiation of contracts.

The Advertising Department is responsible for soliciting all advertising for such publications as the Ubyssey, Totem, Student Directory, and Campus Canada.

Totem is one of the most active organizations on campus, covering the university every year for enough pictures and stories to fill over 300 pages. Coverage includes most recognized clubs and teams on campus, as well as special events, reports on the University Administration, and a list of names and pictures of those graduating at the end of the year. Coverage is as complete as possible, although omissions due to a lack of cooperation or space are unavoidable.

Totem has two specialized sections, Photography and Copy. In addition, the entire organization is split into Administration, Grads, Organizations, Campus Life, Sports, Greeks and Residences. Layout is the responsibility of the editors of these sections. The Editor is Don Campbell, the Coordinator is Scott McIntyre, Mannie Humphries is in charge of Photography and Dave Gower is Copy Editor.

Work on the book starts in September and ends in February. Totem members organized a number of parties and other social events during the year. The active membership is listed at 35, although the total number is variously estimated at 50 or above.

The Ubyssey

CANADA'S BEST COLLEGE NEWSPAPER

The Ubyssey, UBC's best thrice-weekly tabloid newspaper, is produced in a noisy office at the bottom of the stairs in the basement of the North Brock.

The paper, now more than 45 years old, carries on a tradition richer than Fort Knox and longer almost than the University's itself.

It has changed over the years.

Gone today is the small cramped closet which The Ubyssey used to share with other publications, in what was called "the Pub."

Today's office is airy, noisy and, like all newspaper offices, dirty.

The paper itself has changed.

The first issue of The Uhyssey on Oct. 17, 1918 was a quiet, deferential tabloid, polite and courteous to student council and faculty members.

Today's paper is not necessarily polite to anyone — unless they happen to deserve it.

And like its attitude, The Ubyssey's appearance has changed almost as often as its editors.

The first Ubyssey was a tabloid—its layout similar to the New York Times—colorless and, on the whole, dull to read.

By the forties, The Ubyssey was printing on a full-size page and its appearance was less

Today, The Ubyssey is back to tabloid format, but its layout is hardly that of the New York Times

KEITH BRADBURY, proud Editor-in-chief, stands behind HIS trophy and lords it over his staff.

And the years have been hard on the legion of Ubyssey editors who have graduated — often to become Canada's best journalists.

One such editor was Ronald Grantham, who ran the paper for year 1931-32.

He was suspended from classes.

Some of the Ubysseys, have gained national recognition.

As in 1956. While Marilyn Bell was swimming the strait, a pert Ubyssey staffer called Carol Gregory was swimming the Lily pond. Her success—under the guidance of swim coach Frank Gnup—was carried on national wires and television.

The Ubyssey on occasion has been a bit of a social conscience for the University—like earlier this year in the Point Grey discrimination expose.

The Ubyssey has spawned great journalists, and great Canadians including Pierre Berton, Lester Sinclair, Eric Nicol and Earle Birney.

It's now spawning more.

It has also spawned tempests in teapots, major battles nationally recognized stunts, pseudo human caustic comments and ricgus photography.

RCAF

The RCAF campus squadron presently has a strength of about 85 officer trainees. These students work each Thursday evening of the unversity term and up to 22 weeks during the summer in such fields as aircrew, aeronautical engineering, dietetics, accounting, administration, flying control, and medicine. In addition to their professional training they gain knowledge of Canadian and world current affairs, citizenship and geopolitics through practical experience in these areas. The "summer semester" finds them working on RCAF station from coast to coast and in NATO bases in France, Germany, Britain and Sardinia.

COTC

UBC Contingent COTC has been in continuous operation since 1928. During 1961-62, as in previous years, the Contingent trained every Monday night except during December and April. The main events during the year included the Commanding Officers Inspection Nov. 26 and the BC Area Commanders Inspection, on Jan. 29, Annual Mess Dinner on Jan. 26, Tri-Service Parade and Ball Mar. 9 and the Annual Militia Night on Mar. 25.

The Contingent now consists of ninety-five Officer Cadets and Second Lieutenants. All but two attended training at various Corps School Units in Canada between May 1 and Sept. 1.

Three Second Lieutenants from UBC amongst the top thirty-five across Canada, attended training with units of 4th Canadian Infantry Brigade Group in Germany.

UNTD

UNTD cadets along with ROTP and CTP cadets undergo winter training at HMCS Discovery on Dead Man's Island, attending lectures and drills every Monday night. Winter activities include the Remembrance Day parade at the Memorial Gym, the Tri-Service parade, the Barnacle Ball and the Tri-Service Ball. First and second year cadets are sent to Cornwallis, Nova Scotia, early in May to undergo intensive training in communication, navigation and leadership, and take a five week cruise. Third year cadets undergo training at Royal Roads.

RESIDENCES

ACADIA CAMP

SAINT ANDREW'S HALL

Saint Andrew's Hall consists of a dormitory, a building with a kitchen, dining room, lounge, library, and administration offices, and a chapel. Forty-two students from various parts of the world have their permanent residence in Saint Andrew's.

The residents take part in intra-mural sports engaging teams from other organizations. The Hall is equipped with facilities for ping-pong and other activities. The students also hold several dinners and parties, and include in their religious activities a candlelight Christmas service which attracts many visitors.

Ask any confirmed Acadia camper (and there are many) why he returns to those converted army barracks in preference to more luxurious surroundings, and, ten to one, his answer will include the word "spirit"

The thin walls and the ground floor windows probably have a lot to do with the friendliness and freedom of Acadia Camp.

A highlight of the Acadia year was the acquisition of a new common room.

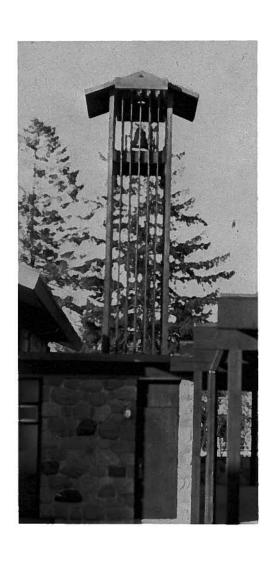

Tacitly admitting that the temporary residences might be here for a while yet (estimates say at least twenty years), Housing obtained a $4,000 grant to renovate the Recreation Hall.

Cosy now with a fireplace, comfortable furniture and other accourtements, the hall is a popular place to engage in all sorts of intellectual activities...guitar playing, card games, hand holding and Sunday night culture evenings.

Acadians also enjoy an active social and sports life.

Dances, parties, and free coffee nights satisfied any gregarious impulses, while athletics from snooker to touch football (boys vs. girls) kept residents in shape for getting into those high beds.

Credit for many improvements in Acadia life should go to the camp council, headed by Ken Welch.

ANGLICAN THEOLOGICAL COLLEGE

The Anglican Theological College of British Columbia serves as the divinity faculty for the Anglican Church of Canada at the University of British Columbia. It provides the various courses of study required by the Church for men preparing to enter the Anglican ministry. The usual course of three-year's study is entered upon by graduates in arts and sciences and is followed by ordination.

At A.T.C. the centre of life is the daily services of morning and evening worship, the divine offices and Sacraments. Daily service is a required part of Anglican seminary life. Furthermore, in lectures and seminars there are studies in scriptures, theology, and the specialized disciplines, and at the same time, the application of this knowledge in field work outside the college. Thus, men work in parishes, social institutions, and in specialized chaplaincies.

As a residence, A.T.C. presently houses 33 students.

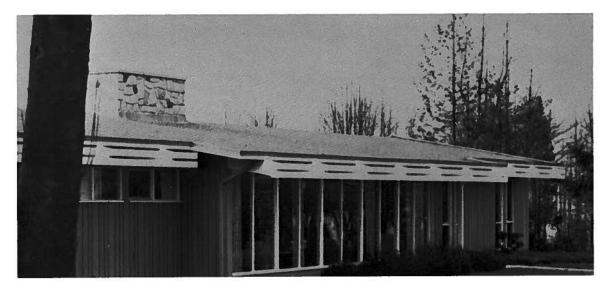

The highlight of this year at A.T.C. has been the beginning of construction on a long-awaited expansion project. The project, which is to be finished this fall, will provide rooms for another fifty students as well as a new common room, recreation room, dining hall, kitchen, library, and chapel. The old building will be renovated.

Carey Hall is located at the East end of the row of religious dormatories. Operated by the Baptist Federation of Canada, the hall has facilities for forty male students in single rooms. It is headed by the Rev. J. 1. Richardson, Dean of Residences.

Carey Hall's spacious lounge is the scene of discussion groups, debates, and informal parties. In addition there are daily chapel services, evening vespers and Sunday afternoon Bible studies to meet the spiritual needs of residents.

Because of the small number of residents, Carey Hall has a keen community spirit of a kind rarely found in larger residences. One of the more memorable situations occurred this year when unidentified people locked a cow in a Carey Hall washroom on Halloween.

CAREY HALL

FORT CAMP

Fort Camp is located just across Marine Drive from the Faculty Club. The Camp houses over 400 men in huts and 300 women in permanent dormitories. The Camp has its own council which arranges dances and casual get-togethers. Also for the amusement of the residents is a pool table-equipped recreation room, and a canteen.

Two outstanding events mark the year for Fort. The first was when Kaneung Watanachai, a resident from Pakistan, reported a disease which doctors feared was smallpox. Surprised campers found themselves assaulted by vaccinators as they entered the dining hall for supper. Fortunately, the disease was not smallpox.

The second major event was their victory over the Highways Department in finally getting a pedestrian crosswalk across Marine Drive. To accomplish this, they found it necessary to threaten to build a wall which would barricade Marine Drive during the morning rush.

This year the lower mall common block was officially named the Gordon Shrum Commons after the former Dean of Graduate Studies. A ballroom-auditorium was completed in the basement of the Commons, with a stage, curtains, spotlights and a P.A. system. The floor has a shuffleboard pattern in the tile. Also in the basement is a TV-poolroom. There are also three pianos in the Commons.

The Dorm Informal, sponsored by the Women's Council, was held in the fall in the ballroom, and as usual was very popular. The theme was "Famous Couples".

The Cultural Committee is very active. Every Sunday night in the Canteen the Committee sponsors a concert and sing-song, featuring resident talent. Folk singers, a jazz concert, pianists, a zither player, and an accordian quartet have performed. Other activities include a panel discussion, and political meetings.

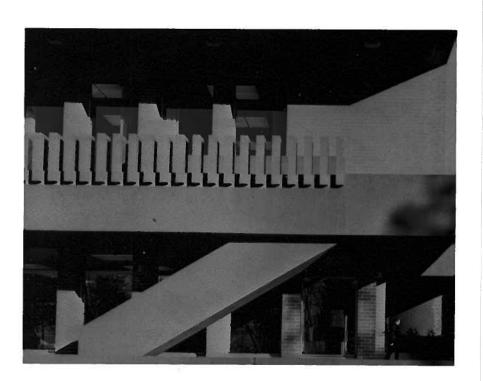

The Christmas Eve dance was held in the ballroom, and on Christmas morning the girls exchanged homemade gifts.

Many dances are held in the canteen as exchanges between various men's and women's houses.

One Sunday afternoon a month, the girls have open house when they may tour parents and friends through their dorms. The men had open house once this year in addition to the girls.

Traditionally, each year Phyllis Ross House and Sherwood Lett House have a touch-football game. And traditionally the girls win.

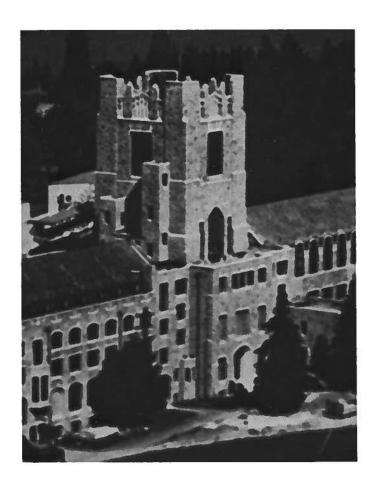

LOWER MALL

SAINT MARK'S COLLEGE

St. Mark's College provides accommodation for about one hundred male students located in double rooms. During Summer Session the college houses women students. Besides giving room and board to students of all faculties, it offers daily and Sunday masses to Roman Catholic students. Its growing library has an extensive collection of secular and religious works for the use of all interested. In cooperation with the Newman Club, St. Mark's provides a variety of intellectual and recreational activities.

UNION COLLEGE

Beside being a theological college, Union College maintains residence for both theology and non-theology students. The total number living at Union College has grown from 72 last year, to 92 this year, of whom about 30 are in Theology. This growth was facilitated by the reduction in size of the chapel, and the conversion of the old library. The college also has 15 suites for married couples.

The academic portion of Union College is presently being used by Anglican College for almost all classes while alterations are taking place at the latter.

... RESIDENTS WIN VOTE

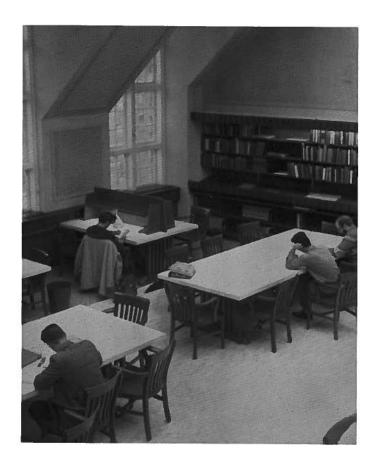

After a long struggle, several thousand U.B.C. students won the right to vote in the Point Grey Provincial Byelection of December 17, 1962.

The deciding factor was that of a successful test case. Timothy Flegel, a nineteen year old student of Union College presented his case before county court in mid November. The verdict was that Union College was his usual place of residence and that he was eligible to vote under the Provincial Elections Act. And as a result, the vote was won for some 5,000 students.

CAMPUS LIFE

With the dawn the students come: by car, by bus, by motorcycle; both on wheels and on foot. Thousands swarm onto the campus, drawn by duty or by the pull of learning.

The parking lots fill up, and sagging buses wheeze between groups of C-lot commuters. For some students there is time to stop and talk with friends over coffee. For others there are 8:30 lectures to rush to, or work sessions in the library, while for the remainder there are clubs in Brock or bridge games anywhere. A typical UBC day begins.

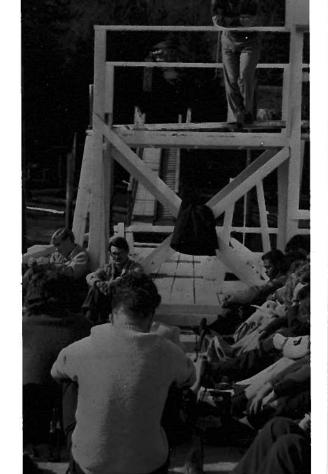

As in the past the Conference was held at Camp Elphinsrone on Howe Sound. The many and varied debates and discussions were highlighted by several unusual visual aids.

BROCK PROCTORS

The two Brock Proctors — Ian Mackenzie, head, and Leo Kelsey — are employed by Buildings and Grounds to take care of Brock Hall and Huts, attending to problems of maintenance and discipline. Although they work in close co-operation with the AMS, and Ian is on the Brock Hall Management Committee, the Proctors are not responsible to AMS, but to Buildings and Grounds.

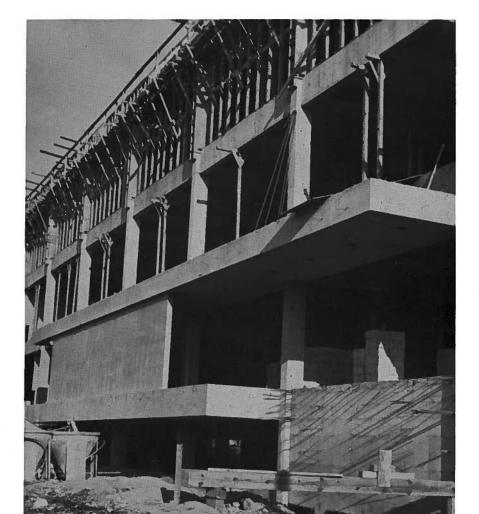

FROSH QUEEN

DIANE TAYLOR

As a continuance of a building program since 1956, at a cost of over $20 million, four major structures are presently being constructed. The largest is the new Electrical Engineering Building, costing $1.4 million and containing classrooms and laboratories for students.

Also important is a large Chemistry wing for senior undergraduate work, being built off the old Chemistry Building.

The second of a three-building Fine Arts Complex is currently under construction besides the Fredrick Lasserre Building. It will contain a theatre with two revolving stages for student productions.

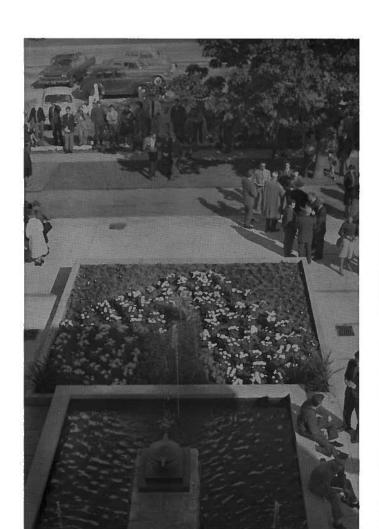

The last of the new constructions is the new Food Center, which will be complete with an outdoor patio for fresh-air diners.

EDUCATION BUILDING OPENING

The scene of the opening of UBC's new Education Building was a sunny October afternoon. A crowd of about 300, half of which were Black-capped and morterboard-hatted professors and their well-furred wives, gathered to see the official ceremony. Prominent among the official party were Vancouver's Mayor, T. Alsbury, B.C. Education Minister, L. B. Peterson, UBC President Dr. J. Macdonald, Deans Chant and Scarfe and Chancellor Ross. Premier Bennett was unable to be present, so Mr. Peterson opened the building.

Dean Chant, in addressing the audience, defended the posh structure against the charge of "frills". He called it a "successful union of economy and design," and described the meaning behind the decorations in front of the building. He explained that the government contribution for its construction was outside of the normal B.C. Government grants. Lester Peterson made a short address, then clipped the ribbon to officially open the building.

CAIRN CEREMONY

The Cairn Ceremony, conducted in an impressive atmosphere of solemnity, commemorates the UBC student's Great Trek to Point Grey in 1922. President Macdonald, in his first speech in his new post, warned of the need for more funds and personnel for universities. Selections from a choir and a bagpipe escort to the marching alumni and professors added music and colour. After the ceremony, students were invited into Brock for a coffee-and-cookies reception to meet the new President, his staff, and student leaders.

During the first two months of the University year, the most popular sport on Campus was dunking. Although primarily a spectator sport usually confined to Engineers and executives, more general participation occasionally occurs. The fathers of the sport, the Engineers now possess a portable tank and trained squads. This group proudly proclaim that they will take on anyone, anywhere'. Veterans now moan the demise of dunking, complaining that it has declined from a means of large-scale freshman hazing to an institution reserved for such rare occasions as AMS General Meetings and Frosh elections.

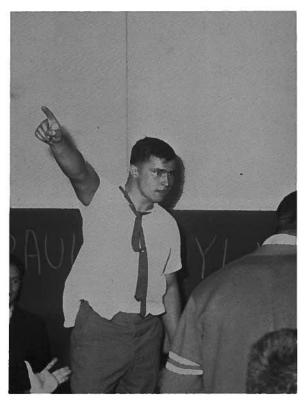

Voting outside the library.

This year the Frosh Council candidate gained unusual and unexpected support from a group of upperclassmen. The Engineers again provided most of the impetus and general excitement while a large proportion of the campus looked on. The size of the poll at voting time showed a slightly greater and definitely welcome increase.

SMALL-POX SCARE

Line-ups are becoming a tradition at UBC. One unwelcome line-up was for small-pox vaccinations, during which several thousand students were pinched, punctured, and scratched. The news that a suspected small-pox carrier was on campus caused a great rush to Westbrook, the result of which was several trampled students. The news that there was no danger of small-pox brought eager students back to the stacks, and the Engineers out of hiding.

The blood drive, which was going on at the time of the small-pox scare, suffered badly because students who had been vaccinated could not give blood.

On the annual Club's Day, held during the first week of October, the various Campus Organizations competed for new members.

To ease tired limbs, twisters paused for a relaxing Limbo.

Gill Thompson and Ivan Weiss seem to be rolling a game of craps while they dance.

TWIST PARTY

UBC Radio sponsored a very successful noon-hour Twist party which gave students a chance to let off a little steam and to display their skills at the latest dance craze. The results were equally entertaining for the dancers and for those who came to eat their lunches and watch.

UBC's Lynn Galbraith, last year's Homecoming Queen, this Summer became America's Miss Football. The students gave her a royal reception upon her return to campus.

At the height of the Cuban crisis of Oct. 24 the Nuclear Disarmament Club sponsored a noonhour peace rally. Five thousand students crowded around the Cairn to hear five professors, Brown, Kournossof, Epstein, Rowan and Faulks, urge a peaceful settlement. The cheery sunshine seemed out of place over the somber attention of the audience. Here and there were signs such as "JFK will save the day," but generally the crowd seemed to support the speakers. The heckling was mild, the applause and hisses restrained.

An old UBC institution was destroyed Oct. 17 when the Georgia Pub was closed. With it UBC lost a vital part of the campus. Students protested vigorously with rallies complete with banners, singing and chanting. However, they finally resigned themselves to the loss, held a funeral procession for the old pub in the Homecoming parade, and preceded to break in other establishments. But somehow nothing ever seemed to take the place of the old G.

Thursday, Nov. 2, 1962 was a big day for Dr. MacKenzie, a man who has had many big days. He was made UBC's Great Trekker of 1962, and said that he was "particularly pleased and honoured" to be given the award. The popular past President of UBC was given his trophy, a replica of the Cairn, at the Homecoming Pep Meet in the Gym the following day.

Although the award is intended for UBC grads, Dr. MacKenzie's 18 years as UBC President make him the obvious choice for 1962's Great Trekker.

The Grand Old Man of UBC is still very active, being a member of the Canada Council, the Canadian National Commission for UNESCO, and the U.N. Association of Canada.

GUEST SPEAKERS

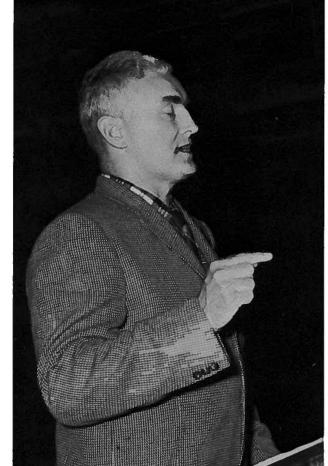

Commentator Jack Webster.

One of the most popular attractions at UBC are guest speakers, featuring radio commentators, newspaper columnists, and anyone else professionally opinionated. The topics they choose are wide but controversial and their comments are usually of a sort that allows everyone the satisfaction of disagreeing. Favourite subjects for attention are Cuba, Berlin, and Africa, but they range from religion to art. Some of these speakers are sponsored by political clubs, others by religious or philosophical groups, and, depending on the sponsorship, are often used by the clubs to promote their ideas.

ACTION WEEK

THIRD GREAT TREK

Courtesy The Ubyssey

A PEACEFUL DEMONSTRATION FOR PUBLIC SUPPORT . . .

They'll be talking about Action Week for a long time.

That's the way it was billed on March 11 when concerted student action to pry money from the provincial government began. By March 16 everyone from the frosh to University President John B. Macdonald were ready to call it a "hectic week".

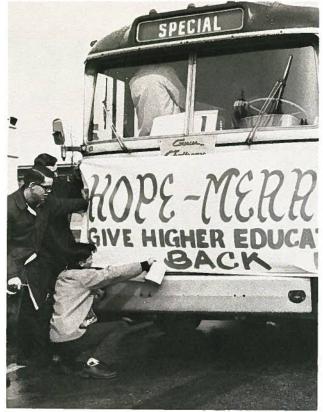

The four days in between were the most confused of the spring term. But they produced what will be remembered as UBC's third Great Trek. They saw thousands of students mobilize to "Back Mac" in his request for an adequate university grant. They saw 232,000 B.C. residents sign petitions backing the university's demand for more money. They saw a platoon of students sweep down on Premier Bennett's home-town and collect 4,000 signatures in the Social Credit stronghold.

As far as tradition goes, the third trek was one with a different twist. Students didn't march to Victoria as they did in 1922 and 1959. They didn't march en masse. Dr. Macdonald did not march at the head of the trek as his predecessor, Dr. N. A. M. MacKenzie did in the previous two treks.

PUBLIC SUPPORT FOR HIGHER EDUCATION . . .

The trek had a new twist because it had to. Dr. Macdonald couldn't march at the head of the trekkers because at the same time the Board of Governors was carrying on private meetings with Premier Bennett.

But he provided students with moral backing in a calm speech delivered to a crowd of 5,000 students in the Armory on March 14. Another 2,000 stood in the rain outside and listened to the noon-hour speech. When he had finished, students headed for buses which would carry them to the interior on a petition-signing blitz—500 students went. Another 3,500 rode in cars to Sunset Beach to form a march on downtown Vancouver. The students snaked to the Courthouse to get "Justice for Higher Education", then dispersed in a door-to-door blitz.

Dr. Macdonald had entered the Armory to a standing ovation which lasted five minutes before he was able to speak. Two sentences summed up his message to the students. "This is your decision, your responsibility," said Dr. Macdonald, "It is not spearheaded by the president of the University," But he added, "I believe in the independence of the student body."

From the beginning, Action Week was a student campaign.

Courtesy The Ubyssey

It started when the provincial government chopped Dr. Macdonald's requested operating grant by $1.8 million. Students formed an Action Committee comprised of 25 student leaders. They planned a strike or boycott of classes to protest the government action. The Alumni Association threw its weight behind the students. The faculty decided to give all reasonable assistance to the students. The student council picked up the campaign.

The first concrete move came when the action committee launched a preliminary trek by telegram. Ten thousand signed the telegram and it was read on the floor of the legislature. The action brought angry comments from Premier Bennett and Education Minister Leslie Peterson but no money.

The student action began to grow. The Alma Mater Society under president Doug Stewart began to assume joint leadership of the campaign with the Action Committee. The campaign was keyed to the AMS meeting on Thursday. Well before the meeting started, students flooded the Armory carrying banners, signs, placards and lunch bags. The usual campus gathering spots were deserted as students prepared to Back Mac. Classrooms were deserted all afternoon.

Students were orderly when they left the Armory armed with petitions and Back Mac signs. Police motorcycles with flashing red lights directed the march to downtown Vancouver. Workers left their offices to shout encouragement to the students and pedestrians stopped to cheer them on. Students sang a new song:

"Our Macdonald had a Plan.

Here a college, there a college. . . ."

From the courthouse steps, Dr. John Norris, a history professor and alumnus, addressed the students. "We are fighting for the future, ours, our children's, the province's and the nation's," he said.

What did the trek do? Students were still waiting for the results when Totem went to press.

AMS president Stewart, president-elect Malcolm Scott and Action Week publicity co-ordinator Bob McKay laid 232,000 names on education minister Peterson's desk.

The education minister had only one comment. "The government is always willing to help Universities with the available funds it has," he said.

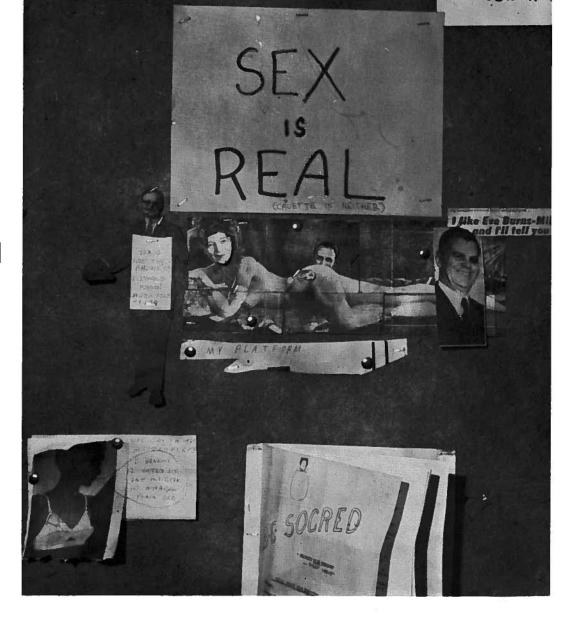

"But," he added, "the university cannot expect too much."

POINT GREY BY—ELECTION

The Point Grey by-election in the winter of 1962 gave a big impetus to campus politics. With their own vigorous enthusiasm, UBC students entered into the campaign; they crowded into Brock Lounge to hear the four candidates at the fall All-Candidates meeting, and heckled, questioned, booed and cheered the speakers. Posters appeared around the campus, and political arguments raged everywhere. On December 17, they turned out in force and contributed heavily to the votes of the winning candidate.

. . . And up in Parliamentary Council the politicians decided to put the whole thing in perspective by designing a little composite.

UBC BAND WORKSHOP

Many students spent happy hours munching on hamburgers to the tune of Beethoven's Fifth Symphony.

A musician's eye view.

Just a lot of hot air.

CHOIR CHRISTMAS CONCERT

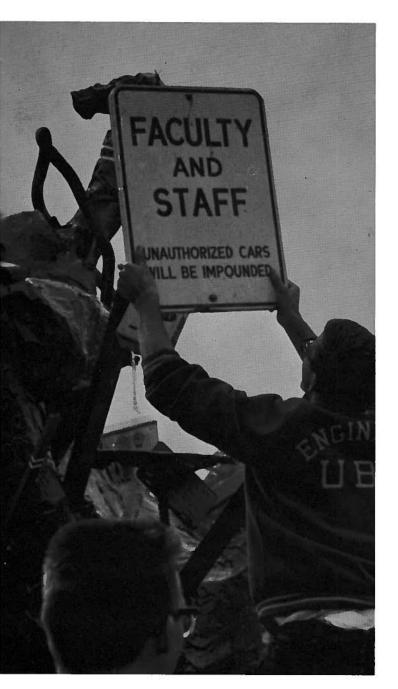

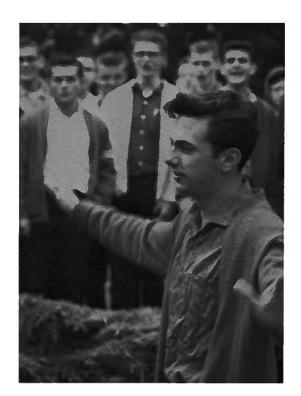

Early in December, the choir held their annual Christmas carol session, eagerly attended by some 500 students.

ENGINEERS CULTURAL DISPLAY

Wednesday, September 26, second year engineering students revealed their "other" side to the rest of the campus. In front of the library they unveiled their addition to the Brock Lounge art collection. Entitled the "monster mache", it apparently was an attempt to solve campus parking problems. Soon after it was unveiled, however, unknown conspirators took a match to the masterpiece, leaving only scattered ashes as a reminder of what once was great.

"Quiet brothers."

Engineering artists prepare their display.

SNOW

Buildings and grounds attempt to rake up the snow.

Mud here, mud there, just slush and mud everywhere.

Only Vancouverites use umbrellas when it snows.

The Library and grounds become a winter wonderland.

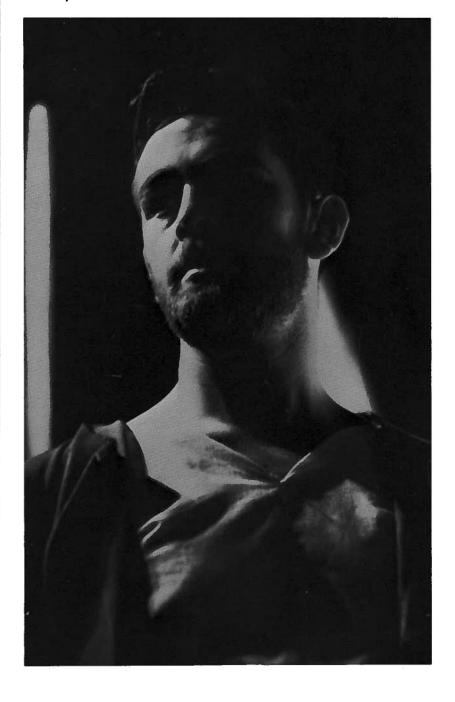

THE LADY'S NOT FOR

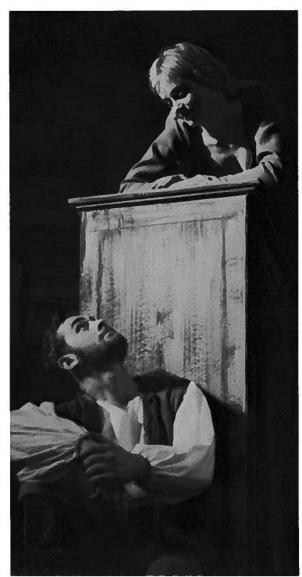

3URNING

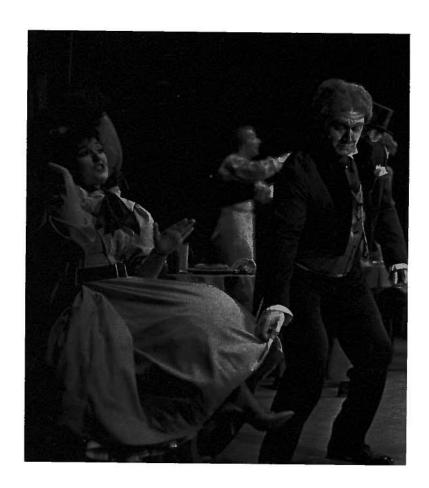

Photographs on these pages show Derek Allen as Thomas Nembip and Cecil Barry as Jennet Jourdemayne.

November 14-17 saw the player's club presentation of "The Lady's Not For Burning". This version of Christopher Fry's poetic drama, directed by Anthony Holland, proved so successful that the play was considered as an entry in the Dominion Drama Festival. Principal members of the cast included Derek Allen, Cecil Barry, Alan Scarfe, Pat Bahlquist, and Scott Douglas.

OPERA

The Canadian Opera Company, under the auspices of the Special Events Committee contributed to the program of campus culture by presenting La Boheme. The appeal of the opera was increased because the libretto was in English. As a consequence, attendance was good and the opera had a successful evening.

MILDRED BROCK

The Mildred Brock Lounge is always a popular hideaway for coeds. While they pursue purely academic subjects, the male population strives to broaden the scope of its knowledge while adding to numerous skills.

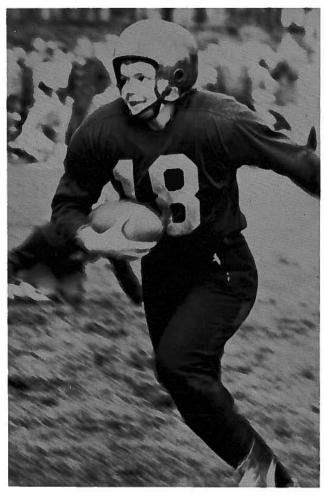

So she missed. Who could be angry at someone with such form?

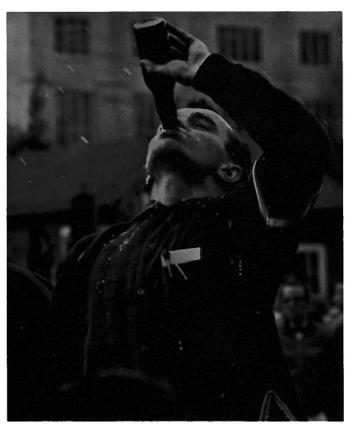

TEACUP GAME

Though playing a man's game, the girls always wore charming smiles.

. . . well, almost always.

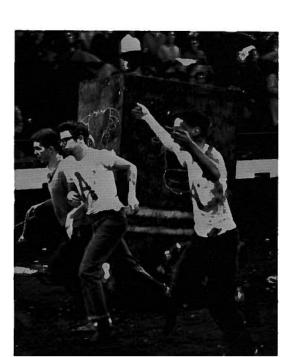

Above, a Forester, and below, an Aggie participating in the half-time boat race.

Excuse me, but are we singing the same song?

The only rule in the chariot race is to cross the finish line with your vehicle in one piece. If during the race you can destroy your opponent's chariot, so much the better.

Everything flies during the chariot race.

PHRATERES

Phrateres is one of the more exclusive societies at UBC, discriminating against the 70% of the campus population unlucky enough to be male. It is however, open to all women on campus, and membership is over two hundred.

The chapter's motto, "Famous for friendliness", expresses the purpose of the organization. In addition to social service work, Phrateres has a Fall and Spring Formal, takes part in intramural sports, and has a colourful annual initiation of pledges. The aim of this program is to give the girls a well-rounded university career, and "to promote friendliness among students, pride in their university and interest in its activities".

Alvin Balkind, new curator of the gallery.

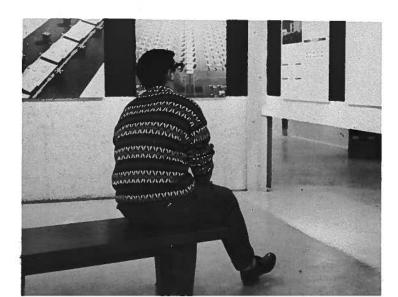

FINE ARTS GALLERY

Because of the wide variety of sources, the gallery is able to present a large choice of displays, ranging from modern architecture to graphics and three dimensional painting.

The Fine Arts Gallery, located in the basement of the Library, was opened in 1948. It was established and has been operated since by the University chapter of the I.O.D.E.

The Gallery does not have a permanent collection, but maintains a continuous display borrowed or rented from the National Gallery, the Western Canadian Art Circuit, and many others. In addition it allows exhibitions by local artists and organizations, and sponsors lectures by guest speakers on various topics.

PEOPLE . . .

Burning at the stake is always worthwhile.

... AND THINGS

Space for posters gets scarce.

Student-faculty relationships are not always formal.

SUSANA Y JOSE.

The small flamenco dance company known as Susana y Jose, who have won acclaim in many parts of the world, came to UBC in February on their second tour of the North American continent.

The pair, Susana Audeoud and Jose Udaeta, work together to create their own programmes. They have toured the world, including such places as the Belgian Congo, Bali, and Malaya. In 1960 they shone at the Edinburgh Festival.

Included in the group were flamenco guitarist Pedro Sevilla, singer Naranjito de Triana, and pianist Armin Janssen. Using expressive sets and lighting effects, the group presented a programme of dramatic-dance vignettes, which covered aspects of Spanish history and culture.

The flamenco was brought to Europe from India by gypsies. Under the influence of popular art, the flamenco developed in the inns and taverns until it reached its peak in the 19th Century.

EARLY SPRING

In mid-February a misplaced chinook brought a week of spring to campus. The thermometer rose into the 60's and students flocked to the lawns to take advantage of the unseasonable weather.

A shade-tree goes almost unused as the temperature climbs.

Students use the dry Library fountain as an open air eating place.

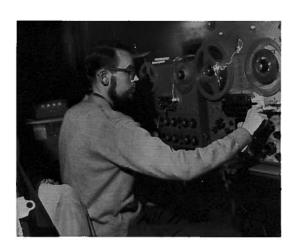

Some prefer to sit and talk.

Watching passersby in front of the Library also has its devotees.

FESTIVAL OF THE CONTEMPORARY

The UBC Festival of Contemporary Arts was organized to present to students fine works in film, music, theatre, art, architecture and literature. Sponsored jointly by the Student's Special Events Committee, the Arts Undergraduate Society, and the Faculty Fine Arts Committee, the Festival lasted from the 6th to the 15th of February. The Festival was open to faculty, students, and the general public.

Special Events Committee: Dave Barker, Chris Wooten, Ken Annandale, George Peter (Chairman), Jeff Burke, Bill Atkinson, Susan Downes Linda Robertson, Cathy Campbell, Vicki Frost.

The Student's Special Events Committee exists to provide the student body with "interesting and informative events -be they cultural, controversial or entertaining. It is financed by the AMS and by revenue from some of its functions, and during the year held such events as the Four Preps, the Doukhobor visit, Travellers Three and La Boheme. Many of the Committee's events have had packed houses, and the variety and calibre of the programs have kept student interest high.

ARTS

The San Francisco Tape Music Center gave a program of electronic music in the Auditorium February 11th. The entertainment included balloons filleds with orange powder, IBM cards and card punches dropped from the ceiling, a girl who took half an hour to climb six feet up a ladder, a man with a wheelbarrow who strewed the floor with junk, and taped music interrupted by a pep band playing Colonel Bogey March.

The Festival featured a series of one-act plays, mostly of an experimental nature. This was supplemented by several equally radical films. Subjects for these presentations centered around basic conditions for human life.

The Wedding present was a portrayal of the problems of an ex-soldier and his wife of a few hours. The play was written by Corine Irvine, formerly of UBC.

The musical portion of the Festival included programs by the CBC Chamber Orchestra, contemporary music for the recorder, Electronic Music and Transformation, original compositions written and performed by students in the Department of Music, a CBC Wednesday Night Celebrity Concert and a piano recital by Leonard Stein.

IAN AND SYLVIA

DOUKHOBORS

When the Sons of Freedom Doukhobors moved into downtown Vancouver in January, 1963, the UBC Special Events Committee invited them to send a delegation to UBC to present their case. About 4,000 students crowded into the Armouries on the noon of January 22. The Doukhobor Choir sang to begin the event and a student panel questioned Mrs. Fanny Storgoff, unofficial sect leader, on aspects of the "Doukhobor Question." Mrs. Storgoff, who had a cold, answered through her spokesman, Mrs. Maria Shlakoff. She defended the Sons' actions and explained their ideas and beliefs.

HENRY IV PART I

The scenery for the university production was impressionistic, and the props simple.

Special wigs (above) and costumes (right) were borrowed for the production from the Stratford Shakespearian Theatre in Ontario.

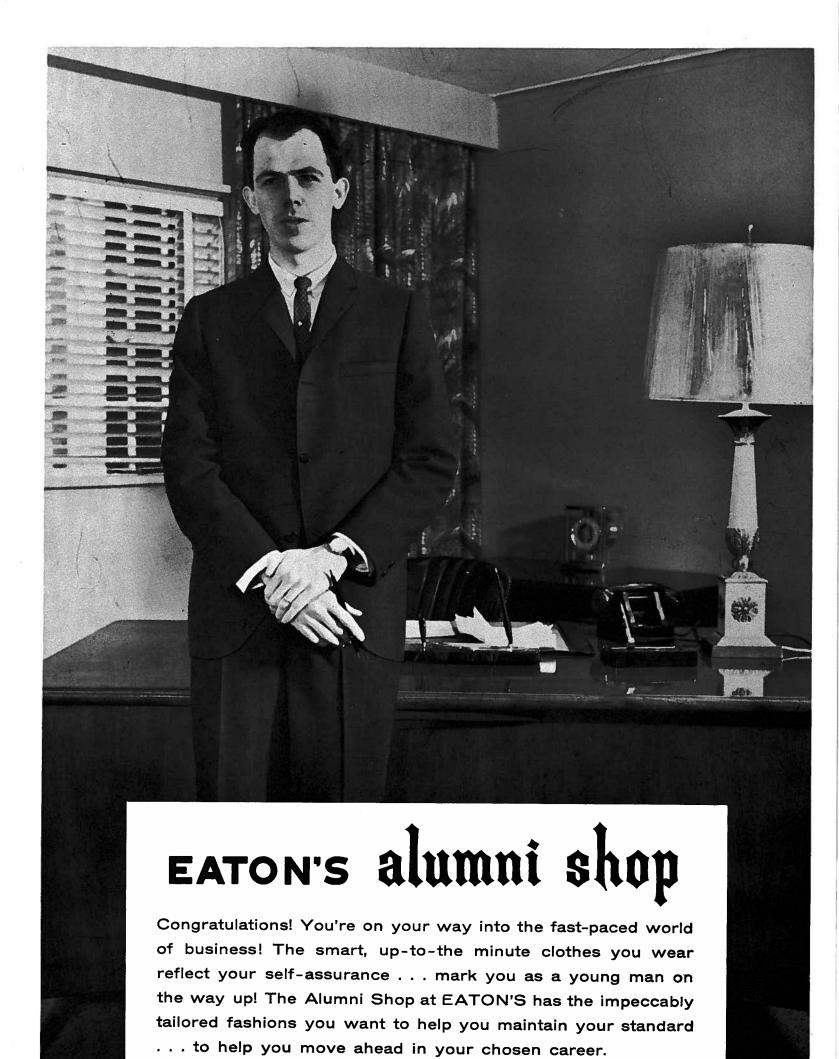

Two actors relax while busy stagehands prepare the next scene.

It is 5:30 and the last lecture of the day is over. Students who have, perhaps, been working from 8:30 that morning at last can get out to the parking lots or bus stops and start the trip home. There may be time for a short chat with friends, but everyone is hungry and tired, and even this relaxation is less appealing than dinner. It's winter, and 5:30 means darkness; which is appropriate because evening means concentration on the work of the day. Yet the University will not sleep for hours yet. Many will return after supper and continue the multitude of jobs that go on nightly across the campus.

DELTA SIGMA PI

 Δ Σ Π

Delta Sigma Pi is the women's honorary organization whose purpose it is to recognize outstanding women on the campus. The organization then brings together those women who have above average academic records and who have actively participated in and conscientiously led various campus organizations.

The selection of candidates for Delta Sigma Pi is based on nominations sent in by all the campus organizations. Each nomination is then evaluated on a point system giving recognition for scholarship, leadership, and service. Through Delta Sigma Pi, these leaders in their different fields have an opportunity to meet each other, discussing campus problems, exchanging ideas and attaining a broader outlook on student affairs as a whole. This year there were six new members initiated into Delta Sigma Pi.

SIGMA TAU CHI

Sigma Tau Chi is the U.B.C. honorary fraternity whose main purpose is to recognize outstanding men on campus. In the fall of each year, the fraternity members invite to join men whom they feel have contributed significantly in the fields of leadership, scholarship, and service.

The fraternity meets once a month to discuss problems concerning the development of the university and student life. At present the organization has nineteen members, ten of whom were elected this year. An annual Beer and Beef Banquet is held and faculty and alumni are invited.

The annual "Pledges on Parade" Ball was held on October 24 at the Commodore Cabaret. This is the largest Greek affair held at U.B.C. and as in past years was sponsored by Delta Phi Epsilon Sorority. Patrons of the affair this year were President and Mrs. John B. MacDonald, Chancellor Phyllis G. Ross, Dean Helen McCrae, Dean W. H. Gage, and Miss B. Schrodt. This year over 150 sorority pledges made their debut into Greek society.

BIG BLOCK CLUB

The Big Block Club is made up of outstanding athletes chosen for their skill and efficiency, team morale, and sportsmanship. Nominations are made by managers, and coaches and submitted to an awards committee which makes the final decision. Big Block winners wear the blazer and crest, and Little Block winners get a pin.

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC DIRECTORATE

The thirty-two members of WAD are appointed from team sports managers, representatives of subsidiary organizations, and the elected executive of the WAA. They meet weekly to work out the athletic program and its budget. Its major yearly projects are planning WCIAA competition, the Thunderette invitational tournament with teams from all over B.C. and Oregon participating. Athletic policy is the responsibility of the WAC.

FOOTBALL

This year the UBC Thunderbirds tied the Alberta Golden Bears for first place in WCIAU football, maintaining their championship position. The 'Birds marked up five league wins against one loss.

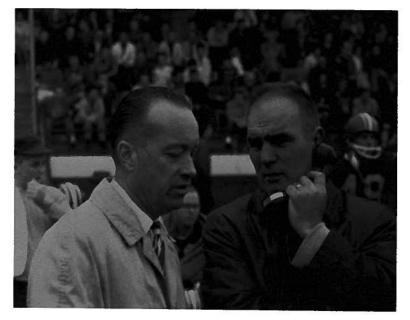

The team was coached by Frank Knup, Bob Hindinarch, and newcomer Lorne Davies. Despite a run of injuries and the loss of several of last year's graduating players, the 'Birds had a good season. Half a dozen new players and half a dozen JV's filled the gaps. Ray Wickland, fullback, was chosen most inspirational player with Jim Olafson, offensive halfback, running a close second. A new training program has been instituted this winter. Under Lorne Davies and Roy Shatzko the team members do an hour a day of weight and isometric training. Through this program they expect to build a bigger and stronger team for next year.

SKIING

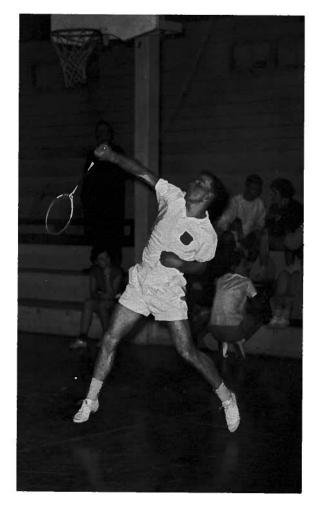

Team members shown are: Leigh Brousson, Dave Gibson, Gary Taylor, Dave Turner, Tom Ramsey, Bernard Kahlert, Ian Burgess, and Tom Jenkins.

Skiers are divided into two teams: Alpine (slalom and downhill), and Nordic (crosscountry and jumping). Their meets take them from Banff, Alberta to Baseman, Montana, and Bend, Oregon. This team is probably the best in Canada, and generally places in the top three U.S. Dave Turner, an excellent downhill racer, rates in the top five of all teams.

UBC badminton team with coach.

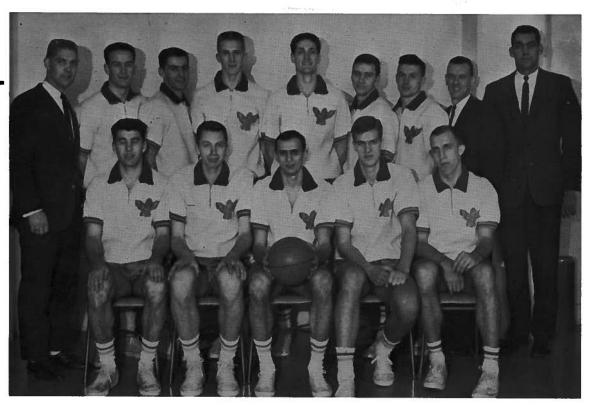

The Badminton team has two classes, the B and C teams, each with four players. Other members belong to no special team. Rated as outstanding players are Rolf and Ed Paterson. The teams include in their schedule a trip to Kelowna and another to Victoria. In the first term they completed a seven to one win-loss record.

BASKETBALL

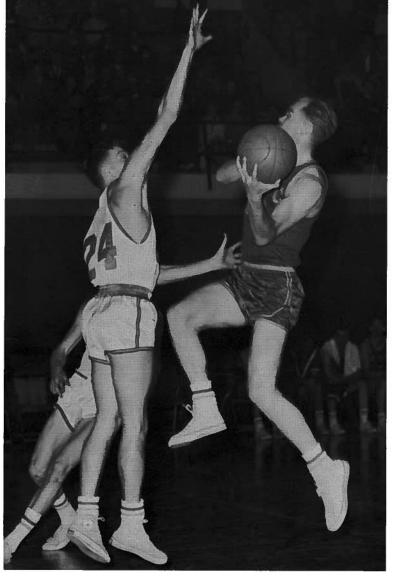

Team members (not in order): John Cook, forward; Mike Pottonkojak, forward; Keith Hartley, center; Ken McDonald, guard; Gordon Betcher, guard; Jack Lusk, Laurie Predinchuk, Gordie McKay, Ron Erickson, Court Brousson, Norm Vickory.

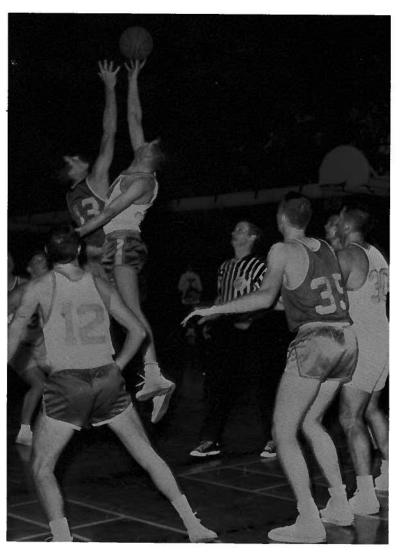

The UBC Thunderbird Basketball Team has done well during the year. They won their first game of the season against a somewhat out-of shape Grad team, 74-45, and followed this up with two wins against the University of Alberta Golden Bears 83-44 and 63-51. They then suffered a close loss to Lethbridge, and the Totem Tournament. They beat the New Westminster Bakers and followed it by a thrilling 73-72 overtime victory over Seattle Pacific College. They lost in a return match the next day. The year's schedule includes games against major Western Canadian and Washington Universities. Along with the Thunderbird team are the Braves, for Freshmen, and the Junior Varsity Team for anyone under 21.

Forward line on the move.

Heads!

A victorious season for the Thunderbird Soccer team led them to the Imperial Cup semi-finals. Their fall win-loss record was 8:0 with two ties. In league play, the 'Birds won all five games. A California tour witnessed a tie with U.S.F. and a 5-0 victory over U.C.L.A.

The season's leading scorers were John Haar, Ron Cross, and Jim Jamieson.

The team credit their success to a new six forward system which took optimum advantage of speed, thereby producing their heavy scoring record.

A subtle check fails,

Checking at its best.

ROWING

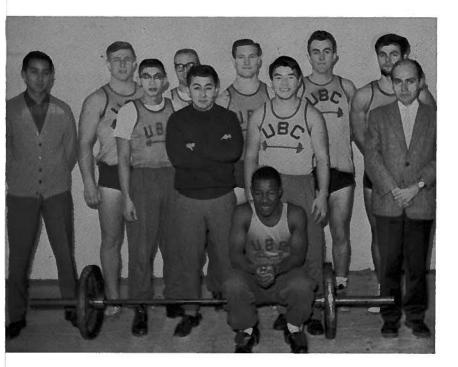

The eights: Trevor Wilson, Peter Hewlett, Rodney Brown, Donald Dewar, Richard Bordewick, Max Wieczorek, Marc Lemieux, Daryl Sturdy, and Ashley Lucky (Cox).

Under coach Laurie West and manager Dave Gillanders, the rowing teams again had a good season. Although the eights were eliminated in the British Empire Game finals at Perth, they later completed a very successful tour of New Zealand, winning most of their meets. Other events the eights entered were the world championships and several invitational meets with west coast colleges. The fours also had a successful season, winning a bronze medal at Perth and touring New Zealand.

The fours: Roy McIntosh, Tom Stokes, Tom Gray and Eldon Worobieff.

WEIGHTLIFTING

This year's weightlifting team has built itself a good record in a series of meets. Among them were the BC Championships, the Washington A.A.U. Invitationals, and the Pacific Northwest Championships. Team member Bob McGavin ranks fourth in Canada for the light-heavyweights, and Andrew Hinds is the fifth rank lightweight.

WRESTLING

The UBC Wrestling Team holds provincial and national championships. During 1962 they won the B.C. open and the Rawson Trophy. Outstanding are Bruce Richardson and Ron Effa. Coach of both Varsity and Jayvees is Paul Nemeth.

Included in this year's schedule are bouts against Western Washington, Vancouver YMCA, B.C. Seniors, University of Alberta and University of Saskatchewan.

Captain Ron Effa gets a hold on Mike McConnell.

CYCLING

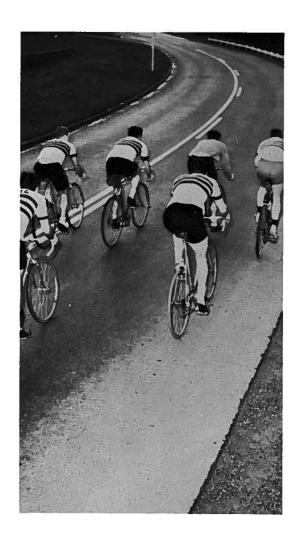

The cycling team, under coach Robin Manson, had another good year. Meets were held from the beginning of March to the end of October, the most important being the seven Pacific Northwest Best-All-Rounder meets, the Western Canadian championships, and the six-day tour of B.C. The team faired well in these events and consistently proved by their times that they were of international calibre.

RUGBY

There are five UBC rugby teams: the Thunderbirds, the Braves, the P.E. team, and two Frosh teams. For the Thunderbirds Don Sloan, captain, and Doug Stewart, Vice-captain, are key men. Both the 'Birds and the Braves play in the Vancouver Rugby Union, competing for the Miller Cup. Included in the season's games are battles against the U. of Washington, the U. of California, Oregon State, and the all-Japanese team. In addition, the 'Birds are planning a tour of Britain for Christmas '63.

HOCKEY

The UBC Ice Hockey team is proud of its new coach, Father Bauer, who came to UBC two years ago from St. Michael's College in Toronto. With assistant Bob Hindmarch, they are building a team around a strong defensive unit. Its prowess was shown when they tied the former World Champs, Trail Smokeaters, but their proudest feat of the year was to be named to go to the Olympic Games next year.

FIELD HOCKEY

UBC Varsity—first division. Standing: Dr. M. McGregar, coach; Dave Fraser, Lee Wright, John Ekels, Tom Graeneveld. Kneeling: Victor Warren, John Young, Lynn Clark, Joost Wolsak, captain; Doug Harisson.

There are six grass hockey teams, two in each of the first, second and third divisions. The first team has 11 members, of whom Victor Warren and John Ekels are considered outstanding. The teams play in the Mainland Grasshockey League Association. Last year they completed an 8-1 win-loss record, to win the championship. The teams all practice twice a week.

The UBC squash team carries on tournaments in two classes. Winner of the 'C' class was Bob O'Callaghan, and of the 'D' class, Clark Shey. Its greatest concern is the lack of courts on campus which forces them to travel to any city courts that are available.

John Gibson lets go a hard one.

TENNIS

Bob Johnson, Jeff, Pete Macpherson, Hans Duerr, Paul Willey (coach).

Coached by Paul Willey, there are eight members on the UBC team. Doyle Perkins, one of the group, is ranked number one in the Pacific Northwest. The team has four two-hour practices a week in preparation for a schedule that involves play against four Western Canadian Universities and climaxes with a tour a California in May.

TRACK

Craig Gaston hands off to Dave McKay.

The track team's first triumph this year was to win the WCIAU cross country championship in Edmonton. Other events were the indoor meet in Winnepeg, a Vancouver meet, and a trip to the University of Idaho. Two outstanding members are Craig Gaston, the top ¼-miler in Canada; Dave McKay, third in the Canadian open championship.

UBC's 440 relay team: Tony Clarke, Dave McKay, Craig Gaston, Keith Wilson.

BOWLING

The full team gets out to practice every Thursday noon.

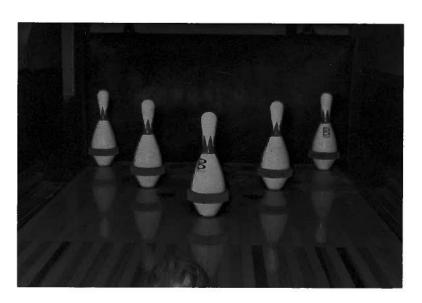

The bowling team under Coach Stan Curry had an active year. The fall program consisted of a successful tour of Vancouver Island. In January the team held its first annual five-pin Invitational Bowling Tournament, hosting three hundred of the best bowlers in B.C. The early spring program included an exhibition trip through the interior to Calgary. The U.B.C. Birds were Canadian College Team and Single Champions 1960-1962.

The Cricket team consists of two varsity teams: the Thunderbirds in the first division and the Chiefs in the second. Twenty-seven players have played on the first team, thirty on the second, and eleven players are used each game. The team plays once a week from September to May in a City League of three ten-team divisions. Last year, both teams won their leagues, and the second team won the Gardner Johnson Shield.

Symbol of Craftsmanship

The Jenkins valve is itself a symbol, not merely of quality and engineering performance, but also of all the varied skills that contribute to its creation. From initial design, through pattern-making, molding, machining, assembly, through all the stringent tests that check each stage of manufacture, the craftsman's desire for perfection is everywhere evident. For these reasons, to men who know valves, the Jenkins "Diamond" is today—and has been for close to a century—the symbol of unrivalled craftsmanship and quality. Jenkins Bros. Limited, Lachine, Que.

7ata Rata Tau 7ata Dai:

THE LAST WORD . . .

As I sit at my typewriter gazing out through the basement window of Brock Extension, I watch the sun disappear behind clouds brought from the Pacific by chilling autumn winds. I see rain and leaves fall, then the winds grow colder and winter arrives. The temperature drops, the snow comes down, and I observe spirits sink as passersby trudge through the white slush to write Christmas Examinations.

The new year brings a revival of interests, which is apparent on the faces of Brock coffee drinkers who sit round the tables in the cafeteria across the way, planning Spring activities. In the huts beyond the parking lot I see Mussoc rehearsing for its annual production. The sun burns through the overcast, and a drying gust of wind from Japan blows by, helping the sun remove the snow. Taking advantage of clear fields, the track team, soccer, grass hockey and cricket teams come into my view, officially marking the beginning of spring. Grass turns from brown to green, the sun rises higher daily, and the buds on the Poplar tree outside the office window unfold to cast a welcome shadow. With rising temperatures, students discard heavy coats in favour of sweaters and blouses. Spring is well established, final examinations are approaching, the scene is set.

Totem is ready for publication.

While the year has been passing, staff members have been taking pictures, organizing their sections, covering the campus for information. Now the material comes together; picture meets copy in an endless variety of layout. Deadlines come, and packages of Totem pages are on their way to the publisher. The last parts of the book are finished, the loose ends are complete.

The Totem is students' views of student life. It tells the story of a year of physical growth of the campus, intellectual and spiritual growth of the inhabitants. It has been produced for the 14,000 students who are rightfully proud of their university.

Special thanks go to Assistant Professor Lionel A. J. Thomas of the School of Architecture, who donated his time to guide us with layout.
