Biographical Sketch

Norman Archibald MacRae "Larry" MacKenzie (1894-1986) served as president of the University of British Columbia from 1944 to 1962. He was born in Pugwash, Nova Scotia. After returning from a brief farming career in Saskatchewan in 1913, MacKenzie enrolled at Dalhousie University and then joined the Canadian army two years later. After returning from overseas service, he studied law at Dalhousie, Harvard and Cambridge Universities. Called to the Nova Scotia bar in 1926, MacKenzie began a prominent career in international law. In 1927, he went to the University of Toronto where he taught law for thirteen years. While in Toronto, in 1928 he married Margaret Roberts "Margie" Thomas and together they had three children. MacKenzie became president of the University of New Brunswick in 1940.

In 1944, MacKenzie became president of the University of British Columbia, a position which he held for eighteen years. These were years in which U.B.C. witnessed phenomenal growth in its enrolment, its physical plant, and the complexity of its operations. He also contributed to the recommendations of the Massey Commission (the Royal Commission on National Development of the Arts, Letters and Sciences) in 1951. MacKenzie became a Canadian Senator in 1966, and after his retirement from UBC continued to contribute to the political, cultural, and educational development of the country. He died in 1986.

Series Descriptions

Main Fonds

Correspondence series. -- 189?-1985.

8.71 m of textual records.

The series consists of two sub-series which have been identified as Main Correspondence and Private Correspondence.

An index of the correspondence is available.

Main Correspondence sub-series. - 1924-1978.

7.54 m of textual records.

The sub-series consists of MacKenzie's correspondence from 1924 through 1978. It also includes some minutes and working papers of various organizations, printed material and ephemera are interfiled throughout, if attached to correspondence. The majority of the series is fully indexed by name. This correspondence series reflects the wide ranging nature of MacKenzie's activities and his personal contacts. Many of the major figures on the Canadian scene during this period are represented.

The original arrangement of the correspondence was alphabetical by year and this system has been maintained. Correspondence post-1962 was not organized. It has been arranged in accordance with the earlier material. Correspondence for the years 1940-44 was divided into three separate units. One unit formed part of the Main Correspondence, while the other two were kept in filing cabinets believed to have originated at the University of New Brunswick. That the two separated units formed part of the main series was determined by comparing the letters. Often correspondence with one person on a single subject was split two or even three ways. These units are now interfiled in Main Correspondence (index cards identify the original location of any given piece of correspondence). The index will provide more detailed information and should be used in conjunction with the following inventory.

A comprehensive printed index to the correspondence is available at the University Archives.

Files in Box 246, originally kept at University of New Brunswick Archives & Special Collections and transferred in July 2022, are not included in the printed index.

Boxes 1-70, 227 (1-8), 246

Private Correspondence sub-series. - 189- - 1985.

1.17 m of textual records.

The sub-series consists of correspondence from MacKenzie's childhood through 1978. The correspondents in this series fall into two groups: relatives and close, personal friends. Consequently the tone of the series differs considerably from that of the Main Correspondence sub-series. MacKenzie made this distinction himself as most of these letters were kept in bundles or boxes, separate from the Main Series. While there are a few letters from the 1890s and 1900s the major part of this series begins after 1920. The materials are primarily hand written letters to MacKenzie, although, for later years, there is the occasional typewritten copy of MacKenzie's reply.

The correspondence is arranged alphabetically and then chronologically. Each person's name is followed by nicknames and, where applicable, their relationship to MacKenzie. Generally speaking women are found under their married names unless frequent remarriage renders this confusing. In such circumstances as complete as possible a list of married names follows.

Box 241 primarily contains MacKenzie's outgoing correspondence from World War I to family and friends. Some later outgoing correspondence, mainly to MacKenzie's family is also included in boxes 241. Box 242 includes a small amount of correspondence with Margaret (Thomas) MacKenzie.

Boxes 71-77, 227 (9-13) - 228 (1-10), 236 (1-3), 241 - 242 (1-4).

Family & Early Papers. - 1802-1992.

66 cm of textual records,

43 photographs.

The series primarily consists of materials relating to members of the MacRae and MacKenzie families and also some of Norman MacKenzie's early records.

Box 78 includes the personal papers of MacKenzie's uncle, Dr. Archibald Oswald MacRae. It includes correspondence, manuscripts, clippings, notebooks and photographs. There is also genealogical information of both the MacRae and MacKenzie families, files referring to the estates of family members, and MacKenzie's early educational and military certificates. Box 79 contains correspondence, maps and miscellany from World War I, along with postcards from 1920's Geneva and notebooks from Dalhousie. It was kept as a distinct group by MacKenzie and placed with this MacRae sub-group during the processing of the papers.

Boxes 242 and 243 contain genealogy materials relating to the MacKenzie, MacRae, and Arthur families, along with some of MacKenzie's early journals and memorabilia from World War I. These materials date from the early nineteenth century through the late twentieth century. In addition to family photographs and original documents, there are detailed family trees, histories, and correspondence regarding genealogy. For information regarding the Thomas family see Margaret (Thomas) MacKenzie sous-fonds. A small amount of family history material collected after MacKenzie's death by his daughter is included.

(Formerly known as MacRae Family & Early Papers, the title of series was changed January 2017 to reflect the broader contents of the genealogical materials.)

Boxes 78-79, 242 (5-20) – 243 (1-9).

Subject Files. - 1947-1981.
5.58 m of textual records.

The series consists of a number of subject files maintained by MacKenzie which fall into three main groupings. They are arranged chronologically by year, the earliest date of a cumulative file designating there it will fall. Within a year the files are arranged alphabetically by title. The series begins with a large set of cumulative subject files which originated during MacKenzie's tenure at U.B.C. They relate to organizations, activities or people. Files begun after the U.B.C. years often continue this cumulative approach but this gradually changes, the number of organization files increased as does the frequency of annual files.

After 1972 material was deposited unarranged, although MacKenzie still maintained the occasional subject file. Therefore the majority of files in boxes 90-93 have been artificially constructed during the arrangement process. These files are annual and continue the types of subject headings previously used by MacKenzie.

Within the subject files (boxes 94 and 95) is a sub series "Social Correspondence". This material pertains to the U.B.C. years (1944-62) and originated in MacKenzie's office. Each file refers to a particular social function, reception or dinner and they are arranged in chronological order.

The contents of many of the subject files, especially those of organizations overlap the Main Correspondence series and should therefore be used in conjunction with the correspondence.

Boxes 80-95, 232-233.

Speeches, Articles & Publications. - 1925-1974.

7.6 m of textual records.

The series consists of much of MacKenzie's oral and written output in the public years of his life. Some of the material is clearly organized and easily accessible, reflecting his U.B.C. years. However the earlier files and, to a more limited extent, the later files exhibit a certain lack of coherence. There are many duplicates which MacKenzie kept in separate filing systems. It has not always been feasible to remove all duplications or to provide adequate cross references for materials prior to 1944.

The organizational pattern reflects how the documents were maintained by MacKenzie. At certain times his files were cumulative and by subject, at other times they were individual and chronological.

Boxes 96-119.

Biographical Material. - 1908-1990, 2009.

3.24 m,

2 photographs.

The series consists of clippings about MacKenzie, appointment books, honorary degrees and awards, memoirs and memorabilia.

Box 243 includes a few photographs, clippings, and some posthumous material.

Primarily this is relating to MacKenzie's memorial and estate.

Boxes 120-132, 221-223, 228 (13-18), 229 (8-11), 231, 236 (4-6) - 239 (1-3), 240, OVR 17 (1-19), 243 (10-20).

Canada Council. - 1950-1972.

3.23 m of textual records.

The Canada Council was established in February 1957 through "An Act for the Establishment of a Canadian Council for the Encouragement of the Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences." It grew out of the principal recommendation of the Royal Commission on National Development in the Arts, Letters and Sciences (Massey

The Council promotes the study, enjoyment, and production of works in the arts, shares responsibility for Canada's cultural relations abroad, and administers a broad program of scholarships, grants and awards in various categories. Norman MacKenzie was a prominent member of the Council.
